First Snowfall Of Winter Is Observed Here

The first snow of the winter surprised Port Angeles residents early this morning. In the higher parts of the city big white flakes blanketed the ground about 7 a.m. and covered sidewalks and streets with a slippery slush.

Although this morning's snow melted quickly in most parts of town, the weatherman predicted more rain and snow for late this afternoon.

West of Port Angeles snow began falling at 10 p.m. Thursday night and about two inches of wet compact snow covered the ground in some places by this morning. The state highway department sent snowplows to these areas early today. They cleared about two inches of snow from Fairholme hill west of Lake Crescent this morning.

The weatherman treated residents at the Heart O' the Hills to Thanksgiving with plenty of atmosphere when snow started falling there Thursday afternoon. Most folks there ate their turkey dinner to the accompaniment of a blazing fire in the fireplace and watched the big white flakes of snow falling outside.

At the Olympic hot springs, 10 inches of fresh snow blanketed the ground this morning and continued falling today. Snow that fell there about two weeks ago melted during last week's rains. The road is closed.

Superintendent Preston Macy of Olympic National Park said that no attempt would be made to reach Deer park until oMnday morning, so the park service has no report on the amount of snow there today.

Black Diamond community reports about an inch of snow on the ground today, and residents say it isn't melting.

Sequim, like Port Angeles, had only a thin blanket of snow that melted rapidly, but more snow covered the foothills south of town.

2 Women Hurt in Holiday Accident

City police report two women injured in a Thanksgiving Day traffic accident.

Bonnie McCombs, route one, was released from a local hospital this morning after being treated for shock suffered in an automobile accident at Sixth and Laurel, Thursday at 4:45 p.m.

She was a passenger in the car of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Johnson, 540 West Seventh, which collided with one driven by Grant Coster, Seattle. Mrs. Johnson was treated for minor injuries.

Both cars were considerably damaged, police said.

Welfare Department To List Families Needing Help This Christmas Season

Local groups or organizations planning to give Christmas cheer to needy families may secure suggestions and information by calling the county welfare department, according to Henrietta Haugland, county welfare administrator.

Each year the welfare department prepares a county-wide list of needy families, including those with small children. By law, names of such families cannot be given out or the families identified. However, the welfare department lists shows ages and sex of all children in the family.

The welfare department is sending letters to all families known to the department as having extremely limited income. This will include families receiving aid to dependent children grants, since such grants for the past year have covered only 80 per cent of the basic family budget, due to insufficient funds. The letter suggests the family register its name confidentially with the welfare department if it so wishes.

Gifts can be selected for any family according to the description. When a family is chosen by any group or organization, the welfare department notifies the family that on a certain date in advance of Christmas it can plan to pick up its gifts at the department or ask that it be mailed out.

Gifts of cash, or merchandise certificates good for purchase of food, clothing, and toys are particularly recommended by the agency, so the mother of any family may have the joy of choosing gifts she knows her family wants and of giving the gifts herself.

However, groups often choose a project such as reconditioning toys, which can give happiness to many small children.

Already active in cooperative planning for Christmas clearance are Beacon Bill, the Venture Club, the American Legion Auxiliary and the county welfare department. Groups are urged to lay their plans and check with the welfare department as early as possible.

Last year, a score or more organizations entered the plan, some of them at the last moment. Mrs. Haugland stressed the difficulty of planning for all needy families, and of preventing duplication, unless a check is made early in December.

City Waited Until Year After War's End Before Ordering New Substation Equipment

V.

Looking backward at what might have been done is always much easier than looking ahead and providing adequately for future needs.

With that initial recognition, this article will attempt to look backward at the amount of time taken by the city to order new substation equipment.

If the new transformers ordered two years ago had been ordered soon after the war ended in August 1945 instead of in December 1946, they might be in use here now. The first shipment is now enroute from Massachusetts.

During the war the city's power demand doubled, and now it is triple the prewar figure, as shown in the last article.

When the war ended, lifting wartime restrictions on new equipment, the city's peak demands already exceeded the prewar substation's rated capacity.

Releasing all the pent-up demand for new household and other electrical equipment was bound to bring higher and higher power demands so long as the people had buying power.

At present the peak demand is 50% above the substation's rating. To relieve this dangerous overload the city is now investing $90,000 in a diesel generator plant.

FIRST POSTWAR BUDGET

The city's first postwar light department budget was adopted by the former city commissioners in October 1945 for the calendar year 1946.

The only capital outlay appropriation it contained was $20,000 for a second floor addition in the city hall at Front and Oak streets.

Thus if the previous city administration (1943-45) had any plans for substation expansion, their budgets do not show it. And they left no pending orders for such equipment when the present administration succeeded them in January 1946.

