Economy, Time Change Slashes Postal Service

Mail service in Port Angeles is in for a double blow, Portmaster Emerson Lawrence said today.

Daily deliveries will be reduced soon in line with the postoffice department's recent curtailment order, while outgoing mail dispatches will be advanced in order to meet transportation schedules operating on daylight time.

The change in mail dispatches will take effect Sunday. The chief difference will be the final dispatch of outgoing mail at 4:30 p.m. instead of 5:30 as before, a mail dispatch used heavily by business firms.

Airmail dispatches also will be moved up, to meet new West Coast Airlines schedules. The old and new dispatch times are as follows:

	Old	New
Regular mail	7:00 a.m.	6:45 a.m.
	1:45 p.m.	12:45 p.m.
	5:30 p.m.	4:30 p.m.
Airmail	10:15 a.m.	9:15 a.m.
	7:15 p.m.	6:00 p.m.

With the new time schedules, the postoffice also will eliminate the morning pickup at drop boxes at 6:30 a.m., Lawrence said. Any mail dropped in boxes must be in by 8 p.m. to go in the early morning dispatch, after Sunday. The postoffice will continue to make three pickups a day from drop boxes.

TO REDUCE DELIVERIES

Lawrence also has received instructions from Washington to begin immediately rearranging city delivery routes for one delivery a day. All residential delivery in the city will be on a once-daily basis by July 1.

The postoffice order calls for one delivery daily in all residential areas, and two trips in business areas, compared to two and three, respectively, at present.

Lawrence said this will result in cutting down the present 13 city routes to 10, probably eliminating five of the postoffice's 35 local employees.

One result of this order will be to nullify the speed of airmail delivery. Airmal arriving in the morning will be delivered the next day, instead of in the afternoon as at present. The curtailment also will slow up delivery of magazines.

There will be no change in rural delivery routes.

Another phase of the curtailment order is elimination of directory service. This means that mail, including first class, which does not carry a street address will be returned to the sender. Presently such mail goes to a postal employe who looks up the proper address and gives the mail to the proper carrier.

9-Year-Old Boy Hit By Taxicab

Nine-year-old Howard Mogan is in fair condition today after being struck by a taxicab near his home about 9:30 last night. Police report the boy ran from in front of a Kiwanis bus from which he had just alighted into the path of a taxi driven by Herbert Schraver, 1124 East Sixth. Schraver's car skidded 45 feet after striking the child.

The injured boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Mogan, 1215 West Fifth street. He suffered head and other injuries, and is in Port Angeles General Hospital.

E. P. Lomax, 1833 West Fifth, was driving the bus which delivered the boy to his home. He estimated speed of Schraver's taxi at 25 to 30 miles an hour, police report.

Police issued no citations pending further investigation.

New Coast Guard Commander Here

The Ediz hook coast guard's air station's new commander has officially taken over his duties at the busy base, and has been familiarizing himself with his new territory by frequent flights since his arrival.

The new "skipper" is Cmdr. Charles Tighe, transferred here from San Diego, where he was executive officer.

This morning Commander Tighe (pronounced "Tie") flew over the Soleduck valley area with two park service men, Naturalist Gunnar Fagerlund of Olympic National Park, and Fred Overly, of Washington, D. C., park service headquarters. The park men made the flight to check on blowdowns in the area.

Victoria Has $100,000 Fire

VICTORIA, B. C.—(AP)—A three alarm fire raged through the Victoria Box and Paper company's waterfront plant more than three hours late yesterday before being brought under control. Damage was estimated at more than $1000,000.

Cause of the blaze, which started in the basement, was not known.

Several firemen were overcome temporarily by smoke and others were cut by flying glass. The only person hospitalized, however, was a spectator hurt when he stumbled over a hose.

SAIGON, Vietnam, Indochina—(AP)—Indochinese assassins today killed Lucien Bazin, assistant French police chief in Vietnam, in a daring daylight assault before his home.

