City Commission Hears Protests, Sets Improvement Hearing Date

PUBLISHER PROTESTS ADS ON METERS

A pending proposal to sell advertising signs on city parking meters, thereby competing with private firms for available commercial advertising revenue, drew a protest from Evening News Publisher C. N. Webster at Wednesday's city commission meeting.

He declared local government should not enter a commercial field already widely served, especially where the government's object is simply to get more revenue and not to improve or take over service in that field.

Finance Commissioner Vernon J. Robinson replied that the city government has no idea of hurting any existing business. "I do not see how a little thing sitting on a meter can possibly take business from the Evening News, for instance," he said.

The pending proposal is for the Meter Advertising Corporation of Seattle to sell and service the parking meter signs here, paying the city government 20 per cent of its sales. Robinson said this would give the city an estimated $3,000 annual revenue, to be used for improving city parking lots.

NEW MONEY

"The Meter Advertising Corporation expects only 20 per cent of its sales will be to local advertisers, and 80 per cent to national advertisers, which would be outside money coming in, as I see it," Commissioner Robinson said.

Webster indicated $15,000 annual sales (needed to produce $3,000 for the city at 20 per cent) would be a large portion of available advertising revenue in this field. He said it would be certain to cut into revenues of existing commercial media because neither national or local advertisers increase their expenditures just to use a new medium; they simply divert part of their total. He added that the Evening News is only one of various local advertising media including newspapers, radio, billboards and printed matter of all kinds, that depend on available advertising revenue.

TAKE MONEY AWAY

And he declared that far from bringing money into the town, the parking meter sign plan would take most of it out of town. "The Seattle sales company will keep 80 per cent of the advertising revenue. The only part of this they will spend locally will be the cost of a man's time to sell and service signs here," Webster said.

"Now if the city decides to sell advertising, it should in my opinion get far more than 20 per cent of the sales. I recommend you investigate what it would cost the city to handle this sign business itself instead of farming it out on a 20 per cent basis."

He also suggested the city might with equal reason sell gasoline through pumps in city sidewalks, or sell signboard space on city buildings.

PROPERTY OWNER OBJECTIONS

Robinson also said he understood from a Meter Advertising Corporation representative that their plan would enable any property owner to prevent signs on parking meters in front of his property by filing a written protest with the city clerk.

Mayor Frank A. Feeley said he had not heard this, and doubted it would be practical because it might almost eliminate any revenue. City Attorney John Trumbull said he did not recall any such provision in the proposed ordinance submitted by the company's attorney. He is rewriting this for introduction at next week's commission meeting.

PARKING LOT COSTS

Webster then asked why the city doesn't pay for its parking lot costs out of existing parking meter revenues, or out of a similar but lesser charge for use of parking lots. "You charge five cents an hour for parking on downtown streets. On a parking lot, you might charge five cents per half day, for example," he said.

Mayor Feeley said he had favored use of existing parking meter revenues for parking lots, but the amount he proposed was cut down to $1,900 in the 1950 budget.

LEGALITY DOUBTFUL

City Attorney John Trumbull expressed doubt that the city can legally sell either off-street parking or advertising on parking meters for revenue purposes.

"I doubt that the city legally can use facilities dedicated to public use for any revenue raising program," he said.

He explained that cities sell parking space on streets under the name of traffic control, and probably would have to justify sale of off-street parking as traffic control, also. He said one state's courts have held city sale of offstreet parking to be illegal, and that the question is a subject of wide discussion in this state.

SET HEARING DEC. 28 ON PINE HILL LID

City commissioners Wednesday set December 28 as the date for a hearing on an LID proposal to construct a trunk sewer on Pine street, from the alley between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets to Sixteenth street and lateral sewers from bluff to bluff off Pine and Cedar streets.

In September the city proposed, at property owners' request, an LID for the trunk sewer only at an estimated cost of $4,545. They advised property owners of the estimated cost and held a hearing.

Later the city attorney advised them of improper procedure in assessing the cost.

The engineering department refigured the cost including lateral sewers. This substitute proposal would benefit a larger area than the previous one.

REQUEST STREET VACATION

The city park board asked for vacation of two areas devoted to recreation.

They ask vacation of Third street between Francis and Race across Erickson playfield in conformance with an agreement between K. O. Erickson, the donor, and the city.

Second vacation asked is G street between Sixth and Seventh and the alley between Sixth and Seventh which abuts lots 8 to 13 in block 153.

The city attorney will draw an ordinance on the Third street vacation, but the G street petition was referred to the engineer.

Moford Smith of Sequim asked the city to buy a lot near 316 West Second street in Port Angeles. He said the public continues to use a private roadway he built there despite signs that it is private property.

The engineering department will inspect the site and make a report to commissioners next week.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED

Commissioners passed two resolutions. They approved one for control of erosion at Ocean View Cemetery at an estimated cost of $6,666, and for the city to enter into a contract with the state department of conservation and development to pay half the cost.

The second resolution authorized the state to conduct an "origin and destination" traffic survey with a stipulation the city will not pay more than 25 per cent of the total survey cost.

The city is asking for bids December 7 to supply heavy fuel oil for use at the firehall, police station and city hall, and on December 14 for a billing machine for the light and water departments.

Commissioner Edward B. Taylor reported Brazier and Co. will install three-quarter inch Rockwood insulation at the firehall to replace the unsatisfactory Spraykote applied by a subcontractor.

Peabody Acquires Ferry Terminal Sites on Canal

SEATTLE—(AP)—The Puget Sound Navigation Company announced today it has acquired sites for new ferry terminals on Hood canal despite state opposition.

The new canal crossing, from Lofall to South Point, will replace the present Shine-Port Gamble route. Capt. Alex Peabody, company president, said completion of the new terminals is expected by February 15.

Peabody said Governor Langlie tried to stall the new Black Ball line project by refusing permission for company purchase of state-owned tidelands at the Lofall site which first was considered.

"The state said it would not permit Black Ball to establish on Hood canal unless it would give the state a 24-month option to purchase the terminals," Peabody said.

"We just moved 150 feet south and acquired tidelands from William A. Lofall, who had private ownership of the tidelands in front of his property."

Peabody said the company had previously bought privately-owned tidelands at the South Point site.

The state now is completing about three miles of highway south from the present Shine road to South point on the Olympic peninsula side of the canal. Peabody said he understood Kitsap county would build a half-mile of road from the new Lofall terminal to connect with highway 21.

This will provide a direct route to Bremerton and to the new Agate pass bridge now under construction.

May Lift Load Limit On Bridge by Monday

The damaged Olympic highway bridge across the Soleduck river may be opened to heavy traffic Monday.

McRay Bros., Seattle contractors, worked their crew Thanksgiving day and will work Sunday, in an effort to have the structure ready for heavy hauling Monday, Paul Poulsen, state highways department maintenance engineer, said today.

Definite announcement will be forthcoming Saturday if the 6½-ton limit restriction can be taken off Monday, Poulsen said. If the load limit is raised, speed limits and other restrictions will prevail while contractors complete extensive repair work, Poulsen said.

The bridge, crossing the Soleduck river about four miles north of Forks, was damaged two weeks ago when a spruce peaker log on a truck hit the cross stringers of the frame and loosened the decking and some of the steel braces.