In his 1945 election campaign, Finance Commissioner E. C. Steele had concentrated mainly on plans for a new firehall and comfort station.

But after he took office and brought electrical engineer B. W. Lean in as light superintendent, Steele began talking about the urgent need for a new substation which Lean had demonstrated to him.

Near the end of their first year in office the present commissioners ordered the new 10,000 KVA substation equipment to replace the old 4,500 KVA substation.

Whether this was fast or slow action by engineers and city commissioners to meet an urgent need is a question for experts in those fields to judge; but the record shows the present administration was the first to act, and did so in slightly less than a year.

A light superintendent who was new to this city, with many other matters to handle, naturally required some time to assess the power situation and formulate plans unless he found satisfactory postwar plans already prepared.

Likewise all three city commissioners were entirely new in their positions and had much to learn about city government. Except for Street Commissioner William S. Johnson's work as Civic Field caretaker, none of them had any experience in local government.

NO FUNDS, NO ORDERS

Commissioners Steele, Johnson and Mayor Fred Epperson took office in January 1946 with a budget for their first year (adopted by the preceding commissioners, as required by law), which contained nothing for substation expansion.

Of course the new commissioners could easily have increased the 1946 light department budget by an emergency appropriation. (They have made their share of emergency appropriations for various departments during their three years in office).

However, the first appropriation for new substation equipment was included in the first budget adopted (October 1946) by the present commissioners. They called for transformer bids on October 11, 1946, and awarded the first major contract on December 4, 1946, to the low bidder for $129,946, as previously related.

Because delivery time on this and other capital equipment was more than one year, the unexpended amounts required have had to be reappropriated in succeeding years.

The next article will concern the overload situation this winter, as affected by the diesel generator.

Following is a tabulation of light department capital outlay appropriations for the four years 1946-49:

CITY LIGHT DEPARTMENT BUDGETS

Capital Outlay Appropriations Only

	1946	1947	1948	1949
City hall addition	$20,000	$	$	$

3 File Petitions For School Director Posts

Mrs. Fred Radke, Dr. Quentin Kintner and Thomas W. Owens are candidates for two positions as directors of school district seven.

Election of school directors is Saturday, December 4, the same day as the city election. Residents of the district inside the city limits will vote at the regular polling places in their precincts. Polls are open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The Lincoln school building will be the polling place for residents of Elwha, Edgewood and Black Diamond districts and the Washington school building for residents of Geraghty, Belleview, Mt. Pleasant and Mt. Angeles districts.

The school election ballot will be separate from the ballot for city officials.

Registered voters may vote for two candidates to succeed H. V. Morris and Dr. Keith Thompson for three-year terms.

Owens filed his petition of candidacy Wednesday, the last day for filing.

Wind Beaches Logs From Harbor Booms

More than two million feet of logs from Port Angeles harbor booms are scattered along the beaches east between here and Dungeness.

The logs broke out of the booms during Tuesday night's 44 mile per hour wind storm and were carried high onto the beaches by continuing westerly winds and high tides, according to officials of Foss Launch and Tug Company.

Salvage operations to recover the logs will begin as soon as the winds subside and weather permits, according to Owens Brothers, contractors who will undertake the job.

The exact number of logs blown away is not known because some whole booms were broken and other logs jumped out of storage booms during the strong blow. Most of the logs belonged to Port Angeles mills.

The salvage job will be with "cats" and tugs working together to refloat the logs and haul them back to the harbor, Fred Owens said. The caterpiller dozers will go along the beach and push the logs back into the water where tugs will pick them up and tow them back to the booms.

Story of a Gang—

Boy Gang Had Reckless Disregard For Other People's Rights, Welfare

III.

By Earl Clark

The old saying is that birds of a feather flock together.

The 10 boys described in the preceding articles came from widely varied homes, had a wide range of personalities and intelligence.

But all ten had one common denominator—a complete disregard for other people's welfare and property.

The chief way this trait manifested itself was in stealing cars. The boys never lacked cars. One of them always had a family car at his disposal. If they didn't have such a car, they simply stole one.

In this they were aided by dim-witted motorists who leave cars unlocked with keys in the ignition, despite repeated police warnings.

Having cars, the next requirement was money. This too, they never lacked. In several cases they got it from their parents, other times they stole it.

So, having cars and money, they had little trouble getting girls. Their cars were apt to appear at any time of night, particularly from midnight till 3 in the morning. Sometimes they were out all night long. They invariably had beer, wine, sometimes hard liquor, in the cars. This they of course shared with their girl companions.

Perhaps they would call for their "dates" around midnight, then head for deserted country roads. They might go out in one car, ditch it when another of the gang showed up. They were not innocent parties.