The communist-led Viet Minh rebels announced on their clandestine radio a month ago that Bazin and 11 other French police officers had been condemned to death by the jungle regime of Viet Minh leader Ho Chi Minh for "causing the death of a number of Viet Minh patriots."

Fields of Tulips at Dungeness to Reach Peak of Brilliance in About 10 Days

By Dorothy Haller

Over a million bulbs and 500 varieties of tulips have been planted at the Elliott Clark farm this year, with about one-third of the bulbs in bloom at this time. Red is the predominant color during this stage of blooming although yellow, pink, white and lavendar tulips also can be seen from the road by the Clark farm.

"In about ten days," Clark explained, "the tulips should reach their greatest blooming glory and the fields will be a riot of color."

Last year hundreds drove to the fields to photograph the flowers or just see the wonderful view on a Sunday. The blooms are sold retail locally but the main purpose of growing the tulips is for wholesale delivery in Seattle and San Jose, Calif.

"The cold weather has affected the tulips slightly, making the high peak of blooming about a week later," Clark said, "and it has made the stems a bit shorter this year."

Blooming season is from March 15 to June 1, with the earliest flowers the Red Emperor Fosteriana and the Kauffmanniana, a white tulip. The latest tulip is the Englescombe, a yellow flower, he said.

"No particular variety is more popular than another," he states, and our flowers range in color from "the black "La Tulip Noire," which is actually a deep purple, to white."

Clark first ventured into the tulip business four years ago when he planted three acres as an experiment. The next year he planted six acres and reached a peak of eight acres last year and this year, although he hopes to plant more acreage in the future.

The soil and the climate are both good for tulip growth in the area near the Clark farm. The blooms are taken from the bulbs after they have bloomed for 10 days. This aids the growth of the bulb.

About six people are employed at planting and digging time and at the time the bulbs are peeled, following a drying process. Robert and "Bud," his sons, both help the year around.

The Clarks are now experimenting with gladioli, this being the second year they have planted them. The first year 5,000 were planted, but they put in 10,000 this year. Ten varieties have been planted and the blooming should be in July. The Clarks do not plan to sell any gladioli this year, but if all goes well they may sell some next year.

HYACINTHS TOO

On the E. C. Bigelow farm, just down the road from the Clark residence, another bulb farm is located, but the Bigelow's specialize in Easter lilies with hyacinths as a sideline.

The hyacinths have just finished blooming for this year although scores of people viewed the flowers before their decline. Fifty thousand bulbs and 20 varieties were planted this year compared to 30,000 last year. The bulbs are sold wholesale but Bigelow plans to sell retail locally next year and plant only 10,000 or so bulbs.

The Bigelows mainly plant Easter lilies, with 35,000 bulbs in this year.

"Only a tenth of the blooms," Bigelow explained, will be used for Easter lilies or such, with the remainder used in floral decorations." The Bigelows plant the Croft lily and have practically no retail trade in the bulbs, being mainly sold wholsale and ultimately sold in greenhouses. The month of blooming is actually July, although blooming is forced in time for Easter by most greenhouses.

Bigelow always has been interested in the lily but began growing them only six years ago. His farm, similar to Clark's, has grown steadily, with 20,000 planted last year to the 35,000 this year.

Other Lilies also are found on the Bigelow ranch. For five years he has planted the yellow and white calla lilies which bloom in July or August. This year he has 1,500 bulbs, which often grow from one to seven flowers on a stem.

He also has 1,500 bulbs of the Speciosim Rubrum, commonly known as the "pink tiger lily." These bulbs often produce from one to 15 blooms on a stem, and are sold retail.

The Lilium Umbellatum, or the "candlestick" lily, ranges in color from orange to dark red and its blooms one to 14 per stem, are fashioned on the stem similar to a candelabra. The Bigelows have about 1,000 bulbs planted this year.

"We are more interested in the growth of the bulbs," Bigelow reports, "rather than that of the flower itself, since the bulbs are the articles sold, not the bloom."