When the 6½-ton load limit was put on the structure, trucks were prevented from crossing and truck logging in the Forks area was crippled. Freight shipments to Forks were routed by way of Grays Harbor.

Coast Guard Rescues Stranded Fishing Boat

A JRF plane from Ediz hook coast guard air base located the Seattle fishing vessel Fay, Capt. Alder Johnson, on the beach three miles east of Protection island at daylight this morning. The vessel had sent out an SOS call at 4:30 in the morning. An 83-foot coast guard cutter from Port Townsend answered the call but was unable to locate the stranded boat.

The Ediz hook plane guided the cutter to the Fay. The cutter pulled the fishing boat from the beach and towed her to Port Townsend the middle of the forenoon. A pump was sent aboard the leaking fishing craft from the cutter. The vessel went ashore in the dense fog.

Co-pilots of the relief plane from the Ediz hook station were Cmdr. W. H. Snyder and Lieut. (jg) R. W. Smith. The Ediz hook helicopter stood by from the time of the first distress call but was not needed.

DIDN'T TASTE GOOD

SEATTLE—(AP)— Teresa Wilson, 18-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Wilson, had her Thanksgiving "cocktail" after eating her regular meal. But it sent her to the hospital where attendants pumped her stomach and then sent her home again.

Teresa's post-dinner snack was a liberal helping of stove oil.

Chinese Reds Drive on Chunking, As Formosa, Tibet Believed in Danger

By Spencer Moosa

CHUNGKING—(AP)—Nationalists reinforcements were rushed to the front today to try to halt a three prong drive on Chungking by an estimated 130,000 communists.

Ninety-five thousand reds were centered at Fowling, 55 miles northeast on the Yangtze river, and Nanchuan, highway town 50 miles southeast. Thirty five thousand were moving up from Kweichow province.

The long feared red drive on Szechwan province from Shensi province had been halted by deep snows in the Chinling mountains.

The defense ministry announced that Szechwan had been divided into four defense zones under the overall command of Gen. Sun Yuanling.

The ministry's announcement made no mention of Gen. Sung Hsi-Lien, who commanded the nationalists in Szechwan, Hunan and the Hupeh border area. This suggested he might have been relieved of his command for poor resistance to the reds in their invasion of Szechwan.

Despite official denials thousands of poor people persist in the belief Chungking will be burned to cinders before the nationalists give it up. As a result they are moving out of the city in great numbers. Some are going afooot, some by ricksha and many by truck and bus.

There is also an incoming stream of country people who think the city will be safer.

Many are cold and hungry.

FORMOSA WORRIES U. S.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Top United States officials are becoming increasingly concerned over the fate of strategic Formosa as Chinese communists extend their iron grip on the mainland of Asia.

The possibility that a future war with Russia might find Formosa in communist hands has military and diplomatic authorities here deeply worried—and groping for a solution.

Formosa is a highly productive land of 13,800 square miles and somewhat more than 5,000,000 native people which lies close by Okinawa—a key spot in this country's Pacific defense plans.

During the last war, believing that China would remain in the hands of Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek or some other friendly ruler, the United States agreed to take Formosa away from Japan—which got it by conquest in 1895—and return it to China.

That agreement was subject to final confirmation in a Japanese peace treaty, which still has to be written.

At the end of the war Chiang took over the strategic island and has now converted it into a redoubt, against the onrushing communists.

Since Formosa is separated from the Chinese mainland by 80 miles of open water, it is not a communist invasion of the island which causes most concern among top officials here, but rather the possibility of internal revolution.

The state department believes that on the whole the Chinese nationalists have made a shocking failure of their administration of Formosa and have thus created conditions that are dangerously explosive.

TIBET CONQUEST PLANNED

By Arthur L. Gavshon

LONDON —(AP)— Chinese communists plan to thrust their control over the island fortress of Formosa and over the mountain fastness of Tibet by next summer, an eastern European diplomat said today.

Their time-table also includes grabbing complete control of all China by that time, but does not include the British colony of Hong Kong, at least for the time being, the communist diplomat said.

Red mastery of Tibet, land of the world's highest mountains ruled by Buddhist Lamas, would bring the communists to India's borders. It would give them control over the Indian commonwealth's northern trade routes through the states of Bhutan and Nepal.

Although Tibet has only 10,000 poorly equipped troops, its formidable, unmapped terrain will make movement difficult for the legions of communist leader Mao Tze-Tung.

The diplomat, who represents a cominform country with direct relations in red China, said Hong Kong was not on the immediate schedule because the communist Peiping government has no desire to start a shooting war with Britain over the island.

But it doesn't mean the reds will accept eternally Britain's right to hold that strategic base off China's mainland, he added.

GRIDDER KILLED IN CRASH

ABERDEEN — (AP) — A roadster's crash here at 1:40 a.m. today killed Jerry McClellan, 19, who captained Aberdeen high school's 1947 football team.

Traffic officers said the roadster carrying four youths rammed the rear of a parked truck and careened into a utility pole at the edge of the downtown area.

John Lea, 20, who was booked for driving the car without a license and then released, escaped injury. Arne Haukeli, 18, was treated for bruises.

Czech Reds Start Liquidation of Nation's Farmers

By Richard Kasischke

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia—(AP) — Communist-led search committees spread out through the Czech countryside today in an apparent drive to liquidate larger farmers.

The committees, backed by self-styled "persuading groups," operated through a wide section of the country seeking out and rounding up "economic saboteurs," reports in the controlled press revealed.

Prison sentences, confiscations and stiff fines were being imposed by district national committees (local governing bodies) against the kulaks (village rich) on charges of sabotaging the nation's five-year plan.

The agrarian campaign appeared to be a counterpart of the wave of arrests last month in cities which rounded up thousands of independent businessmen and other middle class elements.

Informed diplomatic quarters interpreted the new drive as part of the communist class warfare plan and a prelude to collectivization of the land along the Soviet pattern.

Officially the government has remained silent on the campaign, but daily reports of its progress appear in the semi-official communist party organ Rude Pravo.

Today's report made the front page.

Two months ago the government-controlled press had proclaimed a bountiful harvest with the compulsory deliveries of crops to the state exceeding the target.

Now, however, it is charged that "economic saboteurs" throughout the country failed to deliver their quotas. Some were also accused of refusing to seed arable land as directed by the government.

The searching committees are reported already to have rounded up many such "saboteurs."

National committees acted as summary courts and speedily dealt out penalties.

Rude Pravo told how the "persuading committees" aided in the campaign.

"State purchases in the district of Horice lagged at the start," the paper said. "Thereupon, the communist party and the committee of the agricultural elective decided to form four-man groups which called on the farmers and persuaded them to comply with the quotas. Then the purchases proceeded perfectly."

1-Day French General Strike Fails To Disrupt Country's Economic Life

By Robert C. Wilson

PARIS —(AP)— France's two biggest labor unions called a 24-hour general strike today but the demonstration for higher wages failed to shut down French economic life.

Transportation was disrupted. Mines and most big industries were closed.

But reports from throughout the country showed that large groups of workers insisted on staying on the job. Hundreds of thousands of Frenchmen walked or rode bicycles in a determined effort to get to work.

Socialist Cabinet Minister Eugene Thomas, who heads the post office, called the strike a "fiasco."

