Engineer Completes 10-Day Survey of City Water System

G. L. Geisinger, consulting engineer of Seattle, has completed a 10-day survey of the Port Angeles domestic water system. He will submit a report on his findings and recommendations for assuring an adequate supply of water at all times to commissioners next week.

Geisinger's work climaxes a six months' collection of data on the water system by the city's engineering department, Commissioner Edward B. Taylor said.

Taylor said Geisinger's report will be particularly valuable because he is familiar with water problems here, having been employed at Crown Zellerbach Corporation. He now works for the Northwest Filter Co. which designed the filtering equipment for local pulp mills.

"Our problem," Taylor explained," was to make a decision on whether or not to keep our present source of water as the main source."

He said he knows some of Geisinger's recommendations, but wants the full report before commenting upon them.

The report will contain suggestions on what the city should do to provide a dependable and adequate supply of water now, and a long-range plan of improvement to cover the next 20 years.

It will include recommendations on turbidity, adequate storage, improvements at the dam, emergency supplies, estimated cost and quantities, including amount of pipe necessary. Estimated total cost of the recommended charges and a breakdown on them will be included in the report.

Diphtheria Case Reported in City

Dr. Philip Risser, district health officer, today reported a case of diphtheria in Port Angeles.

The patient is a pre-school boy who is receiving treatment at his home.

Doctor Risser said that the child apparently had not contacted other children to any extent during the illness.

The health officer emphasized that while one case of the disease is no cause for alarm, parents should make sure that their children are immunized against it. Immunization prevents the spread of the disease, and those immune to it serve as "buffers" to stop possible epidemics, he said.

It is the first case of diphtheria in the city this year.

Forks Gets New Town Marshal

Ernest Murray, formerly of Butte, Mont., assumed duties as town marshal at Forks, last week succeeding Herbert Steinberg. Marshal Murray also will be night patrolman in the town.

One of the new officer's duties will be the enforcement of a recently enacted two hour automobile parking ordinance. Signs are being erected on several of the town's main streets, calling attention to the ordinance.

Marshal Murray recently was with the traffic division of the Portland, Ore., police department and previously was a deputy sheriff in Nevada.

17 Counties in State Adopt Work Relief

OLYMPIA—(AP)—Seventeen of the state's 39 counties have adopted the policy of employing able applicants for general welfare assistance on "work relief projects," reports at a meeting of county welfare administrators indicated yesterday.

In Yakima county, Administrator George Hollenbeck said some 500 such persons are working on 20 projects — improving school grounds, cleaning and repairing irrigation ditches and other work of a similar nature.

Hollenbeck said the men are paid $6 a day in state assistance—slightly less than the going pay scale in order to provide an incentive for getting off the relief rolls.

Snohomish county Administrator George Smith of Everett said work there is primarily road work. Workers receive the going scale.

Fishermen Saved When Boat Sinks

NANAIMO, B. C.—(CP)—Three fishermen survived a two-hour ordeal last night in an open skiff after their fishboat sank in 120 fathoms off Nanaimo.

They were rescued by the Manhattan II, under Capt. Randy Thompson, who put out from Nanaimo in answer to an SOS.

Heavy seas tore a hole in the 50-foot seiner Faith of Sechart and Capt. John Widas of Langley Prairie and his two-man crew just had time to launch the skiff before the vessel went down. The crew members were Engineer Steve Pavelich of Lulu island, and cook Stan Netonovich, Mission, B. C.

"We couldn't have stayed afloat much longer," said Capt. Widas. "We were up to our necks in water, and our bodies were getting numb when the Manhattan came in sight."

EDITOR DIES

PROSSER—(AP)— Robert Emmett Gay, 67, editor publisher of the Prosser Record-Bulletin since 1928, died today after a short illness.

Gay published the paper in Harrington before purchasing the Record-Bulletin. He entered newspaper work in 1918.

THE GUEST COULDN'T EAT—Acting President of the Chinese Nationalists Li Tsung-Jen and Mrs. Li chat with Albert Chow, "mayor" of San Francisco's Chinatown, at a banquet given in Li's honor on his arrival from Hongkong. President Li was delighted at the hearty welcome, but was unable to partake of the banquet as he is suffering from stomach ulcers. The Nationalist leader, who is en route to New York for medical treatment, said his visit was "purely unofficial."

County Prosecutors Meet in Olympia To Discuss Court's Pinball Decision

OLYMPIA—(AP)—It was still not definitely certain today just how widespread an effect the supreme court's declaration of pinball machines as "gambling devices" will have.

Prosecuting attorneys of 19 counties—less than half the 39 such districts in the state—discussed the matter informally here yesterday. A post-meeting statement indicated they could not agree.

Edward G. Cross of Ritzville, president of the Washington State Association of Prosecuting Attorneys, said after the meeting broke up that it was the "consensus of the majority . . . that pinball machines should cease operations not more than 30 days after the date of final decision by the supreme court of the state of Washington in the Miller case. . . ."

He did not indicate the nature of the minority's opposition, or whether prosecutors of the 20 counties not represented at the meeting were expected to follow the lead of those counties barring the machines. Names of the counties participating in the meeting were not announced.

(Clallam County Prosecutor Dana E. Harper was among those attending the meeting. He told the Evening News today "it would be my inclination to go along with the majority.")

The court decision resulted from action by Gerald Miller and David Caudill, Spokane pinball machine operators, to prevent the city of Spokane from arresting or molesting them while operating pinball machines. In a unanimous five-judge opinion, the court refused their request on grounds that pinball machines were gambling devices and as much outlawed by a 1909 state law.

Their attorney, Wilmot Garvin, asked a rehearing by the full nine-judge court. The request was joined in yesterday by a Seattle law firm—McMicken, Rupp and Schweppe.

The Seattle group contended the 1909 law was superseded by a 1941 law giving cities and towns authority to regulate pinballs.

The 1941 law set up machinery for collecting taxes on pinball machines. The Seattle firm contended this authorization was a legislative creation of local option.

The supreme court hasn't decided yet whether it will rehear the case or stand on its original decision.

Power Interrupted On Bonneville Line

PORTLAND—(AP)—Failure of the Chehalis-Covington 230-kilovolt power line at 6:50 a.m. today caused a widespread but brief interruption in Washington state.

Bonneville power administration reported that when the 230-kv line went out, from unexplained cause, the surge knocked out one of the north Bonneville-Midway lines and the Chehalis-Longview line.

Service was restored in six minutes. The aluminum plants of Alcoa at Vancouver and Reynolds at Troutdale were cut off briefly.

Prisoners Revolt At Florida Camp

KEY WEST, Fla.—(AP)—One negro prisoner was killed and two other persons were injured during a day-long rebellion at the state road camp on Big Pine Key, 40 miles north of here.

Capt. L. C. Hill, in charge of five guards at the camp for 24 negro prisoners, said the situation was now "completely under control."

State Prison Inspector Charles S. Dean said a "full investigation" will determine what may be done with prisoners taking part in the rebellion all day yesterday.

The dead prisoner was 23-year-old Paul Rex Johnson, serving a four year term for manslaughter.

Dean was slightly burned on the arm and prison trusty James Brown's right eye was burned when prisoners threw potash on them.

Tear gas bombs ended the rebellion and drove the prisoners to surrender shortly after dark.

Sky Watchers Can See Meteors Tonight

WASHINGTON— (AP) — A whole flock of meteors with flaming tails are due to begin cavorting about the skies tonight.

The national bureau of standards figures the meteors, part of what astronomers call the geminid shower, will be visible at more than one a minute from 8 p.m. until midnight local time, wherever you are.

The shower is set for a four-night stand. The bureau of standards forecasts a "spectacular" show.

Chinese Government Now in Formosa as Chiang Flees Chengtu

TAIPEH, Formosa—(AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, titular leader of nationalist China, flew to Sichang, Sikang, in the mountain fastness of inland southwestern China today.

His flight preceded reports received here in this new provisional capital of China that communist troops were within 60 miles of Chengtu. Until yesterday Chengtu was China's fourth capital this year. Chengtu airfields were packed with Chinese hoping to escape the approaching reds.

The nationalist government started functioning here today in the bomb damaged building formerly occupied by the Japanese governor general. Formosa for 50 years was a part of Japan. American planes bombed it heavily during world war II.