There is another bulb raiser on the Bigelow farm, Henry Bigelow, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow. He started with a half-shoe box full of small tulip bulbs four years ago and now has nearly 5,000 mixed bulbs. It took two years of growing and planting before the bulbs produced a bloom, but last year and this year they have bloomed.

Henry has not named the tulips yet, but sells the flowers mainly on a local retail basis.

French Oust Commie Scientist from Post

PARIS—(AP)— The French government decided today to fire Frederic Joliot-Curie, communist scientist, as chief of France's atomic energy commission.

Center and right wing leaders and newspapers have been demanding such action ever since Joliot-Curie told the 12th national congress of the French communist party early this month that "communist scientists will never contribute a particle of their science to a war against the Soviet Union."

The cabinet of Premier Georges Bidault reached the decision in a session this morning.

The 50-year-old scientist, Nobel prize winner in chemistry in 1935, was appointed in 1946 by Gen. Charles De Gaulle, then president, to head the French atomic energy commission.

Since that time Joliot-Curie's name frequently has been associated with communist activities. Late last year he attended the Rome meeting of the pro-Soviet peace partisans, which spearheaded a communist-blessed world peace congress. Shortly thereafter he visited Moscow.

The scientist's speeches invariably defended the position of the Soviet Union in the postwar diplomatic struggle. His comments at communist-sponsored meetings caused a broad section of French opinion to attack him as untrustworthy in his post.

Lattimore No Red, Latest Witness Says

By Marvin L. Arrowsmith

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Frederick Vanderbilt Field denied today that he ever tagged Owen Lattimore as a communist, but refused in the face of threatened contempt charges to say whether he himself is one.

Field was specific and emphatic about Lattimore. He said he knew him and that it was "utterly false" that he ever told anyone that Lattimore or Mrs. Lattimore was a communist, or that he ever attended a communist meeting with them.

Field was emphatic also in denying that he is a Soviet espionage agent. He said he denied that "without qualification or reservation."

Field was called as a witness because of testimony the committee got last week from Louis F. Budenz, former communist editor.

Budenz said Field had told him that Lattimore, a Johns Hopkins university professor, was a communist Budenz also said that Field himself was a Soviet agent.

The committee is investigating charges from Senator McCarthy (R-Wis), that the state department is infiltrated by communists. McCarthy has made Lattimore, some time a consultant to the department the central figure of his charges by saying he is willing to stand or fall as to his charges on the Lattimore case.

Field was the second man to dispute Budenz's testimony about Lattimore. Yesterday, Earl Browder denied that he had ever told Budenz that Lattimore was a communist, as Budenz had testified. Browder, former American communist party head, said he had never met Lattimore but knew him by reputation as anti-communist.

Today's session followed a new senate speech by Senator McCarthy (R-Wis), author of the communism-in-the government charges which are being investigated by a senate foreign relations subcommittee.

McCarthy told the senate late yesterday that state department official Haldore Hanson is the man on whom Louis Budenz "put the finger" as a communist in secret testimony Tuesday.

Senator McMahon (D-Conn), a member of the investigating committee, interrupted to declare that the inquiry group unanimously authorized him to say McCarthy was "not accurate" in his remarks about Hanson.

McCarthy declared further that President Truman's loyalty review board has received FBI reports on John S. Service, state department career diplomat, which "strongly indicate the wisdom" of ousting him immediately, "to say the very least." Service has denied McCarthy's charge that he is a communist sympathizer.

The Wisconsin republican ran into a prompt denial when he said the review board had repeatedly asked the state department's loyalty board for Service's file during 1949.

Brig. Gen. Conrad E. Snow, head of the state department panel, termed that statement "entirely false."

Veteran TWA Pilot Gets Closeup View Of Flying Saucer

KANSAS CITY—(AP)—Capt. Robert Adickes, veteran trans world airline pilot, can hardly believe it either but he thinks he saw a flying saucer.

And he has witnesses to back him up—his first officer, his hostess and some of the 19 passengers aboard a flight from Washington to Chicago last night.

It happened between Goshen, Ind., and Chicago about 7:25 p.m.