France's two biggest labor unions—one anti-communist, the other red dominated—got together to call the one-day demonstration strike. They want to pressure the government to give pay bonuses and end wage freezes.

But the response to the strike call, effective at midnight last night, was anything but unanimous throughout France.

Practically all domestic trains halted, as did the Paris subways and most bus lines. Mines were deserted, many ports were idle and thousands of factories were empty. Garbage cans stayed full.

Food stores everywhere were open. Aperitif-loving Frenchmen found all their cafes and bistros doing business. Most banks and the Paris stock exchange were at work. A spokesman at the postal ministry said the situation was "about normal" in the mail business all over France.

Hotels reported their staffs at normal strength. Telephone calls were accepted to all parts of France and abroad. There were no newspapers in Paris, though, and the state-owned radio was silent except for three news bulletins during the day.

Spot interviews with Parisians on the streets revealed almost unanimous opposition to the strike and determination not to lose a day's pay.

Gunman Kills 2 In Idaho Tavern

LEWISTON, Ida.—(AP)—A masked gunman coldly shot two tavern customers to death early today and sprayed a volley of shots around the room as he escaped into the darkness.

Charles Lemmons, 70, and John Hendley, 32, both of Lewiston, were shot down as they attempted to halt the killer. Neither man was armed.

Ten hours after the killings a dragnet of state, city and county police in two states had found no trace of the gunman. He had intended to rob the beer tavern, police said.

As the masked gunman walked into the Main street bar at midnight and waved a pistol at the bartender, Gladys Keller, Lemmons stepped from his booth.

"You can't do that to her," he shouted.

A single bullet caught him in the stomach, but he moved forward and grappled with the gunman briefly before collapsing and dying.

Hendley went to Lemmons' aid but also was shot, in the chest, and collapsed.

The gunman then fled, firing four more shots as he ran.

Police Captain C. H. Lee said witnesses had described the gunman as about 40, five feet seven inches tall and weighing about 155 pounds. He said the man was wearing a mustache and was clad in a black and white jacket.

Seven or eight customers were in the tavern, Lee said, when the gunman walked in and indicated it was a hold-up.

During the shooting that followed, the 40-year-old woman bartender escaped to a back room and telephoned the police.

Thanksgiving Tornado Kills 14 in Alabama

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. —(AP)— Thanksgiving Day Tornadoes roared down at four points in east Alabama yesterday and killed 14 persons. Forty-four persons were injured.

The vicious, out-of-season storms left several other persons missing and destroyed more than a score of buildings as they leap-frogged in three counties about dusk.

An entire family of 10 Negroes was wiped out near Hackneyville in Tallapoosa county, 60 miles southeast of Birmingham. The mammoth wind picked up their weatherbeaten little home and hurled it 300 yards across the road into another house.

The second house was occupied by another large family of Negroes, but none was reported hurt. Both houses were demolished — witnesses said they appeared to explode after the smashing impact.

Near Oneonta, in Blount county, two members of a white family were killed at the Easley community. The same twister hopped a small mountain and struck again on the northern outskirts of Oneonta, where 34 persons were hurt. Property damage was heavy.

Another person was killed and five injured by the tornado's fury on Sand mountain, near Valley Head in Dekalb county. Valley Head is 90 miles northeast of here.

UN Defeats Russian 'Peace Plan,' Adopts U.S.-Britain Proposal

LAKE SUCCESS—(AP)—The United Nations today rejected Russia's Big Five peace pact plan that contained a clause accusing the United States and Britain of plotting for war.

The general assembly's 59-nation political committee defeated the Moscow plan by heavy votes in paragraph by paragraph balloting and then overwhelmingly approved a counter-proposal for peace sponsored jointly by the United States and Britain.

The western plan reaffirmed faith in the UN charter and set forth 12 essential requirements for international peace and security. It was approved by a vote of 53 to 5 with one abstention.

Russia and its four satellite delegations cast the negative votes. Yugoslavia was the lone abstainer.

The so-called peace move from Moscow was the keynote of Russian policy at the current assembly. It was submitted Sept. 23 by Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, who remained in New York more than two months to prosecute Prime Minister Stalin's Soviet version of how peace and atomic energy control could be achieved.

The United States, Britain and other western powers denounced the Russian resolution as a phoney peace propaganda effort. Washington and London jointly sponsored a substitute proposal, reaffirming the basic essentials for world peace in the UN charter.

GOP Lawmakers Blast Handling Of Ward Case

WASHINGTON— (AP) —The state department's handling of the Angus Ward case was under severe republican attack today, with five lawmakers demanding the immediate firing of responsible officials "both high and low."

The congressmen, all members of the house foreign affairs committee, issued a joint statement yesterday blasting the department for its "spineless performance" in trying to get the U. S. consul general freed from a Chinese communist jail in Mukden.

The angry lawmakers called it "one of the most humiliating chapters in American diplomatic history" and declared that "the loss of face by the United States is beyond calculation."

One of the house members, Rep. Judd of Minnesota, told a reporter the United States should have tried "military action" in the Ward case instead of "ignominiously sneaking off the battlefield."

Besides Judd, the statement was signed by Reps. Chiperfield of Illinois, Vorys of Ohio, Lawrence H. Smith of Wisconsin, and Jackson of California.

The statement reserved particular criticism for Secretary of State Acheson's appeal to 30 nations—including Russia—for assistance in the Ward case.

Ward and four consulate employes were released from jail this week after being given suspended sentences by a communist court on charges of beating a Chinese employe during a disagreement about wages. They had been under arrest since October 24.

After their arrest, the state department tried unsuccessfully to get an official protest into the hands of Chinese communist officials. Finally, Acheson sent the foreign ministers of 30 countries an unprecedented appeal.

He asked them to "express to the highest Chinese authorities" in communist-held Peiping "the concern which your government undoubtedly feels" over Ward's treatment.

POLICY CRITICIZED

At the time, Senators Ives (R-NY) and Bridges (R-NH) approved the makeover, although Bridges said it wouldn't have been necessary except for "American fumbling and bumbling in China."

The five house republicans agreed with the latter view, but blasted Acheson's action.

Judd, a missionary in China before his election to congress, told a reporter:

"Over a year ago when the reds first came into Manchuria, before they had victory in the bag, we should have told them: 'Either you allow these people (such as Ward) to come out or we'll move troops in and stop you from taking other areas where Americans are.'"

VESSEL ON WAY

HONG KONG—(AP)—An American state department official was reported today bound for Shanghai aboard the freighter Sir John Franklin to try to effect the removal from communist China of Consul Angus Ward in Mukden.

The Franklin is due in Shanghai Monday. It is operated by the Isbrandtsen lines.

Word spread in Honk Kong today that Ward, who, with four members of his staff were banished from Mukden by a communist court, had already arrived in Tientsin. A U. S. consulate official said he had no information on the report.

161 Lose Lives in Holiday Death Toll

By The Associated Press

The nation's death toll in violent accidents over the Thanksgiving Day holiday was one of the highest in several years.

There were at least 161 violent deaths from 6 p.m. Wednesday to midnight Thursday. These included 103 traffic fatalities. Fifty-eight persons died in miscellaneous accidents, including fires, plane crashes, shootings, falls and hunting. Also included were 14 persons killed in Alabama tornadoes.