The nationalists face grave economic problems here. The island's normal population of 6,000,000 has been swelled to 7,200,000 persons by an influx of nationalists — army, navy, air and political—from the mainland. The island is not able and does not want to support large mainland forces. Many of the islanders, in fact, still want to be a part of Japan or independent of the Chinese mainlanders.

Formosa lies athwart the sea and air lanes between the Philippines and Okinawa, both highly essential in the American defense plans for the western Pacific.

Longview Company Gets Safety Award

BELLINGHAM —(AP) — Longview Fibre Company was awarded the governor's safety trophy here last night at the banquet meeting of the pulp and paper industry's joint management-labor conference on safety.

The Longview company's accident frequency rate dropped from 58 per million man hours in 1946, when the first safety conference of the state's pulp and paper industry was held, to 3.3 in 1948.

William D. Welsh, Crown Zellerbach official from San Francisco and former Port Angeles Evening News editor, was toastmaster.

Fireman Gets Back Home Fast

NEWPORT, Ore. —(AP)— Fireman Mac Parsons found the weather a bit nippy today and built a roaring fire in his furnace, then reported for work at the fire station.

When he arrived, the siren was sounding and he jumped on the truck. It took him back home where he helped put out a flue fire.

WOULD BE EMPEROR

TOYKO —(AP)— Welfare officials polled local youngsters on what they want to be when they grow up.

"School teachers," said the girls.

"Baseball players," said the boys.

But one fourth grader decided there's only one job for him.

He wants to be the emperor of Japan.

State Approves Increase in Telephone Rates

OLYMPIA — (AP) — The state public service commission today granted the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. a $2,954,105 annual rate increase.

The company had requested an increase which would have been approximately $7,000,000 annually.

In the order issued today, the commission scaled down from $2,685,700 to $987,860 the company's request for increases in residence phone charges. A similar reduction, from $1,664,600 to $424,193, was made on the request for increased rates on business phones.

Under the commission's ruling, the flat increases allowed on residence service included: One-party line, 30 cents a month; two-party, 25 cents; four-party, 20 cents; and suburban, 20 cents. These increases apply to all localities.

The commission pointed out that 57 per cent of the total residential telephone use is in the four-party class.

Increases granted in the business category were 50 cents a month on one-party flat service; 40 cents on one-party message service; 40 cents two-party flat service; 30 cents, semi-public; and 25 cents, suburban.

The ruling allowed a six per cent rate of return to the company in place of the seven per cent requested, Ray Clifford, commission member said.

The rate of return was computed upon the company's actual account records for the 12-month period ending June 30, 1949, he said.

REFUSED FULL REQUEST

He said the commission had refused to consider estimates presented for the latter part of this year which were designed to show the need for additional revenue.

Clifford said the commission last August granted the company an interim increase of $619,000 to take care of wage increases which went into effect then. That rate increase applied only to incidental services.

He said that with this increase added to the boost granted today, the total additional gross revenue is only 52.3 per cent of the amount requested. This compares with a $26,400,000 increase granted this year in California, which was 68.7 per cent of the amount asked there, he said. Clifford added that a $3,563,892 increase recently put into effect in Oregon was 87 per cent of the total increase requested.

House Probers Look Toward Canada in Uranium Investigation

WASHINGTON— (AP) —House spy probers tracing reported uranium leak to Russia turned their eyes toward Canada today amid indications that their inquiry may become a hot 1950 political issue.

Two investigators for the un-American activities committee were reported in Canada, where an official confirmed yesterday that 1,000 pounds of uranium compounds were shipped to Russia via Great Falls, Mont., in 1943.

Committee sources insisted that these two developments were not related, but reports persisted that the committee may renew its once-abandoned effort to obtain records of a court action in New York by the Canadian government in connection with uranium sales.

The investigators are due to return before the committee's next scheduled hearing on December 19, when two former minor officials connected with the lend-lease program are to be quizzed.

On that date, also, the committee may reach a final decision on former Vice-President Henry A. Wallace's request for a hearing.

Last night Wallace objected to the committee's delay in hearing him. He told the committee the delay made the committee "a party to this attempt at character assassination."

Senator Byrd Says U.S. Could Save 7½ Billion 'Without Superhuman Effort'

By Edwin B. Haakinson

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senator Byrd (D-Va) today sought to lead the nation away from the "economic primrose path of indefinite deficit financing" with a plan calling for a $7,500,000,000 slash in federal spending.

Byrd issued a 4,000-word statement which was virtually an abbreviated federal budget proposal for the next fiscal year, ending June 30, 1951.

It called for government expenses of only $36,000,000,000 during that 12-month period, compared with Byrd's estimate that expenses for fiscal 1950 will total some $43,500,000,000.

Even his proposed budget, Byrd argued, would be $2,000,000,000 more than President Truman's budget for fiscal 1948—"which ended only 18 months ago."

"It can be achieved without superhuman effort," Byrd said. "It can be reached principally by foregoing non-essential increases and elimination of administrative inefficiency, extravagance and waste."

The senator issued the proposal as the latest step in his long battle to reduce government spending, which is expected to exceed income this year by more than $5,000,000,000.

He differed sharply with Mr. Truman's position that the only way to keep government income in line with outgo at this time is by raising taxes.

"To impose new taxes on top of the existing burdensome, and in many instances, almost confiscatory taxation would put us in a position where any minor business decline could easily be accelerated into a major recession," he said.

LISTS 3 CHOICES

Byrd said congress in January has three choices:

1. Increase taxes by more than $7,000,000,000.

2. Hold the spending budget to about $36,000,000,000.

3. "Authorize expenditures totaling more than $7,000,000,000 in excess of revenue and go gayly along the economic primrose path of indefinite deficit financing."

The second choice—a balanced budget without new taxes—is the only wise one, he said.

Compared with the present year, Byrd proposed these major cuts: About $2,000,000,000 for domestic-civilian functions; $1,300,000,000 in veterans, chiefly for GI school and unemployment benefits; $1,500,000,000 in foreign aid programs; and $2,000,000,000 in national defense.

Byrd's criticism of high government spending echoed the sentiments of numerous business leaders who have been appearing before the senate-house economic committee.

That brought a statement from Chairman O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) that most talk of cutting government spending is just "arrant nonsense."

The senator told a reporter he is a strong economy advocate—but businessmen should not criticize government spending unless they can offer practical suggestions on how and where to cut it.

O'Mahoney yesterday snapped at President Devereux C. Josephs of the New York Life Insurance Company:

"It is arrant nonsense to talk about cutting government spending unless you say not to defend ourselves."

Truman Viewing Eisenhower As Active Candidate

By Ernest B. Vaccaro

KEY WEST, Fla.—(AP)—Intimates said today that President Truman regards General Dwight D. Eisenhower as an active candidate for the presidency.

They added that he regards Eisenhower's recent "hot dogs and beer" speech as part of the former chief of staff's buildup for the republican presidential nomination.

The president, they continued, will answer Eisenhower in his "State of the Union" message to congress in January.

Charles G. Ross, the president's press secretary, said that speech will "fully expound the president's philosophies of government."

Ross would not even discuss recent speeches of Eisenhower, now president of Columbia University.

Mr. Truman's long-time feeling of admiration for Eisenhower as an army man and a builder of morale was emphasized by those who are close to him.

But these same persons say the president regards the ex-soldier turned educator as strictly an amateur at politics.

He has been more than a little concerned by Eisenhower's recent speeches, in which the general has appeared to line up with former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes in criticism of the Truman "fair deal."

The president, it was made clear here, is drafting a "State of the Union" message which will reiterate his demands for a "fair deal" program. It will emphasize the very proposals at which Eisenhower and Byrnes are directing their ammunition.

The president, it was disclosed, will renew his insistence upon passage of:

1. His civil rights program.

2. A liberalized displaced persons bill.

3. A national health program.

4. Legislation expanding social security benefits.

5. The Brannan farm program.

These and other fair deal proposals have drawn the ire of both Byrnes and Eisenhower.

IKE SPEAKS IN TEXAS

GALVESTON, Tex.—(AP)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower turned hunter today and that's what he intends to be for the next several days of his visit to Texas.

The wartime leader of American forces in Europe yesterday called for preservation of the dignity and equality of every American.

"If all Americans want is security, they can go to prison," he told a combined meeting of this resort city's luncheon clubs.