WANTON DAMAGE

When they stole a car, they were not particular about what condition they left it in. In one case they deliberately burned a hole through the plastic steering wheel, ripped up the upholstery, and wrecked the dashboard. There was no need for them to do this—but it was another expression of defiance.

The same defiant spirit motivated them in some of the malicious damage for which police charged them. When they burglarized a place, they usually did a thorough job of rifling it, as when they dumped out drawers and smashed in doors at the high school.

Or it might take the form of shooting up the auto dealer's plate glass windows, or ripping up drapes in the theater.

They were the hot rod drivers who scare motorists out of their wits.

Ed and Jim had a souped-up model A which they bragged would do 85 miles an hour. State patrolmen are more skeptical, pointing out that several of the gang's jalopies were impounded in the junk yard.

When they got out on the streets, state patrol and city police were apt to be swamped with telephone calls from scared residents. One day last summer two of the gang's cars were racing on the Mount Pleasant road. They paid no attention to a small girl walking beside the road, who escaped with her life only by leaping through a fence.

They were hard to catch. They knew every policeman, and every police car. They avoided them when they could, and drove properly whenever they saw them. But a half hour later they might be roaring 45 miles an hour down some crowded city street.

Their activities usually hit a crescendo on weekends. The gang, with their girls, usually attended a Saturday night dance near town, unsupervised by any law enforcement officer.

The dance was pretty tame stuff for them. But before it was over their cars—or someone else's cars—would be batting along some country road.

STARTED IN SCHOOL

In school they had another common denominator — truancy.

Some of them didn't do too badly in their grades, but they were absent so often that grades never had a chance.

They were apt to be unpredictable in their conduct. Usually they were polite enough when hauled up before Principal Ray Warren, a husky, well-built gentleman. But for the most part they responded defiantly to any discipline by teachers.

Among a certain element of the school this attitude made them heroes. Even when Ed was jailed, for example, some of the girls who had shared his escapades flocked to the jail to visit him. Pat was popular among the students. His qualities of leadership and his general defiance of authority seemed to impress many youngsters.

GANG GETS INTO ACTION

The gang began to jell when Ed and Jim arrived here something over a year ago from California. Until then the other boys' brushes with the law had been infrequent and sporadic. But Ed and Jim both had been before juvenile courts in California. Once they arrived, things happened fast.

Running the gamut of car thefts, speeding, reckless driving and countless warnings, the gang's efforts culminated in a couple of grand larceny charges in October.

One was the burglary of a safe from a local garage. Ed, Pat and Don pulled this one sometime after 1 a.m. One boy even wanted to stick the safe in the trunk of their coupe and drive around town with it for awhile, just to show anyone interested they were smart enough to get away with it. They took the safe out on a bluff east of town, spent the night getting it open, rifled the contents, dumped it over the bluff, and drove back to town for breakfast.

The week before Pat had joined with Ed's brother, Jim, in the high school robbery. Presumably they were looking for the football game receipts, which would have made a nice haul.

By this time they were familiar faces in juvenile court. They had been warned, their parents had been warned, the officials charged with keeping law and order in the community had talked and pleaded with them.

It was too late.

Some place along the line these boys could have been stopped. Where that place might have been will be the subject of tomorrow's concluding installment on this gang.

Demonstration Marks Murray's Re-election

PORTLAND, Ore. —(AP)— Philip Murray, who told communists in the CIO where to get off, was re-elected without opposition today for his ninth year as CIO president.

His election—declared unanimous by Chairman Walter Reuther, United Automobile Workers president—climaxed a demonstration of unprecented length.

For 34 minutes delegates yelled, stomped, banged saucers and marched in a huge serpentine across the stage and around the hall. A band blared "Hail, Hail, The Gang's All Here."

To put a stop to it, the band played the Star Spangled Banner. But the delegates wouldn't quit. A band of determined steelworkers—Murray's own union—set up a chant, "We want Murray." He was not in the hall.

Reuther's gavel rose and fell unheard. Finally a direct appeal on the floor got order restored, 39 minutes after Jacob Potofsky, Amalgamated Clothing Workers president, had set off the demonstration with his nomination of Murray.

New Congress Will Aim At Ceiling Of 15 Billions For Defense Costs

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senator Tydings (D-Md) served notice on the armed services today that the new congress will aim at a $15,000,000,000 ceiling on defense costs next year.

"We must keep America strong and the world at peace," he said, "but do that with the idea that the taxpayer also must survive."

"We will cut out every bit of military expense that is not fully justified," he told a reporter.