This year's Thanksgiving violent deaths compared to 114 over the same period last year; 128 in 1947, and 83 in 1946. The totals on Thanksgiving Day holidays during the war years also were below this year's mark.

This year's Thanksgiving day traffic deaths far exceeded last year's toll of 86.

Pasco Police Rescue Baby from Trashcan

PASCO, Wash. —(AP)— Startled garbagemen found a baby boy—"blue as a bottle of ink"—buried half way down in a refuse can behind the city police building early yesterday.

The infant let out a yell and the garbagemen rushed their "problem" to Police Sgt. Glenn Stickles.

Postponing his Thanksgiving dinner, Stickles set to work.

He found that two couples from nearby Richland had gone to a movie about a half-block from the station the previous night. One of the women had complained of illness, left the theater and subsequently was reported as missing by the other couple before showing up at home early Thursday.

"I went out there and slowly drew the story from her," Stickles recalled. "I took her to Our Lady of Lourdes hospital and the doctor ordered her to bed.

"The child already was in the hospital and is kicking and crying healthily. I guess the young mother is pretty happy now that they're together. She was certainly pretty upset."

Stickles said the mother, 18 years old and unwed, came to the tri-cities (Pasco-Richland-Kennewick) area about three weeks ago from the Puget sound area in western Washington. After leaving the theater she had given birth to the child in an empty taxicab in a vacant lot behind the police station. Then she had deposited the baby in the garbage can and headed back for Richland where she lived with a girl friend.

Pros. William J. Gaffney said he was "undecided' whether to file charges against the girl.

"But you know," mused Stickles after rejoining his family for Thanksgiving. "The 'kicker' on the whole affair is the name of the picture—a Lee Gorcey and the Bowery guys number called 'Hold That Baby.'"

Stroble Allowed To Make Plea Dec. 2

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Fred Stroble, 66-year-old former baker charged with the mutilation slaying of little Linda Joyce Glucoft, six, was arraigned today and was allowed a continuance until Dec. 2 to enter a plea.

Stroble stood mutely through the 10-minute proceeding. He informed the court he was without funds to employ a lawyer, and after E. J. Hovden, deputy city public defender got him a week's stay of plea, was led back to his cell.

More than a hundred curious persons crowded the little courtroom.

The public defender said he was not ready to have Stroble enter a plea today.

Shelton Killer In Pen for Life

OLYMPIA—(AP)—Roscoe Lee Hayton, 64-year-old confessed wife slayer, must spend the rest of his life in the state penitentiary at Walla Walla, the state board of prison terms and paroles ruled today.

Sentenced in June, 1948, at Shelton for the murder of his second wife, Hayton was one of 69 penitentiary inmates for whom the board announced minimum sentences today.

Hayton's minimum term was set at "life." He had pleaded guilty to a charge of second degree murder when arraigned in Mason county superior court.

Burglars Captured In Rooftop Chase

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Two desperados who were captured in a movie type chase over roof tops in downtown Miami while fire department searchlights glared over the scene have admitted at least 14 robberies in the Miami area.

Detective Lieut. C. O. Huttoe identified the men as George Johnson, 23, and his ex-convict brother-in-law William James McCormack, 31. The pair was cornered by two Miami patrolmen and captured after a hand to hand battle.

Huttoe said passersby heard strange sounds coming from a hardware store about 2:30 a.m. (EST). Five patrol cars, two detective cars and two fire trucks rushed to the scene as two shadowy figures scrambled over the roof tops.

Dozens of shots were fired as the fleeing pair dodged behind cornices and roof top buildings, but no one was struck.

Civil Marriages Compelled for Czechs

'Homecoming' Showing Brings Crisler Pictures to Seattle

By Lois Crisler

Well, we showed in our old home town, Seattle. It made me feel like a dual personality. In the afternoon when we went over to set up, I felt like myself.

Backstage at the Metropolitan is an enormous space, bare and tall. Black "masks," a story and a half tall, stood on each side. But they only reached half way up to the riggings overhead.

The front curtains were open. I set up over in one front corner, tucked in against the curtain. It was weighted up knee-high from the floor and its folds were so heavy I could hardly shove them off from the end of my playback.

I started to push one of the black masks farther back. It moved like a feather but when I saw it was supported by exactly one prop, like an easel, I stopped and looked up at it anxiously, afraid it would tip over on my machine.

The stage manager came over with a smile. "It won't fall," he assured me, pushing it back.

The "High Button Shoes" company were to "hang" their show here on Saturday. Two short swarthy fellows were laying out mail for the troupe on a table.

The stage manager, up a ladder out of sight, lowered sand-bags attached to ropes for Cris to haul down the screen. Diagonally up across the dark house the lordly arc projectionist in the gallery bellowed, "Level it down on the left corner. No, the right."

Cris got the p.a. system squared away and tested the mikes. The director of the lecture series checked details.

NAMES IN LIGHTS

That evening Cris put our truck in the garage and phoned for the pumpkin and mice—I mean the taxi.

I had on my new black velvet dress. Cris okayed me with his eyes. "You look like a little seal just outa watah," he said. "Slick!"

When we turned the corner and saw the Metropolitan, we lost our breath for a minute. In neon lights over the marquee were our names, HERB AND LOIS CRISLER, BEYOND THE TRAILS. It was 45 minutes till showing time, but a double line of people extended from the gallery door to the corner.

In a strange town I wouldn't have minded. But this scared me. Here at the Met I had always been on the receiving end. For a minute the conflict between the old glamour and current facts walloped my heart.

Then I burrowed down inside myself to where I could feel the old packboard straps bruising my shoulders. I relaxed and tromped in, all myself again.

We actually enjoyed showing our pictures that evening, we've seen the new ones so few times ourselves.

Afterward a friend had champagne for us. Cris tasted it. He looked like a man who has eaten a raw snail at a Chinese banquet and is trying to be polite about it.

"Don't you like it?" our host inquired incredulously.

Cris thankfully flung politeness to the winds and blurted out the truth. "You know that muddy pool in the pictures, where the cow elk's been tramplin it up? Well, this tastes like that muddy watah if you'd throw a bushel of rotten opples in it and letm lay for a month."

The next day we had our first holiday let-up for months. We were busy all day with final errands and chores. But in the afternoon I actually lay down for a half hour and in the evening we actually went to a movie.

We had good luck. It turned out to be a sneak preview of "Dancing in the Dark." It was a polished, convincing picture. But the dance routine at the climax made me realize how monotonous human contrivances ultimately are.

AT GIRLS' SCHOOL

Starting southward we stopped in at the state training school for girls, at Grand Mound, and put on an impromptu showing for them that evening.

Even the girls from "Rainbow Cottage," where newcomers are kept isolated behind barred windows for three weeks, were allowed to come over to the school building for the pictures.

They put us up in the superintendent's cottage for the night.

The girls raise a vegetable garden instead of cain. Last summer they put up 6,000 quarts of vegetables.

They bake their own bread, which is A-1 except that it is white. Give us the good old peasant "black bread"—if we can get it.

Each cottage has its own kitchen. Things were dazzlingly clean. But give me the commotion of freedom—if I can get it.

AND ALSO—

It's an old song to us to have wives chant after a showing, "I wish my husband had seen this." But at Astoria we were impressed with a new angle on that song.