"But if an American wants to preserve his dignity and his equality as a human being, he must not bow his neck to any dictatorial government."

He urged the people to vote in every election "from school board members to president."

Mrs. Eisenhower accompanied her husband on his visit here. A reporter asked her "would you like to be the wife of the president of the United States?"

She answered:

"What American woman wouldn't want her husband to be president?"

Another Witness Reports Bridges At Red Meeting

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Another witness said today he saw Harry Bridges at a communist party meeting.

The witness, Kermit C. Krolek, placed the time as late May, 1936, at Long Beach.

Bridges, head of the CIO Longshore Union, is on trial in federal court here, accused of conspiracy and perjury—charged with lying when, at his 1945 naturalization hearing, he denied he was or had been a communist. Two other leaders in his union, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, are charged with conspiracy in the case.

Krolek, 38, of Belmont, Calif., said he was an electronics engineer. In 1935, he said, he was business agent and secretary of the American Radio Telegraphers' Association, Local 8, in Portland, Ore.

In November of that year, Krolek testified, he was recruited into the communist party by A. T. Pringle, whom he identified as secretary of ARTA'S Local 6 at Seattle. Krolek said he quit the party after 1½ years; that he had held a party "book" under the name of "Conrad," and had attended communist party meetings at Seattle, Portland, San Pedro and Long Beach.

The Long Beach meeting in 1936, Krolek declared, was held in the Venetian Square apartments.

Krolek testified that among the eight or nine persons there, were Bridges and Schmidt.

Kentucky Miners Push New Contracts

WHITESBURG, Ky. —(AP)— The United Mine Workers pushed its drive to sign new contracts with eastern Kentucky truck coal mines today amid reports that some operators were given rough treatment.

Six operators in the Whitesburg area said roving pickets dumped their coal on the ground and one said men armed with pick handles and clubs told him to sign a contract.

At Pineville, Ky., a group of men, some of them armed, slugged a maintenance man and the general manager of a mine.

Tom Rancy, UMW representative at Pikesville, said 54 operators in the Pike county area had signed new contracts paving the way for five-day work weeks and that workers were ready to move into other nearby counties in an effort to sign more.

Mines working under the old UMW contract are limited to three work days a week. Those signing new pacts—calling for 95 cents more pay per day and a 15-cents-per-ton increase in contributions to the miners' welfare fund—can work the full-five-day week.

SEATTLE—(AP)— A heart attack while at the wheel of his car was fatal here yesterday to Mark Miner, 73-year-old music teacher at the Rainier State School at Buckley.

He was stricken as he started his car after stopping at a traffic signal. He ran into a parked car.

TESTIFIES—Lieut. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, wartime atomic chief testifying in Washington before the House committee on un-American activities, said that he learned within a month after he became chief of the A-bomb project that Russian spies were trying to steal U. S. atomic secrets.

Yugoslavia Sends 10 Russians to Jail On Treason Charges

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia—(AP)—Yugoslavia sent 10 White Russians, including a Russian Orthodox priest and a nun, to prison today on charges of spying for the Soviet Union against the regime of Premier Marshal Tito.

The ten also were convicted by a Yugoslav tribunal of having aided the Germans during world war II. They were given terms ranging from three to 20 years.

The gray-bearded, black-robed priest, Father Aleksei Krishko, was sentenced to serve 11 years and six months in prison. He had denied the charges. Arson Boremovic, a judge and state prosecutor under the pro-nazi wartime government in Croatia, was sentenced to serve 20 years.

The trial of the White Russians, who fled the red revolution in 1917, only to become Soviet agents after the last war, was seen as Tito's answer to iron curtain trials accusing his regime of trying to supplant Russia's influence over her east European satellites.

With few exceptions, the defendants conceded in their week-long trial they "felt guilty" of the charges. But mostly they took the position that they were acting as Soviet citizens, not spies. They contended they were supplying "information," not engaging in intelligence work.

The hearing was the first trial of Soviet citizens to be held in another communist country since the end of the war.

To foreign observers the trial appeared designed to show that Russia was willing to use acknowledged former nazi collaborators in the cominform feud with Tito.

The trial also appeared to be a demonstration that Yugoslavia was not using "monstrous methods" Tito charged were employed to secure the confessions of alleged "Titoists" tried for treason in other eastern European countries.

5 Rescued From Sea By Coast Guard Plane

MIAMI, Fla—(AP)—Four Californians, including two small children, and a New Jersey man who were snatched from the sea in a dramatic rescue, flew into New York today, none the worse for their experience.

Their small aircraft was on a flight from San Juan, P.R., to Miami, when it developed engine trouble and radioed it was going down between Bimini and Orange Cay, 60 miles east of Miami.

A coast guard two-engined JRF flew over and a few minutes later a big PBY landed and picked them up.

The five were clinging to two empty barrel-shaped plastic gas tanks when the PBY rescued them, two hours after their plane sank.

They were brought to Miami, wet but unhurt, and boarded an Eastern Air Line Constellation at 12:30 a.m. (EST) today for the five hour flight to New York.

Parnell Thomas Goes to Jail; Wife Is Candidate

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Rep. J. Parnell Thomas got six to 18 months in jail and a $10,000 fine today for cheating the government by "padding" his office pay roll.

Immediately after the sentence was pronounced, Thomas' wife announced:

"I intend to seek the congressional seat about to be vacated by my husband."

Mrs. Thomas told reporters her husband's resignation is in the mails.

Thomas is 54. His wife is 48.

Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff gave an ear-burning lecture to Thomas along with the jail term and the fine.

He told the little man who seven times was elected to the house as a republican from New Jersey that he knew he had a good record in the first world war and had done "much good work" in congress as chairman of the house un-American activities committee.

But, the judge said sternly:

"These can't properly be considered mitigating circumstances."

In fact, he said, as chairman of a congressional committee, Thomas "had a duty to set an example of upright living."

Collins described Thomas as "broken in body and spirit."

Standing before Judge Holtzoff, Thomas did, indeed, seem to bear scant resemblance physically to the rosy-cheeked little man who once was the gavel-cracking chairman of the spy-hunting house un-American activities committee.

The maximum sentence Holtzoff could have imposed was 32 years in jail and a $40,000 fine.

Holtzoff later said he would recommend to Attorney General McGrath that Thomas serve his sentence at the Danbury, Conn., correctional institution.

The phrase "stand committed until the fine is paid" in the judge's sentence means that Thomas must stay in jail until he pays the fine. If unable to pay the fine, he could, however, take a pauper's oath and serve an additional 30 days in place of the fine.

Asked if the fine would be paid, his lawyer told a reporter:

"That's the sixty-four dollar question."

In Thomas' trial, the government produced testimony that Thomas pocketed more than $8,000 from salary "kickbacks" from fake employes he had put on his office pay roll and on the pay roll of the un-American activities committee.

He and his former secretary, Miss Helen Campbell, were accused of plotting to cheat the government by putting on Thomas' office payroll two women who wouldn't work but would kick back their salary checks to the congressman.

And it came out in the trial that Thomas also had on his office payroll the 71-year-old, bedridden aunt of his wife, and a daughter-in-law who spent her time in Allendale, N. J., Thomas' home town.

The government dropped its case against the 64-year-old Miss Campbell. She had unfolded the story of the kickback racket to the FBI and supplied a lot of evidence

Yugoslav Mission Blockaded by Police

BERLIN—(AP)—German communist police, in a new Soviet-inspired slap at the government of Premier-Marshal Tito, held a Yugoslav military mission under virtual house arrest for hours today, and then suddenly withdrew their guards.

A spokesman for the Yugoslav mission said the blockade was listed at 2 p.m., and that immediately the Yugoslav members of the mission began scurrying for the safety of the British sector of Berlin.

Marshal Tito's delegation in the Soviet sector of the city was discredited by the Soviet-supported east German government last night, and charged with trying to disturb public order in the east sector. At the same time the Yugoslavs were refused permission to travel in the east zone.

After lifting their guard from the houses, a German communist police officer announced the blockade had been "a mistake," and said an apology had been offered. The Yugoslavs then were free to leave the Russian sector whenever they wished.

The officer said the Yugoslav delegation now has until December 17 to remove its personnel and equipment from the Russian sector.