Tydings is due to become chairman of the senate armed services committee when the Democrats take over congress January 3. He also will be a ranking member of the appropriations committee, which has a hold on government pursestrings.

"It is my hope," he said, "that for purely armed services at home and abroad we will make expenditures less and certainly no greater than the present year."

The current defense budget ranges around $15,000,000,000. But next year, Tydings said, "we may be able to cut it to 14½, 14 or 12. We'll have to be a little tough and make them prove their cases."

Tydings said the armed services committee plans to call in Secretary of State Marshall and Secretary of Defense Forrestal at the start of the next congress for a full report on world conditions.

Commenting that defense and foreign occupation policies are not "static propositions," the veteran senator said:

"We want to be brought up to date on the hazards to peace both in the east and the west. Then we want to know how they affect the peace of our own nation."

He said the armed services group also will take a fresh look at the draft law to see how it is meeting military manpower needs.

Tydings said he plans to reintroduce legislation to put the air force on a full 70-group combat basis. The house approved such a plan last session but the senate later modified it.

At the same time, he expressed opposition to any special congressional inquiry into bickerings between the air force and navy. No one expected the uification act to "work smoothly" right away, Tydings said.

GRAZIANO SUSPENDED

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—(AP)—Rocky Graziano has been suspended indefinitely from boxing in California, Joe Genshlea, secretary of the state boxing commission, said today.

Genshlea said the commission took the action as the result of Graziano's "running out" on a fight Dec. 1 in Oakland with Fred Apostoli.

The commission also asked the National Boxing Association to bar Graziano from fighting anywhere in the United States.

The boxer will be given a hearing Dec. 18 in Los Angeles if he so desires, to make any statements as to why the California ban should not be made permanent, Genshlea said.

Costs Local Youth $20.63 to Find Logger's Life Is Not All Easy Money

By Jack Hiertz

This is a story about a youth who believes in the old saying—nothing ventured, nothing gained. In his case, however, the result was something ventured, something lost.

We'll call him Whitey. The youth has the promise his name and place of employment will not be revealed. And he was called Whitey on his venture.

Whitey is a high school student who works part time at a job that doesn't pay the kind of money it takes to buy an automobile. And Whitey wants an automobile. Throughout the summer he schemed. Finally Whitey reached a decision—he would become a logger. Loggers make good money.

Whitey had friends in a logging camp and at the opportune time he approached the matter of a job. He was hired.

A week ago Sunday Whitey landed at a camp west of Port Angeles, all set for work and the big money. He didn't bother to unpack the pajamas he had taken along; his underwear was sufficient for night wear.

Sunday night went by, and Monday morning the youth was rigged out. He bought a pair of corks, socks, gloves, helmet band, "tin" pants, "tin" jacket and a towel. He'd forgotten to include the latter in his luggage from home.

Togged out in his new equipment, he went into the woods with the other workers. His job was setting chokers.

Things went pretty well Monday but Whitey dreaded the night. This applied to Tuesday and Wednesday as well. Wednesday night Whitey made up his mind—the life of a logger wasn't for him.

Thursday morning the youth pleaded a tight shoe when other workers started to the woods. After they were gone, Whitey hunted up the boss and quit. No amount of pleading by the boss to finish out the week would keep him on the job.

So, with newly acquired logging equipment in a borrowed pack-sack, Whitey returned to his home in Port Angeles. His folks smiled knowingly; Whitey was unashamed.

However, on the bus from town near the camp site to Port Angeles the youth did some calculating. He came up with the result: he went $20.63 in the hole. He had some fine logging attire but no check for his three day's work, plus a bill at the camp supply house. The deficit totaled $20.63 more than the amount of the check he drew when he quit after insurance and withholding tax were deducted.

Yesterday, Whitey mailed the camp the amount of deficit. He charged the $20.63 to experience. And, he is satisfied. No one could have told him he wasn't adapted to the rigors of logging. He thought he was, but found he wasn't.

Whitey is back in school. On his own initiative, he studies after school hours through a local business college. The subject? Accounting. Whitey hopes to make accounting his future profession.

As for a job, the youth succeeded in getting back the one he left when he ventured into the woods for the big money. He's contented, he says. It cost him $20.63 to learn one lesson. He learned it pays to appreciate what one has.

The automobile? It will wait, Whitey says.

Poland's Move To Halt Pressure Defeated in UN

PARIS—(AP)—The United Nations assembly defeated today a Polish resolution to forbid economic pressure by one nation against another as a means of influencing domestic or foreign policy.

Poland's Dr. Oscar Lange carried the ball in the debate for the Slav bloc of nations, bitterly attacking the European recovery plan (ERP) as an American "economic cold war against the eastern European countries."

Lange contended the use of "economic power to influence the policies of another country is inadmissible."