As we were setting up at the First Methodist Church in Astoria, down the aisle came Evert Hough, city engineer of Aberdeen, and his 14-year-old son Wayne.

They had flown down in their Aeronca to see the pictures. Reasons? Mrs. Hough, a former student of mine, had seen them in Aberdeen a week before.

Financial Note: If I started to make a living instead of living, I'd rig up an automatic swish-cot. It would cradle you end for end instead of side to side. Cris gave with names for it. Brevo-Sleep. Shorthand Sleeper. Jato-Rest.

Housewives are already conditioned by the women's mags to get 150 per cent of zero rest time by propping their legs up on the tilted ironing board. It's old mountaineer trail advice if you're tired and have a long way to go before dark, to lie down a minute or two with your feet higher than your head.

My goal would be Jato-Cots in factories and stores. Each employe to have a ticket for two ten-minute Jato-Swishes daily.

SUNT MISCARRIES

PHILADELPHIA—(AP) — A mysterious man on a secret mission handed over a sealed envelope with money and instructions to prepare a banner reading "Goodbye George" to an aerial advertising agency just before the Penn-Cornell Thanksgiving Day game.

His orders to the agency were to fly only if Penn lost. Penn lost 29-21 and the agency flew the banner over Franklin Field, causing a stir among departing fans.

The agency said their customer—apparently no friend of Penn Coach George Munger—would not give his name or occupation.

7 New Tree Farms Win Certification

PORTLAND— (AP) — Seven new Oregon-Washington tree farms were certified today, boosting total tree farm acreage in the Douglar fir region to 3,270,692.

Oregon now has 1,166,914 acres in Douglas fir tree farms and Washington has 2,103,278 acres.

The new farms:

Oregon— Millicoma; Peter-Glenn, Columbia county, owned by Glen F. Hawkins; Valsetz Lumber Company, Polk and Lincoln counties; Western, Lincoln county, owned jointly by Saginaw Timber Company, Dant & Russell, and Inman-Poulson Lumber Co.

Washington—Mayre Bros. Logging Co., Jefferson and Grays Harbor counties; Kitsap, in Kitsap county, and Blakely in Mason and Grays Harbor counties, the last two owned by Port Blakely Mill Co.

No More Gifts for Schoolteachers

BETHLEHEM, Pa.—(AP)—The Bethlehem school board has turned thumbs down on Christmas gifts for the teacher—too much competition between little Johnny and his classmates.

Joseph W. Hedge, superintendent of schools, said yesterday board members decided the competitive nature of the gift giving among school children had become too expensive for smaller income families to bear.

Not that an occasional apple or cookie for the teacher is objectionable, Hedge said. It's just that children who can't afford expensive Christmas presents sometimes have given way to a feeling of frustration.

From now on in Bethlehem—a city that goes in for Christmas in a great big way—the kids will have to hand teacher her Christmas gift away from the classroom.

Russia Claims U.S. Spurs Spain Industry

MOSCOW — (AP) — Soviet armed forces newspaper Red Star said today the Americans are moving German war industries into Spain.

The paper also claimed there was wide-scale partisan fighting in Spain with most of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's army engaged in battles with guerrillas.

The Americans, the newspaper said, are putting the German war plants into operation with the help of thousands of Hitlerite specialists working under American direction.

Worried Over Meal, Mother Takes Life

McKEESPORT, Pa. —(AP)— Police said a young mother leaped to her death from a bridge over the Youghiogheny river after worrying about Thanksgiving dinner for her husband and four children.

The body of Mrs. Helen Swarm, 33, was recovered from the river yesterday, four hours after her steelworker husband, John, was awakenened by one of the children who told him "mother's gone."

Police said Swarm told them he and his wife attended a dance Wednesday night.

"On the way home she began to worry about how she'd bake the 20-pound turkey that had been given us," he told police. "We haven't a roasting pan."

"She was very nervous and easily upset about trifles," he added.

PENINSULA PROFILE—44

Max Schmuck Rose to Prominence In County After Start on Farm

By Haidee M. Hampton

Thirty-nine years ago Max Schmuck, 17-year-old German boy who couldn't speak English, came to America to visit his brother. The visit was by special permission of the German government because he already was of compulsory military age.

The boy never returned to enter the Germany army despite threatening letters received in 1913 prior to Germany's entering the first world war. Instead he adopted America as his homeland.

Max Schmuck

Today at 57 he is a successful and respected member of his community, and an example of the immigrant who appreciates what America can offer and has helped in its betterment.

He was born at Brockstedt, 75 miles from Hamburg, September 15, 1892, the eleventh child of a dairy farmer. Brought up in the routine of the farm, he had a solid background of knowledge to carry on this work in America.

Today he owns 160 acres of the fertile Dungeness valley named the Rose City Guernsey Dairy Farm, which supports 70 dairy cows.

BOUGHT FARM IN 1919

It was a credit to the boy's industry and character when Donald McInnes Sr. sold him the farm in 1919.

"He took a liking to me and practically gave it to me without any down payment," Schmuck says.

Young Max worked in partnership with his brother Ernest A. Schmuck for two years. Then his brother moved to another farm, leaving Max to take care of the land which was to become his.

Previously for five months he tried living with another brother, William, a sheep rancher at Deer Lodge, Mont. When 18 inches of snow fell in September the boy remembered the mild weather on the coast.

"We had practically no winter at all in 1911," he recalls. So he moved back. Dungeness then was a "lively town" with several saloons, and a hotel.

Hard work managing the farm with 18 to 20 cows to care for left him little time for other things including additional schooling. But he did join Sequim Prairie Grange in 1919.

COMMUNITY ACTIVITIES

The following year he became a member of the Clallam County Agricultural Council, then being organized. In 1926 he became its president, and also started the first county 4-H Calf Club, a council project. He was leader of this group for three years with 33 boys looking to him for guidance. Today the county has six clubs, mostly in the Sequim area.

Becoming interested in community affairs, he joined the farmers' cooperative movement. The Clallam County Cooperative organization was formed in 1934. The cooperative started as the Dungeness Gas and Oil, through which farmers got these products in boatloads and stored them at Dungeness.

Later Charles Fitzgerald was president of the group, which bought the Ford garage in Sequim and started a store to sell groceries and hardware.

Enterprises which interested Schmuck were those destined to grow successfully. Four years later the store did $35,000 worth of business. Now it is almost a million dollar concern.

Schmuck became a director of the cooperative in 1939, and still is.

In 1938 the Dungeness Cooperative Creamery elected him a director. He held that position until 1943 when he rented his farm. This automatically removed him from the board because directors must be actual shippers of dairy products.

BECOMES COMMISSIONER

In 1940 the Grange started promoting a Clallam county public utility district.

"I was taking inventory in the store," he recalls, "when they came to me and asked if they could use my name as candidate for commissioner. It was the last day of filing. I said 'sure, go ahead.' I had no intention of being a commissioner for 10 years!" But he was elected, and currently serves as president of the PUD board.

Pomona Grange, the senior Grange of the county, chose him for its master in 1945. He has held this office since, being reelected each year. He also is a member of the Clallam County Farm Bureau and Naval Lodge of Elks.

He now lives in semi-retirement, having rented his farm in 1943 when ill health and lack of help forced him into the move.