Hiss Defense Lawyer Quizzes Former State Dept. Official on Aiding Reds

NEW YORK—(AP)—Henry Julian Wadleigh admitted today at the Alger Hiss perjury trial he might have seen four of the papers which the government says Hiss gave to Whittaker Chambers.

Wadleigh, former state department economist who has testified he aided a pre-war communist spy ring, was cross-examined for the second day by Claude B. Cross, Hiss' counsel.

Cross told the jury in his opening statement it was Wadleigh and others, not Hiss, who gave government secrets to Chambers for transmission to the Soviet spies.

Cross has indicated he may seek to show Wadleigh was promised immunity from prosecution for espionage in return for his testimony for the government in the Hiss case.

The thin, 44-year-old Wadleigh, who told the federal jury yesterday that he slipped nearly 500 state department papers to a communist spy ring between 1936 and 1938, admitted under cross-examination that he could recall the nature of only one of the documents.

But he said he was sure he had not given the spy ring all of the documents which ex-communist spy courier Whittaker Chambers has said he got from Hiss.

Wadleigh, who now lives near Arlington, Va., said he never was a communist party member, but that he sympathized with its aims. After the nazi-Soviet pact in 1919, he said, he turned against communism.

His testimony was interrupted briefly yesterday to permit Philip C. Jessup, U. S. Ambassador-at-large, to appear as a character witness for Hiss. He was called out of turn, because he is to leave soon for China.

Jessup told the court that Hiss had a good reputation for "loyalty, veracity and integrity," and that he had participated in selecting Hiss as president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace in 1947. Hiss has since relinquished the post.

CZECHS NAME PEAK AFTER JOE STALIN

PRAGUE—(AP)— Czechoslovakia's highest mountain is to be renamed after Generalissimo Stalin in celebration of the Soviet ruler's 70th birthday Dec. 21.

The peak is 8,737-foot high Mount Gerlachovka (Shield of Legionnaires) in Slovakia's Tatra range. It was formerly named for Czech legionnaires who fought with the allies in the first world war.

One out of every 35 Swiss workers is in the watch making industry.

GUN ENDS YULE PLANS

SCRANTON, Pa.—(AP)— William J. Boston, 49, decided he would sell his shotgun and use the money to buy Christmas presents for his five children.

Yesterday, Boston got the gun out of a closet and began cleaning the barrel. His wife, working in the kitchen, heard an explosion and ran into the living room to find Boston shot dead.

Lackawanna County Coroner Paul E. Kubasko said the shotgun had been discharged accidentally. The charge struck Boston in the head.

Wildcat Strike Ends at Oak Ridge

OAK RIDGE, Tenn.—(AP)—Work on a new $66,000,000 atomic plant swung back toward normal today following a four-day wildcat strike involving 3,000 construction workers.

The strike ended yesterday in a brisk back-to-work movement that saw about 65 per cent of the workmen on the job by nightfall. Contractors planned full-scale operations today.

End of the first walkout in the history of this war-born atomic city came after union heads of the Knoxville Building Trades Council (AFL) agreed Wednesday night to try to persuade members to return to work.

The strikers were members of the council, but its spokesmen disclaimed responsibility for the unauthorized walkout.

OFFICIAL BUYS RANCH

SPOKANE—(AP)—Purchase of a 1,200-acre wheat ranch for $175,000 by Walter Johnson, assistant director of the state department of agriculture, and his two sons, was disclosed yesterday.

Located 17 miles northeast of Pomeroy, the ranch was owned by E. O. Crump, retired Pomeroy business man.

New Standards for High Schools Coming

SPOKANE—(AP)— Revised standards for rating high schools will be released in 1950, D. A. Emerson of Salem, Ore., said Thursday.

Emerson, assistant superintendent of the Oregon state department of education, spoke today at a meeting of the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools. He is president of the association.

"The new revisions will be an attempt to further the use of uniform standards," Emerson told 200 delegates attending the conference. "The first edition of Criteria was published in 1940. The new edition will be the result of research and experimentation during the past three years."

The organization serves schools in Alaska, Hawaii, the Phillipine islands and seven western states.

Delegates discussed the possibility today of changing the organization's name. Although it bears the name "Northwest," it actually serves an area beyond the northwestern limits.

FALLING TREE KILLS MAN

YORK, Pa. — (AP) — Sixty-seven year-old Edwin Young chopped down a tree on his farm at nearby Freysville yesterday. The tree fell on top of him.

Forty-five minutes later, Young died at York hospital. Deputy Coroner Ralph Keech said both his legs had been fractured.

Census Bureau Says 800,000 More Women Than Men are in U.S.

By Arthur Edson

WASHINGTON—(AP)—What's the matter with girls?

Why is it that when girl babies are born, the average congratulator congratulates as if he really didn't mean it? And why is it that the proud father sometimes acts as if he were embarrassed about it all?

There's no reason for this. I have wound up a little research project and can faithfully report: Women are here to stay.

Right now there are 800,000 more female (a census bureau word, not mine) than males in the U. S.

Eight women are in the house of representatives, and a ninth will join them in January. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Me) is a senator. And at least one other woman, Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas (D-Calif), wants to be a senator too.

Mrs. Smith has said she thinks it would be nice for the republicans to run a woman for vice-president. She was too shy to mention names, but I don't think she meant Mrs. Alben W. Barkley.

Women fill all sorts of lesser posts. They are truckers, glassblowers, cops, printers, mail carriers, tanners, steamfitters, embalmers and Western Union (you'll excuse the expression) boys.

Look where we'd be if there were no women.

Without the little dears, we would have no Mother's day, no beauty pageants at Atlantic City, no grass skirts, no bobby sox, no mother-in-law.

True, the picture has another side, a brighter side.

If there were no women, Al Jolson couldn't sing, "Mammy!", advertising men would have to think of some way to peddle their beer and cigarettes besides running pictures of cuties, and calendar makers would have to give up on that Indian lady in the canoe.

Still, the women are definitely with us, and I, for one, am glad.

Yet—.

When Margery Ann checked in 12 years ago, I was conscious of some condescending remarks. Especially from those who had spawned boys.

When Evelyn arrived nine years ago, so did the jibes.

When Judith appeared four years ago, the jibes turned to hoots.

And then, over the weekend, the doctor broke the news this way:

"Well, it's another girl." (Short pause). "Heh, heh!"

Let him laugh. Susan was welcome. We haven't had much of a chance to get to know her, but she looks as if she'll be a wonderful girl.

Fire Escape Causes Death

PONTIAC, Mich.—(AP)—The precaution of Mrs. Frances Connor, 27, led her to her death.

The disastrous Winecoff Hotel fire in Atlanta three years ago spurred a resolve of Mrs. Connor, former Alabaman, never to be trapped in a fire.

In her fourth floor apartment home here she kept a knotted rope tied to a radiator near the window.

Papers on a back stairway caught fire yesterday. Smoke filled the hallways.

Mrs. Connor flung open her window, tossed out the rope, and started down. But she lost her grip and fell to the concrete driveway. Her skull was fractured. She died in a hospital three hours later.

$80,000 Flood Damage

Jefferson County Engineer Keith F. Jones announced that damage to county roads and bridges in the post-Thanksgiving flood would run $80,000, after a complete survey. Most of the damage was along the Hoh river in the west end, where three bridges were washed out, and in the Dosewallips river area in the east end of the county.

Sees Good Year for Paper

R. A. McDonald, executive vice president of Crown Zellerbach Corporation, told Port Townsend mill employes and community representatives Friday that prospects appear "very good" for the pulp and paper industry in 1950. Speaking at the mill's annual service pin dinner, he said the coming year should be normal in the kraft and paper bag fields, following a slump which succeeded a period of overselling.

Ask Brush Clearing

The Port Townsend Chamber of Commerce has appealed to state highways director W. A. Bugge to do something about improving a tourist spot near Eaglemount on highway 9. The chamber pointed out that brush has grown up to obscure an excellent view over Discovery bay from the spot known as Sunset point. The chamber recalled Bugge's promise in a recent speech there to develop tourist areas and scenic view turnouts.

Curfew Law Proposed

The Port Townsend city council will discuss an ordinance aimed at establishing and enforcing new curfew regulations, at its December 20 meeting. City Attorney C. T. Williams has been studying curfew laws enacted by other northwest Washington cities.