The vote on the resolution was 33 to 6, with Russia and the eastern bloc alone supporting it.

Willard L. Thorp, an asistant U. S. secretary of state, opposed the proposal as an attempt to discredit the ERP by nations envious of the American assistance to European recovery.

Lange charged that some countries cannot sell materials to some other countries for reasons of military security, demanding:

"Is the refusal to sell gramophone records and such a part of military security?"

Thorp denied there has been any American attempt to dictate other countries' export policies.

Agreements Reached In Maritime Strikes On East, West Coasts

SAN FRANCISCO — (AP)—Terms for settling waterfront strikes on east and west coasts today cleared the decks for early resumption of normal American shipping.

Negotiators in the 86-day CIO longshore strike on the Pacific coast announced settlement terms last night. Earlier in the day negotiators agreed on peace in the 17-day strike of AFL longshoremen on the Atlantic coast.

Both tentative agreements must be ratified by the union membership before some 515 strike-bound ships put to sea.

On the Pacific coast four other unions are involved in the strike, but the longshore terms are considered the key to peace. The four other unions scheduled meetings with management today.

Final settlement would return 92,000 to maritime jobs and many thousands more to work in other industries halted or curtailed by the strike.

It would release some $30,000,000 of Marshall plan cargo in eastern docks and restore business running into the millions of dollars.

The Pacific tieup, second longest in history, has cost by estimate of the Pacific American shipowners about $344,000,000 in trade at the rate of $4,000,000 a day.

The negotiators agreeement boosts the western longshore basic wage by 15 cents to $1.82 an hour, which was the amount the union was asking when it struck Sept. 2.

The AFL union officers tentatively agreed on a 13 cent hike retroactive to Aug. 21 to bring the eastern daytime basic scale to $1.88 an hour.

The 65,000 AFL union members vote Saturday on the terms. The union's lowest previous demand was 25 cents above the prestrike $1.75 hourly daytime rate.

'All Through' Running For Office—Wallgren

SEATTLE —(AP)— Governor Wallgren dodged all questions about his future in the Truman administration today, but said he was "all through" running for office.

Interviewed by newsmen on his return from Washington, D.C., Wallgren said his recent defeat by Gov.-Elect Arthur B. Langlie was his last election contest.

"I'm not one bit sorry," he said. "After 16 years—that's all.

"We're going right back to Washington after I leave office, — that's all I can say. That'll be January 12, and we'll have transportation out of here the same day."

HANG 14 GERMANS

MUNICH, Germany —(AP)— Fourteen German war criminals were hanged today at Landsberg prison.

The executions brought to 87 the number of men executed in groups of from nine to 15 on seven consecutive Fridays for the slaying of concentration camp inmates and American prisoners of war.

An eleventh hour stay of execution was granted Richard Schulze, 50, assistant to S. S. General Ernst Kaltenbrunner. Kaltenbrunner was hanged after the original war crimes trial at Nuernberg.

Heavy Traffic Increase On State Highways Accents Upkeep Problem

II

By C. E. Johns

It has been true in Washington, as in other states, that public demand for highway transportation always has increased faster than adequate facilities could be provided. A number of factors combined to make this trend more evident during the last decade.

Travel increased so rapidly that older streets and roads depreciated, resulting in congestion, traffic delays and accidents and economic loss. During the four years of the war, it was impossible for Washington to maintain a normal highway program, due to lack of manpower, materials and equipment. There was no yearly increment of improvement. Heavy traffic generated by military installations and industrial plants imposed an extra burden on some highway and street facilities, and multiplied maintenance and replacement problems.

Legislators, highway administrators and engineers are today seeking to overcome the accumulated deficiencies and deferments, and are called upon to provide more and better facilities to meet the needs of growing peacetime travel resulting from increased population and industrial expansion.

MUST INCLUDE PARKING

These men realize that a complete, modern highway transportation system includes not only adequate roadways for the movement of vehicles, but terminal facilities for loading and parking, with provision for efficient operation and administration. Lack of any of these elements means higher transportation costs, accidents and loss of time. They know that a poor system is more costly than a good one.

Legislators recognize that highways and streets are not adequate to meet today's transportation requirements, let alone the greater needs of the future. They have lacked facts, and the presentation of needs made to them has at times been spotty, based on unrelated data.

Consequently, the 1947 legislature created the joint fact-finding committee on highways, streets and bridges, and charged it with the responsibility of assembling and analyzing all pertinent facts upon which sound policy decisions could be based.