The 160-acre farm grows all the hay used for the 70 cattle. In 1943 Schmuck found himself with 65 cows to milk, 50 head of young stock to care for as well as the general farm work. Although he had milking machines to help, he well remembers "when the juice was off, and I had to milk by hand!"

He is proud of the part he played in getting the county PUD. When people tell him the interruptions in power never occurred when Puget Sound Power and Light served the community, Schmuck replies: "They forget."

MODERN FARM HOME

The big modern 96x130 foot concrete floored barn on his farm can accommodate 80 cows, 40 on either side. He built it in 1930, after building a smaller one.

In 1939 he built his modern home, a half-mile northwest of Sequim. It is one of the finest homes in the district, sitting neatly beside the road, a symbol of the reward which comes from hard work.

Although he doesn't have the farm work to do now, he is busy with Grange and PUD affairs. Being Grange master automatically makes him delegate to Grange conventions for a week each year. He also is responsible for seeing that the state Grange programs are properly introduced in his county. He travels to various subordinate Grange halls in the county with other officers for the Pomona meetings.

Each Saturday finds him at PUD headquarters in Port Angeles for a business meeting, and he keeps an eye on PUD affairs in the east end of the county especially.

Solidly built, husky and with slow deliberate movements, he has the characteristic German habit of reserving judgment until he knows all the facts. He will listen quietly to a lengthy discussion or heated argument and then with a few pertinent questions clarify the issue for himself.

Business associates call him a "good steady fellow," a tribute to the soundness of his reasoning and business dealings.

He and his wife, Iris, have three children attending Sequim schools. Letha Maxine, is a junior in high school, and Shirley Lorraine and Ronald Dale are in junior high. In addition Mr. Schmuck has three married children, Mrs. Katherine Dugdale of Mount Pleasant, Max Jr., of Sequim and Henry in Arizona.

SEATTLE GETS STAMP

SEATTLE —(AP)— First national sale of a new 25-cent postage stamp is scheduled for Seattle Nov. 30. The stamp shows a Seattle-built Boeing stratocruiser against a Pacific ocean background. Postmaster George E. Starr said it is expected to be of widespread interest to stamp collectors.

About 330,000 British and French troops were evacuated to England in the epic allied retreat from Dunkerque in May, 1940.

WHAT'S QUICKER than a flash? It could be a little bird called a bittern, smallest member of the heron family. Here is one held by Mrs. Peter H. Snyder, amateur ornithologist and member of the Audubon Society, who rescued it from San Diego, Calif., lawyer's office. It was terrorizing the lawyer and his staff. They were afraid of its knitting-needle beak lunging quicker than a flash. A stenographer called Mrs. Snyder, who now feeds it small frogs and minnows. It snatches its food so fast that a camera set at 1/400 of a second can't quite catch the action without a blur. It lunges nine inches. Bitterns usually are so tricky about concealing themselves that they are seldom seen, says

Hunter Takes Life After Fatal Shot

PEMBROKE, Ga.—(AP)—A Thanksgiving Day turkey hunter committed suicide after he apparently had mistaken a red kerchief for a cock's comb and killed his aunt.

The dead were identified by Sheriff E. W. Miles of Bryan county as Mrs. Bertha Goodman, 35, and William E. Ruff, 29, both of Savannah.

Sheriff Miles said Mrs. Goodman was wearing a red kerchief when she and Ruff took stands about 30 paces apart for the shoot yesterday.

Apparently, said Miles, Ruff spotted Mrs. Goodman's red kerchief bobbing in the thick brush along the Ogeechee river and fired.

Mrs. Goodwin's husband, who had taken a position some distance away, said he came running up when the shot was fired and found Ruff kneeling with Mrs. Goodman in his arms.

Goodman said Ruff cried, "Oh, my God, I've killed your wife." Before he could stop him, Goodman related, Ruff placed a shotgun against his head and fired.

Burglar Calls in Alarm—But Not Of His Own Wishes

CHICAGO—(AP)—A man who called the Austin police station last night said he wanted to report that an attempted burglary had been halted and the prisoner was in custody.

Then the caller asked Sgt. John Gilfeather to send a patrol wagon to 1327 North Ridgeway avenue to take the burglar to jail.

When Gilfeather asked the name of the complainant, the caller said: "This is the burglar."

The sergeant suspected he was being the butt of a joke but he sent a police squad to the address and found the caller. He was identified as Andrew Thomas, 29, of Detroit, who police said had a prison record dating to 1935.

Before Thomas was taken to jail he was given first aid treatment at a hospital for cuts on his hand and bruises on his face. They were inflicted, police learned, by Fred Zalepanski, a husky 22-year-old truck driver.

Thomas had attempted to escape when Zalepanski found him ransacking his home. They fought, and Thomas, some 60 pounds lighter than the 200-pound Zalepanski, was knocked out twice. Finally, Fred forced Thomas to remove his trousers and walk to a neighbor's. Then Zalepanski ordered him to telephone police and report an attempted burglary had been foiled.

JOE DI MAGGIO, born Nov. 25, 1914, in Martinez, Cal., son of a crab fisherman. He is one of baseball's brightest stars—idol of thousands of urchins on sandlot teams. As a New York Yankee, he is one of the greatest batters and center fielders and one of the highest paid players of all time. He has played in eight world series. As a boy DiMaggio sold newspapers to help support his family. When his brother Vince joined the San Francisco Seals, Joe watched them work through a knothole in the fence. By 1932 he had worked his way onto the team. Four years later he went to the Yankees.

Peron Opposition Condemns Raids

BUENOS AIRES—(AP)—An opposition member of the congressional committee on anti-Argentine activities condemned today as "unauthorized" the seizure of business offices of newspapers and news agencies in Buenos Aires.

Acting in the name of the full committee, a two-man subcommittee of Peronist deputies, Jose Emilio Visca and Rodolfo P. Decker, took over the account books of The Associated Press, the The United Press and seven Buenos Aires newspapers.

The subcommittee announced its purpose was to ascertain the source of funds supporting the coalition which tried to defeat Juan D. Peron for the presidency in 1946.

The news agencies and newspapers continued to make normal collections and payments, and carried out news gathering and distributing operations as usual.

Trouble From Communists Nothing New For Angus Ward, Colorful U. S. Consul

By Rowland Evans, Jr.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Angus Ivan Ward, Americon consul general now released from a jail in Mukden, Manchuria, has been guarding the diplomatic frontiers between the U. S. and the Soviet Union for half his life.

The world's distant corners have become accustomed to the striding figure of the tall, 56-year old diplomat, who spends much of his spare time hiking the country-side, clad in colorful lumberjackets and a blue beret, his Van Dyke beard bristling in leeward and his stout walking cane swinging along beside him.

Ward has been either in or facing against the Soviet Union ever since 1925, when he started his foreign service as vice-consul in the same city where he lay imprisoned for a month. A year later he moved south of the great wall to Tientsin as vice-consul.

His next important assignment took him to Moscow in February, 1934, a few months after the Roosevelt-Litvinov agreement which brought U. S. recognition of the Soviet government.

William C. Bullitt, first U. S. ambassador to the Soviet and Ward's chief there, describes him as a man of "very great character and restraint who has the courage to take over duties which few Americans would dare to face."