Adickes, 29, of Kansas City, reported he was flying about 2,000 feet when his co-pilot, Robert Manning, also of Kansas City, called his attention to the strange object.

Manning couldn't believe his eyes and he said he observed it for a minute or two before he told Adickes about it. To confirm what they saw they called the hostess, Miss Gloria Hinshaw, also of Kansas City. Then they told the 19 passengers aboard about it.

"Most of them said they saw it," Adickes reported.

"The object was about a half a mile away when we first saw it," he said. "It was flying along side our plane in the same direction and going about 200 miles an hour."

Adickes said he decided to try to approach the object, which glowed like a giant red cherry in the sky.

Each time he tried to move into a closer position, he said, the flying saucer moved with his two-engine plane, a DC-3.

"It is my personal opinion," he said today, "that it was equipped with some sort of repulse radar. The object from the distance we saw it appeared to be about 20 to 50 feet in diameter and about five feet thick.

"It was a disc sort of an affair and appeared to fly on its edge just like a wheel going down the highway."

Adickes said that everytime he stepped up his plane to try to get closer to the strange object that it, too, speeded up. He estimated that it jumped up to 350 to 400 miles an hour.

He added that he believed there was "nothing super-nautral about it."

"It was very evident," he said, "that it was a man-made and a man-controlled machine."

Adickes has been flying for TWA eight and one half years, the last six years as a pilot.

Hoover Proposes Democratic Nations Reorganize UN, Leave Communists Out

NEW YORK—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover says "the United Nations should be reorganized without the communist nations in it."

"If that is impractical," he declares, "then a definite new united front should be organized of those peoples who disavow communism, who stand for morals and religion, and who love freedom. . . ."

America's only living ex-president outlined his vision of a new international setup last night in an address before the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

'SURE WAY TO WAR'

LAKE SUCCESS — (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today former president Herbert Hoover's two-world speech advocates "the surest way to war."

The widow of the wartime president, active in United Nations affairs since the beginning of the world peace organization, was asked for comment on Mr. Hoover's proposal to reorganize the UN in a way to shut out Russia and other communist countries.

"I think it was an odd speech for a Quaker," Mrs. Roosevelt said. "It is the surest way to war, and for a Quaker to advocate a step toward war is odd."

He said the United States is becoming more and more isolated as the sole contender in this cold war" and is "steadily losing ground" to Russia and her allies.

Assailing the Soviet regime — which was not recognized by the U. S. until after he left the White House—Mr. Hoover said there is great need for a dynamic "new united front" against "creeping red imperialism."

"This is not one world—but two worlds," he declared.

"The one world idea seems to be lost in the secret files. One world is militaristic, imperialistic, atheistic and without compassion. The other world still holds to belief in God, free nations' human dignity and peace."

Discussing the cold war, Mr. Hoover said "the United States needs to know who are with us . . . and whom we can depend on."

CHEERED BY DINERS

The diners cheered the 75-year-old ex-president's proposals for a new United Nations, and his address was frequently interrupted by applause. The 1,800 persons present stood, shouted and whistled for nearly a minute both before and after the address. To some, it recalled the great ovation given to Mr. Hoover — emerged from years of comparative obscurity—at the 1948 republican national convention.

Mr. Hoover told the publishers group that since the days of Peter the Great the Russians have grabbed territory "like a burglar going down a hall."

"If the free nations join together," he declared, "they have many potent moral, spiritual and even economic weapons at their disposal.

"They would unlikely ever need such weapons. Such a phalanx of free nations could come far nearer to making a workable relation with the other half of the two worlds than the United States can ever do alone."

He said that by collective action, the free nations could more effectively keep the communists' "conspiring agents and bribers out of all borders and out of our laboratories."

Mr. Hoover said that he warned American people nine years ago that collaboration with Stalin to bring freedom to mankind was "a gargantual jest." He declared last night "I used the wrong word. I should have said tragic."

SENATORS FAVORABLE

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Herbert Hoover's proposal that the United Nations be reorganized — without communists—struck a popular note today among democratic and republican lawmakers.

While Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the senate foreign relations committee declined public comment, Senator George (D-Ga) appeared to be reflecting widespread democratic sentiment when he said he regards such a move as "inevitable."

"Ultimately we will have to come to that," George told a reporter. "I have felt such a move is inevitable since Russia demonstrated that she will not keep her agreements.

"If the United Nations isn't reorganized it is difficult to see how it can continue with any strong promise of success."

Hoover's proposal for a change in the present setup might require either withdrawal of the free nations from the UN to form another organization or their solid support of a move to change the charter and exclude the Soviets and their followers.

Charter changes require two-thirds approval of the members of the general assembly, plus approval by any seven members of the security council.

There was no immediate White House reaction to Hoover's proposal.

EX-FBI GIRL SLAIN—The body of former FBI girl Bettie Renner (above), 38, brutally beaten about the head and nude except for a brassiere, was found jammed into a narrow well opening in an abandoned stone quarry in Nassau, Bahamas. 2 Americans Killed By Indonesian Gang

JAKARTA, U. S. I.—(AP)—A Yale professor and an American correspondent were slain yesterday in west Java—the apparent victims of a murderous gang whose motives could not be determined.

The two were Prof. Raymond Kennedy, 43, of Yale University, a noted sociologist known to his students as "Jungle Jim" because of his urge to explore remote places, and Robert Doyle, 30, a native of Chicago who worked for Time and Life magazines out of Hong Kong.

A spokesman for the American embassy said the two were killed on a paved highway near Tomo. This is a beautiful mountainous area where fanatical guerrilla bands were active during the Dutch-Indonesian warfare. There was an indication the bodies may have been mutilated.

The road has been considered safe for daytime travel in recent months but most foreigners do not venture along it at night.

The two left Jakarta Wednesday for Jogjakarta, capital of the Indonesian republic. They spent the night in Bandoeng, and hoped to make Jogjakarta by last night.

Col. Karl Hisgen, an American observer, got the first report of the killings from the British U. N. Military observer stationed at Bandoeng, Lt. Col. F. Day.

Radio Jakarta, quoting its Bandoeng correspondent, broadcast this version of the killing::

Kennedy and Doyle were stopped in their jeep Thursday noon by a gang of four or five men in uniform. They were taken to a clearing in the forest and were shot. Villagers were forced to bury them. Then the gang made their getaway toward Cherimon in a sedan they stopped on the road at about the same time.

Big Bookie 'Clams Up' When Faced by Senate Quizzers

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Pudgy-faced Frank Erickson, reputedly one of the nation's biggest bookmakers, clammed up today and refused to answer senators' questions about his gambling business.

Erickson acknowledged to a senate commerce subcommittee that he accepted wagers from anybody who wanted to bet.

But then the New Yorker, who was labelled a "tin horn punk" by the late Mayor Fiorello H.La Guardia, claimed questions about his business infringed on his constitutional rights. So, he refused to answer.

Erickson's attorney, O. R. McGruire, said his bald-round-faced client didn't want to answer to questions that would "involve him with local authorities."

Senator Tobey (R-NH) exploded: "Is this to be a farce with this man parroting 'I stand on my constitutional rights'?"

The subcommittee is studying a bill designed to ban the movement of gambling information across state lines.

Before Erickson began testifying, Mayor William E. Kemp of Kansas City told senators that Charles Binaggio, a political leader, may have been slain because he was unable to deliver on a promise that the city would be thrown wide open to gambling.

Kemp said "some lawless elements," including Binaggio, had entertained "high hopes" they would be able to influence the police department to let gambling run wide open because of some appointments made by the governor to the city police board.

"Their hopes did not materialize," Kemp said.

Kemp said one members of the Kansas City police board who now has resigned, frankly believed in having "gambling and some forms of amusement for visitors who come to the city."

The senate group is studying a bill designed to ban the movement of gambling information across state lines. City and state officials have testified such a measure would be a big help in controlling race horse bookmaking and organized gambling.