Members of this fact-finding committee are Senator J. H. Robertson, of Creston, chairman; Senator Virgil R. Lee, Chehalis; Senator Don T. Miller, Spokane; Senator Leslie V. Morgan, Yakima; Senator Lester T. Parker, Aberdeen; Senator John N. Todd, Mercer island; Rep. Robert M. French, vice-chairman, Okanogan; Rep. Julia Butler Hansen, secretary, Cathlamet; Rep. W. J. Beierlein, Auburn; Rep. W. Y. Dent, Snake River; Rep. Harold B. Kellogg, Montesano; and Rep. W. C. Raugust, Odessa.

AUTHORIZED STUDY

This committee authorized an engineering study, as one phase of its work, to show present needs of all state highways, county roads and city streets, and to determine requirements of these facilities for at least ten years in the future. The committee entered into an agreement with the Automotive Safety Foundation of Washington, D.C., for the services of staff experts to study and make recommendations. The study made is limited to engineering phases of highway problems and does not cover the committee's investigation of taxation or other related matters.

The engineering staff, utilizing all available sources of information, sought and obtained cooperation of apropriate agencies at each level of government. Most of the basic data were provided by the public roads administration of the federal works agency, the state highway department and the highway planning survey, and the individual cities and counties. A number of individuals and non-governmental organizations, mentioned elsewhere in this report, also made important contributions.

Another phase of the study was the formation of a traffic engineering committee, made up of state, county and city traffic engineers. This group prepared a report which will serve as an authoritative handbook on operational aspects of highway transportation.

Correlation of the information obtained from these and other sources made it possible to present for the first time an over-all engineering valuation of the state's highway transportation problem. A program of highway development has been drawn up that will be applicable for a period of years.

Roughriders To Meet Victoria Quintet Tonight

Coach John Driscoll and his Roughrider hoop squad go into their first stand of a heavy pre-season schedule when they clash with two Victoria squads at the Roosevelt gym tonight at 7:30.

The main event pits one of the top fives from the Victoria city league against the best ten players on the Roughrider squad. The opener features the Victoria Junior Elks, two times British Columbia champions in their class, against what shapes up as the probable Roughrider second team.

Coach Driscoll said yesterday that Ray Dooley, Lynn Jacobsen, Bob Halberg, Wayne Roth, Don Grant, Alden Schmidt, Danny Donahue, Dennis Lannoye, Larry Gilden, Jim Lemon, Jerry Austin, Keith Lindley, Harold Judkins, Lyle Stilwall and Bob Winters all probably will see action against the Junior Elks.

The varsity squad includes Ed Halberg, Norm Thomassen, Glen Mullen, Jim Phillips, Jack Lannoye, Don Wilbur, Bill Enser, Bud Benson, Bob Gorham, Ken McLennan and Harold Whitman.

County Dairymen in State's Top Ranks

By Melvin Michel, County Agent

Three cows from Clallam county have been added recently to the state of Washington's "3,000 Pound Butterfat Club."

Golly Eladean Betty, owned by Preston Dey of Sequim, produced 5,407.9 pounds of butter fat, 92,296 pounds of milk in 10 lactations. An animal owned by Don Edginton of Sequim, Golly Lady Pearl, produced 4,261 pounds of butterfat, 73,862 pounds of milk in nine lactations. The last animal to receive the award was No. 16 in Stacy Stone's herd of Sequim, with 3,009.5 pounds of butterfat, 50,043 pounds of milk in six lactations.

GREEK PREMIER STRICKEN

ATHENS —(AP)— Premier Themistokles Sophoulis, stricken with two heart attacks in two days, passed a comfortable night, but his doctors said today it would take 36 hours before it could be determined whether he will recover.

Sophoulis suffered his first attack Wednesday, on his birthday. He is now 88 years old.

Bachelors Find Baby-Sitting Duties Cramp Their Style of Living; Take Baby to Police

CHICAGO—(AP) — Two bachelors who shared baby-sitting duties for three days decided yesterday the routine was cramping their style of living.

They took the baby, an 18-month-old black-haired, black-eyed girl, to the central police station and explained their baby-sitting experiences to Sgt. Larry Gorey.

Eugene Everette, 22, said the baby was left in his South State street hotel room by the baby's mother, whom he met last Monday night.

Everette said he worked nights so he had to call his friend, Max Starlbanks to take over the baby-sitting job. Starlbanks works days, so Everette cared for the child in the daytime.

They told Gorey they didn't know much about caring for babies. But they said the baby appeared pleased with the food they gave her—chocolate milk, cheese, crackers and hamburgers.

Police turned the baby over to St. Vincent's Orphanage. They started a search for her mother. Everette said she was Marie Wolf, 27, formerly of Green Bay, Wis.

So You Think You Have a Housing Problem?

WELLINGTON, Colo.—(AP) — You think you gotta housing problem?