Those duties sent Ward to Vladivostok in 1940, where he opened what was then the only American consulate in Russia, outside Moscow. It has since been closed.

The consulate general where Ward lived was bathed in bright searchlight all night, every night. He and his staff were virtual prisoners in the cold Russian port of the golden horn.

The Canadian-born diplomat left Vladivostok in 1944, and came back to the U. S.

He was soon off again, this time to Teheran, capital of Iran. There he and Ambassador George Allen fought the diplomatic battle of Azerbaijan and both were instrumental in keeping that province within the northern Iranian boundary.

In 1946 Ward left Teheran, (where he had augmented his collection of fine rugs) for his present post in Mukden.

He and his Finnish wife also collect pets, and took a white duck with them from Teheran to Mukden. Also part of the household at Mukden were three prize angora cats.

Although Ward quit his formal education after the usual four years of undergraduate work, he is known to be a man of rare culture and scholarship. He speaks fluent Russian, German, French, Chinese and some Mongolian dialects. He is a top expert on Mongolia.

RICE TO PHILIPPINES

SYDNEY, Australia—(AP) — The Australian Red Cross today flew the first of six tons of rice to typhoon victims in the Philippines. Another 12 tons will be shipped by boat next month.

The typhoon, which roared through the Philippines Nov. 1, left more than 500 persons dead and over 450 missing. Damage was estimated at $400,000.

Most of the war damage having been repaired, Dunkerque has regained its pre-war rank as France's fourth busiest harbor.

'Music for Everyone' Is Theme of Little Symphony Concert Next Monday Night

Port Angeles Little Symphony orchestra will present its first concert Monday at the Olympian theatre beginning at 8 p.m.

The program features Arvilla Woodard as guest artist with several members of the orchestra contributing solo parts.

Choosing "Music for Everyone" as the theme, Conductor Neil S. Thomas has arranged a variety of favorite compositions.

The program will begin with the lively march "Colonel Bogey" by Kenneth J. Alford. Following is "The New Moon" by Sigmund Romberg and then a two piano duet "Black Eyes," played by Elna Chamberlin and Cleo Kocman.

A Mexican melody, "La Golondrina," with trumpet duet by C. M. Payne and Kenneth Tinkham, and and a tone picture, "By the Blue Hawaiian Waters," will complete the first half of the program.

Following intermission the orchestra opens with "If I Were King" with Elna Chamberlin playing the piano cadenza. A symphonic transcription, "Two Guitars," featuring the string section of the orchestra, follows a concert arrangement of "Begin the Beguine" with horn solo by Wayne Roth and trumpet solo by Kenneth Tinkham.

A medley of Victor Herbert favorites, arranged by Harold Sanford, and the "American Patrol" by F. W. Meacham will conclude the program.

ORCHESTRA MEMBERS

Thirty-seven local people contribute their talents to the orchestra. In the violin section are Don Smock, Lillian Thomas, Pat Mulholland, Helen Tradewell, Leslie Day, Eddie Hendrickson, Jeanne Harlow, Jack Venables Jr., Erma Smith, John B. Paul, Wayne Shields, Majorie Leetham, Mary Kitselman, Merle Bailey, Gerry Smith, Lucie Grace and Peggy Boyd.

German Socialists Violently Oppose Agreement With West

BONN, Germany — (AP) — West Germany's parliament today approved the new allied-German agreement relaxing occupation controls.

But opposition during the tumultous, all night session was so bitter that Socialist Leader Kurt Schumacher was barred from the assembly's next 20 sessions for insulting Chancellor (Premier) Konrad Adenauer.

"Chancellor of the Allies" was the taunt hurled by Schumacher at Adenauer that brought the opposition leader's suspension. It came after the socialist bitterly objected to west Germany's promise to participate in the international control authority for Germany's rich industrial Ruhr, which the Germans previously have boycotted.

In the agreement signed by Adenauer and the high commissioners of the United States, Britain and France, west Germany agreed also to maintain demilitarization, to continue to eradicate nazism, and to support controls against German cartels and monopolies.

In return the allies ended dismantling in at least 18 German steel, rubber and chemical plants. They also agreed to German consular and commercial relations abroad, rebuilding of a limited German merchant marine for foreign trade and allied sponsorship of German membership in international organizations.

In the hot debate which preceded the vote, Schumacher criticized the chancellor for agreeing to recognize the international authority to control the industrial Ruhr. To his "chancellor of the allies" taunt conservative deputies replied with shouts of "insolence," catcalls and boos.

They banged their desk lids, some rushed from the rostrum to grab the microphone. Deputies leaped to their feet, shouted and screamed.

When order was restored, the session recessed for the council of elders to consider action against Schumacher.

VESSEL DISABLED

LOS ANGELES—(AP)— The Greek passenger liner Aegean made temporary repairs after wallowing disabled in rolling seas off Point Conception all day yesterday. The 325-foot vessel, formerly the passenger liner Princess Alice, proceeded under its own power to Santa Barbara. It is en route from Vancouver, B.C., to Greece.

Why Does Tito Want Mestrovic Home?

By Dewitt Mackenzie
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Ivan Mestrovic, the famous Yugoslav sculptor who is in voluntary exile in America, tells me Marshal Tito has urged him not once but many times during the past three years to return to his native land—but Mestrovic is sitting tight for the present, at least.

This great artist, whose work aroused the enthusiasm of the immortal Rodin, is teaching sculpture at Syracuse University fine arts school. He says he likes S.U. and its friendly atmosphere.

There undoubtedly is a stirring story back of Mestrovic's repeated refusal to return to the land he loves. However, he chooses to preserve the Mestrovic-Tito mystery. I had a long chat with him a couple of days ago and he epitomized the reason for his decision thus:

"I am not in sympathy with the regime."

Mestrovic is rated as one of Yugoslavia's great patriots; he is a red-hot nationalist and dislikes dictatorships of all sorts; he is strongly religious and has been a staunch supporter of the Catholic church, one of his close friends being Archbishop Stepinac. The archbishop is now in a Yugoslav prison under a sixteen year sentence on a charge of collaboration with the Axis powers.

Mestrovic comes from a Croat peasant family. All his people consistently fought for freedom and against any sort of dictatorship. More than incidentally he believes that all dictatorships stultify art — a fact which may help explain his attitude toward the Tito regime.

Ivan's father was a stone mason who, among other things, carved ornaments, such as crosses, from stone. It was from the father that the small boy got his first lessons in "sculpture." The lad also started his education in books at home, with the encouragement of his father and mother. His mother was very religious, and passed this on to her son.

His eager pursuit of art was mixed with farm work. When he was fifteen he was apprenticed to a stone cutter in Split, and there he added to his knowledge of rudimentary sculpture. His unusual skill finally was recognized, and he was accepted by the art academy in Vienna. He went through many hard times before he began to sell his works.

He always remained a man of the people. He even refused a commission to execute figures to decorate one of the royal palaces in Vienna, although acceptance would have added greatly to his reputation as an artist. Political and artistic freedom were his by-words.

Just before the first world war he went to Paris to study, and there became a friend of Rodin, who was loud in his praise. From then on his name increasingly ran around the world.

He returned to Yugoslavia and did many public monuments for his country. He became rector of the Academy of Art at Zagreb. Then came the second world war. He was imprisoned, but finally with the help of the vatican he got away to Switzerland.