Boatman Swims to Safety

Walter E. Austin saved his life by swimming 250 yards to shore when his 24-foot cabin boat caught fire in Port Townsend bay Sunday afternoon. A coast guard cutter sped to the rescue, but was able to save only the blackened hull of the boat. Austin told coast guardsmen the fire started from a cigarette he was smoking while working on the disabled motor.

Townsend Gridder Honored

Gary Opsal, 19-year-old Port Townsend freshman at Central Washington College of Education, Ellensburg, won the Ross Brothers award as the outstanding freshman football player at the school. As a Redskin fullback, he received the high school inspirational award at Port Townsend last year.

Australian Election Tomorrow Will Set Labor Regime's Fate

By Gordon Tait

SYDNEY, Australia—(AP)—Socialism or free enterprise?

That is a clearcut issue in Australia's critical general election tomorrow.

The labor party of Prime Minister J. B. Chifley, a former locomotive driver, has been in power eight years. It has a long range program of nationalization. It believes government controls are needed to stabilize the nation's economy and insure full employment.

The opposition promises to halt nationalization and the Australian leftward trend. Labor and socialism went down to defeat in neighboring New Zealand last week and the opposition here hopes that is a sign of the future.

The anti-labor opposition in Australia comes from two parties, the liberal party and the country party, which promise to work in unison should labor be defeated. The liberals are led by former Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies, a lawyer. Leader of the country party—strong in rural areas—is Arthur W. Fadden, an accountant. Menzie would be the next prime minister should the coalition win.

Nearly 5,000,000 voters will ballot in the two-house parliamentary election, which is held every three years.

This election has stirred the public more than any since the commonwealth was born.

The election also may have some bearing on the British general elections next year, when a five-year old socialist government appeals for endorsement of its policies.

One thing seemed certain. Labor is facing its stiffest fight since the late John Curtin assumed leadership of the nation when the present government came to power in October, 1941. Curtin died in 1945 and Chiefley has been prime minister since.

Voting is compulsory in Australia and complicated. The house of representatives is chosen by a preferential system. That is, the voter marks his first choice by putting "1" after the name of the candidate he prefers. "2" goes by the name of the candidate he nominates as second choice and so on.

Jackson Decries Atomic Probe

SEATTLE—(AP)—Current congressional investigations of charges that atom bomb material were shipped to Russia should be stopped in the "interest of national security," Rep. Henry J. Jackson (D-Wash) said yesterday.

"The uranium sent to Russia," he told the Junior Chamber of Commerce, "from what little I know about it, had nothing to do with Russia's obtaining the atomic bomb."

Describing atomic energy as the one main barrier we have to stop Soviet Russia from reaching America, Jackson said international control of atomic energy is our moral responsibility. He warned against "falling for the Russian cry to outlaw the bomb."

ACCIDENT CAUSES DEATH

EVERETT—(AP)—A two-car collision caused the death yesterday of Emil H. Stohr, 73, driver of one of the machines. Alfred Johnson, 75, Bothell, driver of the second car, received severe head lacerations and a chest injury. The accident occurred on the Everett cutoff.

TYPICAL OF REDWOODS in California are these mammoth Sequoia gigantea overshadowing the people below. The Crisler tour is taking them through the California redwood country.

OLYMPIC TRAIL TALK—29

Crislers Get Thrill at Sight of Great California Wildlife Refuge

By Lois Crisler

The night of the big storm we showed at Salem, Ore. It was in the fine old First Methodist church, across from the state capitol.

The church was built in 1872, before the style of squarish auditoriums came in. Therefore the seating arrangement was more modern than in churches half that old.

The acoustics were so good that the lecture moved faster than usual. I could talk right along in a conversational voice, instead of spitting out one word at a time and waiting till the echo died before launching the next syllable.

As we set up in the long sanctuary, the storm was rising. I made my usual gloomy prediction, "There won't be a corporal's guard out."

We had potluck supper downstairs with our sponsors, the young adults Sunday school class.

They expected no one but themselves for our showing. The class president wanted Cris to show only one reel, so the kiddies could get home to bed.

After the macaroni and potato salad and before the cake, Cris went upstairs with the class president to mount his reel. The auditorium was already two-thirds full and people coming in.

The class president's eyes got big. He snorted downstairs. "Leave the clearing up till afterward," he barked, "or we won't get seats."

Six hundred people were there, that wild night. Outside, the storm shoved till the tall stained glass windows threatened to cave in. But the audience was warm and responsive.

After the showing we drove back to Portland. The rain sheared across the pavement in waves. It was gray in the headlights. Sudden lakes on the main highway grabbed at the wheels.

"This is the heaviest rain I've ever driven in," Cris said.

Two days later, out by the Pacific, we watched the aftermath of the storm. The surf exploded house-high against the black crags. The combers drove in white as milk with the spume streaming back from their crests like white-flame torches in the wind.

THROUGH THE REDWOODS

We showed at the southern Oregon College of Education at Ashland, where we were welcomed as old friends.

Then Cris sprang a surprise on me. We had 2½ days to get to Oakland for our next showing. Cris headed for the coast, to drive through the redwoods.

It was early morning when we started south from Crescent City. The cars we passed were like beetles scurrying around the feet of the big old fellows wrapped away up there in steep shafts of light and misty green shadow.

In one tree over 200,000 board feet. Wealth for one man and transient wages for a few. Or wealth for the nation.

The trees made me feel a very scarce human emotion—authentic awe. Cris said the road from Port Angeles to Lake Crescent used to be just as rare as this.

Going through these forests I wondered why Californians now ever came to the Olympic peninsula. But the answer to that was here along the redwood highway, in the many wide parking areas and the tourist accommodations. These were signs of summer overcrowding. Farther north we probably get only the overflow.

After our Oakland showing the next evening, for the Audubon society, who should come up but Mrs. Hassell from Port Angeles.

Our hosts that night were Dr. and Mrs. Eric Reynolds. Laurel Reynolds is a nationally known Audubon lecturer and bird movie photographer.

The doctor is a rare bird himself. He is one of about 25 out of 1,000 doctors in the county medical association who are trained to be the new-fashioned general practitioners. These 25 are on hospital staffs, so they not only see after their own patients in general but take care of surgery and obstetrics, delivering Sally and 20 years later, Sally's own baby.

WILDLIFE REFUGE

The next morning Cris and I lingered on the threshold of a great experience, doubtful whether to go in or not.

The Reynolds wanted to take us up to see the 30,000-acre Sacramento wildlife refuge. That didn't mean anything to us. We thought maybe we should shove on to Fresno.

The Reynolds did not push us. They just watched us gently till we finally circled around and lighted at the feeding table.

There wasn't a thing in sight as we drove into the marshes on a narrow graveled road. Just flat tan tules, or cat-tails.

But there turned out to be so much going on we could hardly eat lunch.

Laurel set out French bread and cheeses and fruit in the sunshine by the car. Each of us grabbed off a handful of something and paced off down the road. Or stood up on the fender of the car. Or said, "Come here and look!"

We were in one of the great waterfowl refuges of the Pacific flyway.

"Look between those tules," the doctor said quietly, "and I think you'll see more birds than you ever saw in your life before."

The resting pond was crusted black with birds. There were mallards and widgeons and pintails and green-winged teals. There were shovelers and spoonbills and gadwalls. Kitch would have gone crazy.

Up they rose and the sound of their wings leaving the water was like the sound of surf crashing.

The ducks winked off in black confusion. They whiffled down and fell out of sight farther away in the marsh.

"Look!" Laurel said. Fifteen white pelicans with nine-foot wingspreads planed slowly around, making a thick fold in the sky.

Then the sky filled with skeins of geese. Honkers and cacklers and white-fronted geese. Lesser Canadas and snows. They weaved in threads and V's and breaking drifts.

The doctor planted us in a hollow square bordered with tules and told us to keep low. He drove off to send geese over our heads.

Half an hour later he came back, got out and walked toward us. His eyes were full of stern scornful light. "You're fine geese watchers" he said. "Standing straight up and 1,000 birds watching you!"

After that we crouched in the tules till sundown. I never heard anything like it before.

There was a rush all around—a roar. Like a far-off arterial highway. Like the running of water. Like the cheering at a ball park, with the shouts of men.