The tiny three room James Geary residence, bulging with 10 persons already, will open its door to six more today.

"I'll be glad to see them, of course, but where in the world can we put them?" said Mrs. Geary, 53, mother of seven and grandmother of eight.

The incoming six are her daughter, Mrs. Emma Dorsey, 26, of Panora, Iowa, and her five children. The Salvation Army boosted them along with bus and meal tickets yesterday after officers found them hitch-hiking westward toward Wellington along a Nebraska highway near Omaha.

Mrs. Dorsey told Omaha officers she left behind at Panora her unemployed husband, his five children by a former marriage and a sixth child, Shirley, 11 months, to be cared for by a neighbor.

Geary, 67, receives an old age pension and supplements that with odd job work. Six children are living with Mr. and Mrs. Geary and two grandchildren.

"About all we can do is ask the county welfare office for relief," Mrs. Geary said when a newsman advised her of the Iowa relatives journey toward Wellington.

Bus officials at Cheyenne, Wyo., said at midnight the six Dorseys had not passed through there en route to Wellington.

PASTOR HITS PARADE OF UNCLAD PLEDGES

FRANKLIN, Ind.—(AP)—A minister from neighboring Brown county claimed a Franklin college fraternity, Phil Delta Theta, marched its 20 pledges naked around the girls' dormitory several nights ago, and he said he will demand prosecution.

The Rev. John Beyer, pastor of the Baptist church at Helmsburg, said he would ask the Johnson county prosecutor to charge the fraternity members with public indecency.

The minister said the upperclassmen marched two-deep around the nude pledges in the frosty night air as spectators crowded the dormitory windows. He declared the group disappeared before police arrived.

Davidson Nursery Ends 20-Year Life

After more than 20 years kindergarten activities in Port Angeles, Mrs. Calvin Davidson has retired from preschool work. She announces her Davidson Day Nursery is now closed.

Mrs. Davidson, a certified kindergarten teacher, opened a day nursery here during the war years. To help war working parents and the children of service men, Mrs. Davidson and her assistants provided 10-hour daily care for the youngsters, serving them lunches and providing accommodation for their naps.

"Those were the days of tears of sarness and gladness when daddy was leaving or when families were reunited," Mrs. Davidson recalled as she attended to the details of closing the nursery.

Parents Are Hosts At Dancing Party

More than 100 guests attended an informal dance and reception at the Literary clubhouse Tuesday evening to compliment two recently married couples.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dalton (the former Marion Steinberger of Port Angeles), and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dalton (Jean Sommers of Castlegar, B.C.). Hosts at the affair were Mrs. Eva Conrad, mother of the two bridegrooms, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Steinberger.

Wedding bells and streamers, greenery and tapers, formed the setting for the four-piece orchestra as the bridal couples led the dancers to the tune of the "Bride's Waltz."

Presiding at the refreshment table, with its two three-tiered wedding cakes, were Mrs. J. C. Janish and Mrs. Lemuel Ross. Mrs. Herman Ahlvers and Mrs. F. I. Powell of Portland, Ore., assisted.

At the gift table, outlined with silver tassels, were many presents for the homes the young couples, have established in Port Angeles.

Gloria Strand was in charge of the gift book.

500 NEW UNITS

RICHLAND, Wash.— (AP) — The General Electric Company will build 500 new housing units in the "atomic city" of Richland, Vice President R. C. Muir, general manager of the firm's nucleonics department, said today.

Plans are being prepared for 300 two-bedroom and 200 one-bedroom multiple housing units, he said, and "we hope the first of the 500 units will be ready for occupancy early next summer."

The company is building 1,000 ranch type houses, completing them at the rate of 50 a week. These are scheduled to be finished in March, Muir said.

City Commissioners Repass Ordinance For Right of Way

City commissioners Wednesday unanimously repassed for the third and final reading an ordinance granting Clallam county public utility district, Crown Zellerbach and Rayonier Inc. a 50-year franchise to use Lauridsen boulevard from Washington street to the east city limits for power lines. The lines will connect with the proposed Bonneville substation approximately 200 feet outside the city limits south of Ennis street.

City Attorney John M. Wilson advised repassage of the July ordinance to remove any doubt as to its legality.

Before agreeing to its repassage, Finance Commissioner E. C. Steele said he was in favor of declaring the first ordinance void if there was any doubt of its legality, and hold up the franchise until the PUD agreed to make a settlement in regard to the city's new diesel plant for auxiliary power.

Steele said the PUD had waited until after the city granted the franchise to call a meeting between PUD and city commissioners to make a "proposition" about the diesel which the city could not accept. He did not explain the "proposition".