When the war was over Yugoslavia had lost her freedom to communism. So he felt that he couldn't return home, instead he came to America and undertook work at Syracuse University.

That brings us up to the very natural question of just why Tito keeps pressing for Mestrovic to return to Yugoslavia. Has the marshal anything up his sleeve? It strikes me personally that it's a fair guess Tito wants Mestrovic back because he is the outstanding figure in the country's field of art. The sculptor is a Yugoslav institution in himself. The nation can't spare him.

DOUBLE TROUBLE

SEATTLE—(AP)— John Anderson, Fort Lawton soldier, probably feels that Seattle police are "rubbing it in."

Anderson was taken to the Fort Lawton Hospital with a leg injury after what Patrolmen T. M. Stone and N. A. Curtis called "running into an automobile" while crossing a street.

In addition to his leg injury, Anderson also had a police citation—for jaywalking.

Johnson Praises Navy For New Reserve Plan

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Secretary of Defense Johnson today handed the navy some warm words of praise for figuring out a way to increase reserve training by 10,000 men at a saving of $2,000,000 a year.

Johnson, whose proposed cuts in navy appropriations were strongly criticized before congress by high navy officers recently, said in a statement:

"This is the kind of teamwork that counts. It is the kind of cooperation that General Joseph T. McNarney and his department of defense management committee receive in carrying out our economy program.

"The navy has set a splendid example by the way it has reorganized its sea-going reserve training program for economy and efficiency."

Under the new plan, the announcement said, at least 4,330 officers and 42,800 enlisted men can be trained afloat each year—a gain of more than 10,000 over the number of reservists given two weeks' training duty in the reserve training ships during 1949.

Need More Helpers To Decorate Streets

More volunteers are needed to erect Christmas decorations in the Port Angeles business district Sunday.

Anyone who will assist in the work can report at the Elks' temple Sunday morning at 8:30, President Hugh Hankins of the merchants division of the Chamber of Commerce announces.

Volunteers have signed up from the naval reserve, the Hi-Y, Boy Scouts and American Legion, but not enough manpower is available from these units to complete the decorating in one day as planned. Names may be telephoned to 7477, the Chamber of Commerce office, or the workers may report directly to the Elks temple. Lunch will be furnished, Hankins said.

AID TO GERMANY

HAMBURG—(AP)— Since the end of the war every man, woman and child in the United Kingdom has contributed four pounds to the feeding and maintenance of the Germans, an official British report revealed. The report said that Britain has spent over 200,000,000 pounds since 1945.

City Commissioners Let Gas, Oil Bids

Next year the city will buy its gasoline from the Texas Co. and diesel fuel oil for equipment from the Richfield Oil Co. Texas Co. will supply gasoline at the maximum prices of .206 cents for non-premium and .2235 for premium gasoline, less federal tax on a maximum basis of 100,000 gallons. The city will benefit from any reduction in prices, a company representative explained at Wednesday's commission meeting.

Richfield offered the city diesel oil at .119 cents per gallon on 400 gallons or more with an allowance of .006 cents per gallon less than the posted tank wagon price.

Standard Oil of California bid for oil was .129 cents on 40-199 gallons, .124 cents on 199-399 gallons and .119 on 400 gallons or over.

Gasoline bids were posted at delivery date less 1½ cents per gallon.

Tidewater Associated Co. bid posted price with 1 cent discount.

Shell Oil Co. bid posted price with 1½ cents and 1¾ cents discount on non-premium and premium gasoline.

City Fuel Co. bid posted price on diesel oil.

City Light Supt. J. J. McLean will report his recommendation next week on bids submitted by 15 manufacturers and distributors of transformers. Approximate cost of the transformers is $21,585.

Cars Collide On East First Street

Cars driven by Daniel A. Donahue, 1208 South Cherry, and Harry J. Williquette, 303 East Ninth, collided in front of Birney's Drive-in on East First street at about 10:30 yesterday morning. Donahue and his wife and daughter were en route to Sequim for the football game in which their son Dan was participating.

Police Sgt. James Geib reported that Williquette's car, coming west on First, cut in front of the Donahue vehicle toward the drive-in restaurant. The front ends of both cars were damaged, and Mrs. Donahue received an injured left knee.

In police court today, Williquette was fined $15 for failure to yield the right of way, and given a 30-day jail sentence, suspended on condition he pay for injuries and damages to the Donahues and their car.

Marine-Air News

The cutter Winona, which left here Tuesday night to assist the freighter Panamanian Eagle, afire 360 miles off the Washington coast, returned to her station here Thursday morning. Then the cutter left again last night for San Diego for gunnery practice. The cutter is due back in about two weeks. The fire in the freighter's engine room was extinguished and the vessel proceeded to her Longview, Wash., destination under her own power. The Winona had traveled about half the distance to the location of the vessel when she was turned back.

Puget Sound Pilots report that four of them were at the Ediz hook station for Thanksgiving dinner, which consisted of turkey and all the trimmings.

Seven outbound vessels dropped pilots here the past 24 hours. They were the Idaho Falls, Magnolia State, Longview Victory, John Good, Mission San Fernandana and Salanda. Inbound were General Darby and David Shanks, both army transports, and the Albert Brown.

Thanksgiving Day travel by Black Ball ferry across the strait was light, George Mock, local agent reports. Big tides for several days have slowed up loading and unloading the ferry Chinook.

Otto Larsen, with an eight pound salmon, is on the bottom rung of the 100-run winter qualifying ladder of the Port Angeles Salmon Club. On the top rung is Gene Caulkins with a 25 pound, three ounce fish. The ladder ends December 31. Fishing was heavy Thursday morning. This morning about 15 strip fishermen are on the log boom in the harbor south of the Ediz hook clubhouse.

DROUGHT CUTS DEER FOOD

WRECKED AIRLINER FOUND— Closeup map (top) shows area on Harum Peninsula near Oslo, Norway, where wreckage of the Dutch DC-3 airliner with 29 Jewish refugee children aboard was found in a rugged wilderness. Rescue parties ordered to the scene from Drammen (1), the nearest large town, reported "noises" in the buried fuselage. A 11-year-old boy was removed alive from the wreckage, but it is believed at least 30 and probably 34 died in the crash.

Girl Stays With Dead Sister After Falling

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— A twelve-year-old girl in a state of near exhaustion was found Thanksgiving Day beside the dead body of her younger sister under a 100-foot high trestle.

The girls apparently had fallen from the railroad bridge. In a moment of consciousness the injured girl said her sister fell "through the trestle, I heard her scream and ran to help her and I fell through too."

Their discovery by five boys playing on the banks of the ravine the trestle bridges ended an all-night search for the girls. They were last seen Wednesday after they were dismissed from school.

The dead girl was 11-year-old Elsie Jeanne Henry. Her sister is named Jannie Betty. They were third and fourth grade pupils, daughters of James F. Henry of nearby Rutledge.

The banks of the gulch are so steep that ropes had to be used to help carry out Betty and her dead sister.

Betty is in a serious condition at Chester Hospital, Chester, suffering from shock, 17 hours of exposure, and internal bleeding. An examination showed no outward marks on her sister's body but indicated death may have been caused by bleeding into a lung.