The basic roar was furnished with thousands of chips and whistles. Bits of song (from the thousands of redwing blackbirds.) And squeaks and chatter and the peaceful calling of the geese.

These sounds were banked away from near to far in the blue over the tules till pretty soon you'd think your heart was a bird call itself and would lift and drift over the tules in a sea of contentment and life.

Ring-necked pheasants crowed or complained. A golden eagle watched them. Marsh hawks came so low overhead you could almost count their toenails. There were cormorants and red-tail hawks.

Louisville Paper's Mailers On Sitdown

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(AP) — Forty-three mail room employes of the Louisville Daily-Courier Journal staged a three-hour sit-down strike late last night and were discharged after police were called and requested them to leave the newspaper building.

Publisher Mark Ethridge termed the work-stoppage an "illegal sit-down strike," and said the 43 had been dismissed. They had quit work, he said, about 10:45 p.m. (CST) and locked themselves in the mailing room for about three hours. The stoppage stemmed from a dispute over a new contract.

Company executives took over the mailing room jobs after the employes had left and handled the late editions of the city's only daily morning newspaper. The regular mail room employes quit work after early editions of the paper had been run off.

MAGNUSON TO RUN

SEATTLE — (AP) — U. S. Senator Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash) made an announcement that surprised no one yesterday—he will run as a candidate for re-election.

Speaking before a Founder's day banquet of the Young Men's Democratic Club, Magnuson said he would stand on the party's record and hoped the republicans would make the 1950 campaign a clear-cut battle of issues.

Labor Party Wins In Special Election

BRADFORD, England —(AP)— The labor party retained the south Bradford seat in the house of commons, complete returns from yesterday's election showed today.

The seat itself is not important but the vote was viewed as a straw in the wind on the labor party's prospects for the general election next spring. The result was a sharp disappointment for Winston Churchill's conservative party.

Today's victory was the 35th time in a row the laborites successfully defended, in elections to fill vacancies, the districts they captured in the 1945 general election.

The official count of the ballots cast yesterday gave: George Craddock (labor), 23,335; John L. Windle (conservative and national liberal), 19,313, and C. J. Canning (independent liberal), 2,882.

The conservatives had high hopes of ending 1949 with a sizeable victory in what will probably be the last voting for a parliamentary seat before the general election.

Skagit Valley Is Disaster Area

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation notified Senator Magnuson (D-Wash) today it has designated the Skagit valley and adjoining territory in Washington state as a disaster area for loan purposes.

The action permits the Seattle RFC office to act on loan applications up to $20,000. Loans may be made to sufferers from the recent storms and floods in the valley.

Suggests State Monopoly of Gambling Machines

(From THE ARGUS, Seattle weekly paper for legal publications).

Beguiling justification is offered for tolerating the continued operation of pin-and-ball games and slot machines, which the state supreme court recently decided were gambling devices and illegal: it is argued that to abolish these machines means to deprive the state government of some $6 million a year in taxes, cities and counties of many additional thousands, merchants and clubs of an important part of their earnings. Considering the state of government finances particularly, this is a potent appeal.

What the argument leaves out of account is that for the $3 million a year the state gets out of pin-and-ball machines, the owners of same (and those they have to share with) get $12 million, and for the $3 million a year the state gets from slot machines, the owners, etc., get another $4½ million. The owners and operators contribute license fees and taxes to city and county governments in rather piddling amounts. Seattle is said to realize less than $100,000 a year from licenses and the business tax on this trade, Tacoma approximately $200,000, and King county $54,000—in all cases a trifling share of the income each of these corporations receives each year.

The objections to the prosperity of those who operate these coin-eating contrivances would be valid even if the devices were legal. Moral and legal considerations aside, it is difficult to name any industry which contributes less to the wealth and well-being of the economy and of the public. Such investment as is required of these operators could scarcely be regarded as an investment in production; rather, it is an investment in privilege.

The grocers, restaurateurs, publicans, and club managers who are concerned lest they lose their cut from the earnings of these machines ought to consider that those who patronize the machines have only so much spending power. What these patrons lose to the pre-adjusted odds in favor of the machines' owners is money that they are thus disenabled from spending on ordinary purchases—purchases, in many cases, of the necessities of life for their families. From an over-all point of view, the pin-ball and slot machine operators are competing with all legitimate retailers for a share in the consumer's dollar. It seems strange, then, to hear arguments in favor of these machines attributed to retail enterprises.

There is a remarkable, but not new, moral contradiction in the spectacle of government deriving tax revenues from sources which the judiciary has declared illegal. Continued taxing of slot and pinball machines, under the new circumstances, would put this state in a similar situation to that of the state of Mississippi, which outlawed all liquor and then levied a 15 per cent tax on bootleg spirits, with the consent and co-operation of the bootlegging interests.

A new political principle ought to be enunciated at this point, one that is fully in tune with the times: "If you can't legalize it, socialize it." The state of Washington's liquor monopoly, profitable to the tune of $20 million per year, is a model of this mode of thinking that might as well be applied to the gambling-device situation. Chronic players of the games, under a state monopoly, could escape the obloquy that attaches to devotees of a losing game and gain the honor due the most faithful and excessive type of taxpayers. This, of course, would be no more a fair distribution of the tax burden than now exists, but at least it would mean the end of a line of private business that has a tendency to have shady connections, it would save enforcement agencies the trouble of policing a thing that is going to go on anyway, and it would mean more tax money for the various purposes for which tax money is used.

Janitor Cleared Of Postcard Charge

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Charles Janson, 56, janitor, has been cleared of charges he sent post cards defaming Los Angeles to eastern cities. The U. S. district attorney said there was insufficient evidence.

Janson was re-arrested immediately on a charge he had failed to notify his probation officer of a change of address. He once served a 60-day sentence for possession of a gun, Los Angeles officers said.

James K. Polk is the only speaker of the house of representatives to be elected later to the presidency.

Love in a Tent All Over for GI

FRANKFURT, Germany —(AP)— The American army has pulled up the stakes on a GI's idyll of love in a sweetheart and their baby.

Army officials announced yesterday the soldier, recruit Melborn C. Moffitt of Hominy, Okla., had been arrested after being absent without leave since last March 31.

Moffitt, the army said, had had a "fine record," but when his unit got ready to head for the United States he apparently decided to pull out in order to be with his girl and baby.

The announcement said the family lived in a tent in the woods near Grafenwoehr area until about two months ago. Then, an official said, the soldier got scared and moved his family into a homemade but well-camouflaged tent in the woods in the area.

Moffitt was arrested after a German forester reported a "strange man who looks like an American is living in the woods at Grafenwoehr."

Military police took the girl and her baby to Nuernberg for questioning, but they said the girl was not put under arrest.

Pennsylvania was named in honor of Admiral William Penn, father of William Penn, founder.

Shah of Iran Good Pool Player

SUN VALLEY, Ida.—(AP)—Democracy took a lesson from the Shah of Iran last night.

His imperial majesty engaged in a shirt-sleeve game of pool in the lodge recreation room. His opponent was the pin boy from the bowling alley.

What's more, the monarch won.

Don Rathbun, 22, of Seattle, the pin boy, admitted the young Shah challenged him to a fast game of rotation. "He was darn good," Rathbun said.

Today the Shah skiied on the slopes of Sun Valley's Bouldcr basin, relaxing for the first time since he arrived in this country.

His skiing companion was Otto Lang, executive director of the resort ski school.

Lang commented favorably on the skiing ability of the arranged for him to ski a slalom course. The slalom is a tricky twisting, downhill race run through sets of marking flags.

Says Britons Like Free Health System

BERKELEY, Calif. —(AP) — Britain's compulsory health system is burdened with red tape but the man in the street would rise to its defense if a political party tried to take it from him.

That was the conclusion expressed last night at a meeting of the League of Women Voters by Dr. Alice Brooks, chief medical officer of the British ministry of health.

Of the health system, he said: "The man in the street may grumble. We're a nation of grumblers anyway. But if you tried to take the service away from him you'd be surprised at his reaction."

Price Turns Down State Dept. Offer

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Byron Price, assistant secretary general of the United Nations in charge of administration, has turned down an offer by President Truman to name him assistant secretary of state for public affairs.

Informed officials said today that Price had been offered the assignment recently as sucressor to George V. Allen, now American ambassador to Yugoslavia. On one or two previous occasions Price also been picked for this job, which includes responsibility for all activities in radio program and an influential role in determining state department public relations policies.