The meeting to which he referred took place early in September. No record of it is in either the city or PUD minute books. The city is under contract to purchase power from the PUD until 1956.

Both Mayor Fred Epperson and Commissioner William S. Johnson said they had committed themselves previously to grant the franchise and they were not willing to change their position now for the reason Steele indicated.

Epperson and Johnson said they believe withholding the franchise would do no real good and would jeopardize industry. The mayor pointed out that a contractor already has started to clear the land for the lines.

W. D. Tesch Dies in California
W. D. Tesch, a former Port Angeles resident, died suddenly in Barstow, Calif., Wednesday. His stepson, Steve Caryl, left Wednesday by plane for the California city.

Eight Mumps Cases Here
The state health department in Seattle reports eight cases of mumps in Port Angeles for the week ending November 20, and one case of measles. These childhood diseases, along with chicken pox, showed a marked increase in the state last week, the department said.

Firemen Called Twice
City firemen were out twice last night. Shortly after midnight they went to the home of Mrs. Anna Bean, 506 East First, to take care of trouble in a gas water heater. At 3:21 a.m. they attended to a flooded oil burner at the home of Rocco Pizzuto, 720½ East Ninth.

Unlimited Recruiting Now
Staff Sgt. Robert A. Downing, in charge of army and air force recruiting here, said today the air force now has no limit on its recruiting quota for the Olympic peninsula. Previously, only three recruits, all high school graduates, could be accepted from Clallam and Jefferson counties each month. The air force now will accept non-high school men as well.

GI Forms Available
Forms are now available to veterans for making out work progress reports under the GI training program, Robert Fleming, director of the veterans' rehabilitation service here, reports. The reports must be made out before the tenth of each month or subsistence allowance is discontinued, the director said. A supply of the blanks are available at Fleming's office in the American Legion building.

Warehouse Building
Clallam county public utility district has ordered a 32x40 foot prefabricated steel building to replace the PUD's Sequim warehouse which burned last Saturday.

The new building will cost $2,085 FOB Calif., and shipment will be in about two weeks, PUD manager S. A. Payette said today. He did not estimate cost of erection.

It will be located just east of the Sequim substation on the east Sequim city limits near highway 101

Charles E. Bosse Succumbs Thursday

Charles Edward Bosse, 87, died at Sappho Thursday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George Warnock.

Funeral services will be Monday at 2 p.m. at the Harper Funeral Home. Burial will be in Mount Angeles Cemetery.

Mr. Bosse was born December 12, 1860, in Wellsville, N. Y. He had lived in Port Angeles and Clallam county 40 years, and was a stationary engineer and carpenter by trade.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. George Warnock, Sappho; Mrs. Carroll Kendall, Sequim; and Mrs. Aurilla Talbot, Prosser; eight grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Mrs. Alice Morelock Dies Here Thursday

Mrs. Alice M. Morelock, 73, wife of Walter H. Morelock, Port Angeles, died here Thursday after an illness of a year.

Mrs. Morelock was born June 9, 1875, at Moline, Kans. and lived at Retsil, Wash. until coming here a year ago.

Surviving are her husband, Walter, Port Angeles; three daughters, Mrs. Orma Johnson, Wilmington, Calif.; Mrs. Katie Nichols, Lake Ontario, Canada; Mrs. Zeoda Kipton, Redding, Calif.; a son, Samuel Farman, Lakeview, Ore.; a sister, Mrs. Annie Dowdy, Moline, Kans., and a brother, Robert Linbull, Coffeyville, Kans.

ARSON SUSPECTED
FAIRBANKS, Alaska—(AP)—Police were seeking evidence today to support a suspicion that a fire which destroyed four Fairbanks business houses was set deliberately.

Two persons were questioned yesterday, police said, but there was no evidence against either of them.

Th fire destroyed Jessen's weekly, newspaper Adler's bookstore, Nerlands warehouse and the Alaska Architectural and Engineering Company.

Daugaard Services Will Be Saturday

Funeral services for Carl Robert Daugaard, 19, will be Saturday, at 2 p.m. at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church. Rev. Carl Ficsher will officiate and burial will be in Mt. Angeles cemetery under direction of the McDonald Funeral Home.

Mr. Daugaard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Daugaard, 324 East Tenth street, succumbed to injuries received in an automobile accident November 22.

Born in Miles City, Mont. July 30, 1929, he spent most of his life in Port Angeles. He went back to Lewis and Clark high school, Spokane, where he graduated with the class of 1948, and was employed here since. He was a member of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church.

Surviving, besides his parents, are two grandmothers, Mrs. Camille Daugaard, Port Angeles and Mrs. Eastman, Spokane, and seven aunts and uncles.