It was understood that the principal if not the sole reason for Price's decision was that the state department pulse job carries a lower salary.

As one of the top officials in the United Nations he receives a gross annual income of $20,000, whereas an assistant secretary of state is paid $15,000.

Price was executive news editor of the Associated Press for several years, and served as director of the office of censorship during the war.

New By-Product of Sugar Beet Possible

SEATTLE—(AP)—A new vitamin was held up Thursday as a possible new by-product of the Washington state sugar beet industry.

The vitamin is B-12, which cures pernicious anemia and has become an important part of poultry feed.

Dr. James McGinnis of Washington State College, who first reported work on the newly-identified vitamin and received an award from the American Feed Manufacturers Association, said it may be an industrial possibility for the west.

He addressed a University of Washington-sponsored chemurgic conference.

Dr. McGinnis said manufacture of the vitamin is now confined to the east and midwest. It is a by-product in the manufacture of the new disease killers, streptomycin and aureomysin, as well as being produced in other ways.

Can or beet molasses could be used in the west in the fermentation process from which the vitamin is now obtained, McGinnis said.

He called the vitamin "one of the most significant developments in nutrition of this generation."

In the poultry industry, the vitamin has made possible cutting down the use of more costly animal proteins, he said. These are replaced with B-12 plus other unidentified vitamins produced in the fermentation process.

YMCA to Sponsor Holiday Carolers

The YMCA is going to revive the oldtime practice of Christmas caroling in Port Angeles this season, Executive Secretary Leon Myers announced today.

The first practice will be at the Y tonight at 7:30. Anyone is eligible to join the carolers, regardless of age.

Myers said the group will practice again Tuesday and Wednesday nights next week, and Monday, December 19.

Frank A. Wenzel, local music teacher, will conduct the carol group. Wenzel has had widespread experience in symphony and choral music as a musician in leading symphony orchestras, and as a chorusmaster. He presently is in charge of school music programs at Chimacum and Quilcene.

Both vocalists and instrumentalists are invited to join the carol group. Plans are to have a "brass choir" accompany the carolers, although actually woodwinds as well as brass instruments will be used.

The Christmas singers may give some impromptu public concerts, Myers said, but they will especially sing carols for shut-ins. Names and addresses of such persons should be telephoned to the YMCA at 6413.

Municipal League Sets Forth Purpose

The newly organized Municipal League has elected a 15-member board which next week will elect league officers. It also is setting forth its aims for the public's benefit.

Those serving on the board for three years are Arnold Hirsekorn, new temporary chairman, Mrs. Inez McLaughlin, Ted Browne and Mrs. Madge Nailor.

Elected for two year terms are Leo White, Dr. Melvin Bondelid, Mrs. Eli Trosper and Mrs. Minna Durkee.

One year members are Mrs. Esther Yaple, Larry Winters, Joe Janish, Mrs. Edward Fitzgerald and Mrs. Joseph Niemeyer.

LEAGUE PURPOSE

Because this type of organization is new in the community members are anxious that the public know its purposes, Hirsekorn said.

"The prime purpose of the league is to discuss at open meetings all legislation and legislators to enable the citizens of this area to vote in a more intelligent manner," he explained.

League members pledge themselves to further good government by studying both sides of all questions so that they may be well informed on all issues important to the community.

An example of what they hope to prevent are such cases as election board officials reporting that in too many cases ballots are handed in with only one or two X's. This would indicate the voter does not know enough about the candidates or the legislation to fill out the ballot. For every one of these it is safe to assume there are a good many others who are filling out the entire ballot in a hit or miss fashion, they point out.

Therefore, the Municipal League is set up to give full and unbiased information on all legislation and on the qualifications of all candidates in any election, members say.

NON-PARTISAN

"The league is a non-partisan organization whose sole aim is an informed public. We cannot stress too strongly the fact that this is a non-political organization—it is for the benefit of everyone. We have no axe to grind; we are merely interested in an informed public for, as stated in our preamble, 'Eternal vigilance is the price of peace'," Hirsekorn added.

To start its program the league solicits from the public subjects for future discussions. They wish them in writing well in advance of the meeting so directors can procure speakers for both sides of the issue. As nearly as possible, equal opportunity shall be granted all sides of any question, Hirsekorn explained.

"The scope of the league is such that it should attract everyone interested in good government on any level, city, county, state or federal," he concluded.

Welcome Party For Newcomers

A "poundage party" was the way women of the Home League of the Salvation Army chose to welcome their new leaders, Major and Mrs. Gust Rydell. The impromptu affair took place in the living quarters of Salvation Army hall.

Each caller brought along "a pound of something" that would help the newcomers to stock their larder. The Home League is composed of a group of women who meet weekly to sew clothes for babies that are cared for by the Salvation Army.

RHS Senior Class To Give Comedy At School Tonight

The Roosevelt high school senior class is presenting a comedy "January Thaw" tonight in the high school auditorium.

Yesterday, in preparation for a preview performance for their fellow students, there was no last minute flurry except perhaps in the make-up room.

Here Hart Smith, his jars of colors and greases around him, slapped a score of years on everyone coming under his ministrations.

Assisted by Laura Randall, fresh-faced youths acquired "baggy eyes," and beards sprouted on hairless chins. Even a bevy of lovelies, under the deft hand of Miss Randall, soon lost their school-girl complexion and learned to hide the dimples in their cheeks.

Only the property manager Bill Larson had a problem. Where would he find overnight lodging for the baby pig that is guaranteed to give atmosphere and sound effects to a countryside scene in "January Thaw"?

The three-act comedy, based on one of last year's best selling novels, is a story of a housing problem with a different twist. Yesterday's preview audience from junior and senior high school were quite satisfied with the romance, suspense, and disaster wittily solved in "January Thaw."

Principals in the cast and behind the scenes are Frances Richard, Jim Glann, Cidney Timmons, Shirley McLaren, Sherie Conaway, Ronda Barnard, Lawerence Cayanus, Sidney Smith, Franee Cresswell, John Rimbach, Gene Fata, Lawrence Eyman, John Shore and Pete Sibbald.

In charge of production are John Withers, Wayne Priebe, Donna Knudson, Mary Albers, Jerry Oakes, Margie Cayanus and Evangeline Rimbach.

Age and youth, reportedly, do not mix. But tonight under the influence of the "big thaw" all ages will melt somewhat in the "January Thaw" forecast for Roosevelt high school audience.—K. A.

Needs of Children Subject of Talk

Roosevelt PTA viewed a movie "The Sixth Chair," dealing with a child's self-esteem, and heard a talk by Verne Archer at the Wednesday night meeting. Archer is assistant secretary-treasurer of the Washington Education Association.

The speaker pointed to the educational and psychological needs of children. "They pass this way only once," he said, "it behooves the adult world to see that their needs are met." He mentioned the four teachers influencing the life of every child; the home teachers, the playmate, the community teachers and the school teachers. He placed the home teacher at the head of the list because "a child spends 180,000 hours of his life in the home." The school teacher is second to the parent, he said.

"Education is a cooperative influence among these four teachers," he concluded.

In his talk on the psychological needs of the child he listed affection, a sense of belonging, independence, social approval and maintaining self-esteem. This latter need, subject of the film show, depicted outmoded schools and their effect on children.

One of the points he talked about in concluding his speech was the proposed forty-million dollar bond issue which may come before voters in 1950.

School director Mrs. Helen Radke told what the schools hope to accomplish with the extra 10 per cent of national forest money they are asking from county commissioners. The county has proposed a 60-40 split with the schools next year with the schools receiving 40 per cent. She said the four school needs are light fixtures, auditorium repair, replacement of outdated text-books and furniture.

As a result of her talk the PTA decided to support the board in asking for an equal distribution of the fund.

The sophomore trio furnished music for the program with Marlene Sundberg as vocalist, Marlene Bovy, pianist, and Jack Venables Jr. violinist. They played a medley of Christmas carols.

COMING EVENTS

PTA President Evelyn Tinkham announced Evelyn Solheim as radio committee chairman, and John Miletich international relations chairman. She appointed Orville Perry chairman of the dads' night program in March, and announced Roosevelt PTA will be host at the all-city Founders' Day program at Roosevelt school.

Mrs. Frank Harris, membership chairman, announced Jefferson PTA winner in the membership contest, but said Roosevelt won a moral victory by increasing its membership 400 percent over last year. It now has 162 members.

Mrs. Theo Mattson, rummage sale chairman, reported $102 raised.

For the last part of the meeting members divided into three groups to discuss the needs of high school students.

Mrs. Ivor Smith headed the refreshment committee composed of mothers of sophomore students.

Yuletide Programs For Baptist Circles

Baptist Women's Federated Circles met Wednesday afternoon for programs commemorating the Yuletide season. Mae Rickman Circle met at the home of Mrs. Verne Phillips with Mrs. George Taylor in charge of the program.

Elizabeth Orr Circle met with Mrs. Byron Campbell. Mrs. Lou Kiszak sang the song "O Holy Night," the singing of which climaxed each circle meeting.

Ann Judson Circle hostess was Mrs. H. Fred Bishop. Mrs. William Bradshaw presented the program, and Mrs. Paul Logan was a guest.

Each circle read Christmas stories and learned of customs practiced in other lands. Carol singing rounded out the programs.

There are 227,679 miles of railroad track in the U. S.

Camp Merritt Club Re-elects Officers

Camp Merritt Social Club re-elected three of its four officers when it met Thursday. Mrs. Grace Daugaard is president, Mrs. Sophie Blair of Sequim, vice-president, and Mrs. Josephine Johnson, secretary.

Mrs. Viola Adams was hostess and served a luncheon preceding the meeting at which Mrs. Vera Brown was welcomed as a new member. The group plans to hold its Christmas party, December 15 with Mrs. Sadie Derringer of Sequim.

WSCS Members Hold Monthly Meeting

Plans for a Christmas party to take place December 21 were made when members of the Womens' Society of Christian Service met Wednesday in the First Methodist Church.

During the business meeting the members voted to undertake a birthday remembrance plan for the patients at the Bruett convalescent home during the coming years.

Preceding the tea hour Mrs. James Albertson gave a talk on Christmas customs in other countries. Vocal solos by Mrs. Agusto Swordmaker, accompanied by Mrs. Glendon Loftus, completed the entertainment.

Members of the Christine Guild who served tea were Mrs. Arta Miller, Mrs. Cleon Bemis and Mrs. May McCormick.

Secretary Bewildered By Santa's Mail

COPENHAGEN, Denmark—(AP)—If you send a letter to Santa Claus at "the North Pole, Greenland" maybe you will get an answer from his secretary.

She is a pretty, 25-year-old Danish brunette, Gerda Stauning, employed in the Copenhagen office of the Danish Greenland administration.

Greenland being Denmark's only colonial possession, the colonial administration every year gets thousands of letters from boys and girls addressed to "Santa Claus, the North Pole, Greenland." Miss Stauning has been delegated to reply for Santa.

"It's nearly driving me crazy," she said as she surveyed the mountain of letters, many of them from America and Britain.

She tries to send the children pictures of Greenland and tell them Santa will come, but adds, "of course, I cannot possibly answer them all."

Sometimes she wishes the colonial administration would circulate this advertisement around the world:

"Santa Claus, who has until now lived in Greenland, has changed his address. His new headquarters is unknown."

The Barnes creek bridge, on the Olympic highway at Lake Crescent, is open to normal traffic after being open only to one way traffic for 12 days. Northwest Water Research Board Urged by Publisher

WALLA WALLA—(AP)—Establishment of a state-financed regional corporation to develop northwest water resources was suggested Wednesday night by Roland Miller, assistant publisher of the Walla Walla Union-Bulletin.

Miller told the closing session of the Inland Empire Waterways Association convention that such an organization could function in the the same manner as a port authority. Resource developments should follow along the lines of the army engineers comprehensive report, he said.

Such an approach would keep control "in the hands of the people of the region, with development work continuing as rapidly as economically feasible."

He made the suggestion in analyzing the present method of financing Columbia river development. He said the present method of year-to-year appropriations "seems to be facing more and more hurdles as tax revenues fall and budget problems increase."

Annual appropriations make it impossible, he said, to maintain a consistent flow of funds to constructing agencies.

Miller also outlined a proposal made to congress for a double federal budget—one separating capital outlays from operating expenditures. Such a budget, he said, would put the government on a "more business like basis."

Texas is said to be named after the word "Tejas" meaning friends or allies.

Rosy Agricultural Future Visualized For Now Arid Central Washington Area

SEATTLE—(AP)—Lush fields supporting valuable cash crops and extensive livestock herds were visualized here for now arid central Washington regions in the Columbia basin project.

A picture of the area, five years hence was painted by Earl R. Franklin, reclamation economist of the project, who spoke before the annual two-day chemurgic clinic opening Thursday.

Some 47,000 acres now supporting relatively inedible jackrabbits, coyotes and other forms of wildlife will be converted through irrigation to profitable areas, Franklin said. The visitors of five years from now will drive between fenced fields of green; dairy and beef cattle will be plentiful and occasional herds of sheep, hogs and poultry will be seen. "Most important," he said, "life will have been brought to a deserted area. It will almost triple the irrigated acreage of the state of Washington."

Another 530,000 acres, 50 per cent of which now grows a crop of wheat every other year, will also be converted to an area producing a variety of crops and livestock on a comparatively intensive scale, he predicted.

The dairy and livestock areas generally will include the region north of the potholes between Moses lake and Winchester.

"On the east side of the project, there is a large body of deep soil where a wide range of crops can be grown," he said. "We have two important areas where both soil and climate indicate possibilities for tree fruit production. One of these, the Wahluke slope, will be developed only if and when the atomic energy commission removes present restrictions. The other is on Babcock ridge, west of Quincy."

He warned, however, that many farmers may have gone too far in the direction of cash cropping new land. This trend, Franklin predicted, probably will stop and more normal systems of farming be followed "if and when prices for some of these cash crops drop to more nearly historic levels.'

Dimitrov Embalmed By Red Specialists

SOFIA, Bulgaria—(AP)—Two Soviet specialists have completed the embalming of the late Premier Georgi Dimitrov, a hero of European communism, the communist party newspaper Rabotnichesko Delo announced today.

Dimitrov's embalment was done by the same two specialists who embalmed Russia's Lenin, and the body of the former Bulgarian premier, like that of Lenin, will be placed in a specially built tomb.

As Lenin's remains were placed in Moscow's Red Square, so will Dimitrov's be placed in the center of Sofia, ninth of September Square, in front of the ministerial council building.

November Wetter, Warmer Than Usual, Reports Say

Total November rainfall at the Laurel bluff weather station was 5.53 inches and at the Ediz hook station 5.24 inches. The precipitation was 1.57 inches above normal and 1.96 inches more than in October.

Average temperature on Laurel bluff was 48 degrees and on the hook, 48.2 degrees. The temperature was 5.7 degrees above normal for the month and slightly higher than in October.

November not only was wetter than that month usually is, but it was also warmer than usual.

Volunteer Observer L. G. Sutton summarizes November weather on Laurel bluff as follows:

Temperature—Average maximum 53.1, average minimum 42.8, average 48.0, above normal 5.7, highest 60 degrees Novmber 2 and lowest 35 on November 20.

Steam Bath Fatal To S.F. Policeman

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—One policeman was killed and another seriously burned in a Finnish steam bath last night.

Police Inspector Frank Ahern, head of the homicide detail, said reports from physicians attending the survivor indicated both men were victims of monoxide gas poisoning, although one may have drowned.

Both members of the San Francisco force had gone to the bath after work.

Thomas Kelly, 54, was dead when the bath house manager broke into the steaming sweat room and found him face down in scalding water. Robert P. Brown, 50, was lying face up and was crying for help, though unconscious.

Ahern found no evidence of negligence.

Shingle Makers Are Optimistic

SEATTLE—(AP)— An official of the Red Cedar Shingle Bureau sounded an optimistic note as the organization opened its annual session here today.

W. W. Woodbridge, the secretary-manager, said the year has been one of good production and expanding national markets.

"The cedar shingle industry finds itself in a most favorable position today," Woodbridge commented before the meeting opened, "and I am highly optimistic for the future. We have successfully passed the post-war transition period and are again enjoying a ready acceptance of cedar roofs and sidewalls."