While the senate subcommittee is looking into one phase of nationwide gambling, a resolution before the senate would set up a special foreman committee to look into the whole field of organized gambling and crime.

So far, the resolution's sponsor, Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn) has been unable to persuade senate leaders to give the proposal right-of-way over other major legislation.

Tito Views Danger Of War With Soviet as Remote

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — (AP) — Premier Marshal Tito said flatly today that he sees no immediate danger of war with the Soviet Union.

"I do not see any immediate danger of war," Tito declared at a press conference for foreign correspondents, the first he has held in recent years.

"In no case," he declared, "do I think the Soviet Union would risk becoming the aggressor."

Tito's declaration came after he was asked if he would welcome arms aid from the United States.

The marshal replied that he did not consider America would offer him arms, and added that his country had the means of making its own arms.

He contended that the best way to settle international disputes is through the United Nations.

Tito declared that Yugoslavia is "willing to start direct negotiations" with Italy over differences between the two countries. He told parliament yesterday he hoped for improvement of relations with Italy.

He made it clear, however, that his country is not prepared to trade away its interests in the disputed free territory of Trieste, part of which now is controlled by Yugoslav troops.

Declaring that Yugoslavia would not use Trieste "as a basis for trade" with Italy, Tito declared it is not up to Yugoslavia to make proposals for settlement but up to the Italian government.

To another question Tito expressed conviction that Russia is "not preparing an attack upon us." He said Yugoslavia meanwhile remains "cool and patient."

Asked whether he thought there was any possibility of solving Yugoslavia's two-year feud with the Moscow-led cominform, Tito replied:

"It's not up to us to say. It probably will last for a certain time. But it must be solved ultimately so that at least normal or bearable relations will be established."

Kansas City Officials Defy Governor's Order

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—(AP)— Two members of the Kansas City police board, target of severe criticism since the slaying of politician Charles Binaggio, today defied the governor to fire them.

And Gov. Forrest Smith says he'll do just that—as soon as he gets their formal refusal to resign.

The governor, who wants to set up an entirely new police board, yesterday asked Hampton S. Chambers and R. Robert Cohn to resign "in the public interest."

Loses Pension for Not Occupying Home

SPOKANE —(AP)— A 76-year-old Deer Park, Wash., man yesterday lost a superior court suit brought to get his name back on the state pension rolls.

Lars F. Jensen was cut from the pension list last November when the welfare department found he owned a $2,000 home and was living in the home of a 90-year-old neighbor, also a pensioner.

Judge Raymond F. Kelly ruled that initiative 172 governing state aid needy persons does not allow a pensioner owning a home to live in another home and still remain eligible for a pension.

Converted Plane 'Can-Do-Anything'

SEATTLE — (AP) — The Boeing Airplane Company delivered to the U. S. air force today its first Superfortress converted for use as a bomber, photographic laboratory or weather reconnaissance ship.

The multi-purpose RB-50B plane capable of 300-to-400 mile an hour speeds was delivered to air force pilots at Boeing's Wichita, Kan., plant. It will be based at the air proving ground, Elgin air force base, Fla.

At Elgin, the plane is destined for several weeks "refrigeration" in the air force's special climatic hangar for cold weather tests. If it passes these tests, the air force has scheduled it for assignment to a strategic reconnaissance group at the Barksdale, La., air force base.

The can-do-anything craft is equipped with four camera stations and nine camera mounts capable of photographing objects at virtually any angle.

A flying weather laboratory which records humidity, pressures, temperatures, other weather forecasting paraphernalia and the customary military equipment round out the plane's complement.

Little Surprises Help to Make Homecoming More Delightful

By Lois Crisler

The choicest homecoming is one with a surprise in it. It doesn't have to be a big surprise. Just a few choice tidbits of surprises that may look small on the outside can add a completely satisfying flavor.

At first it looked as if this time Cris and I would have to take our homecoming straight, untinged with surprise.

It tasted pretty good at that. We had begun to savor the first far sparkles of homecoming as soon as we were west of the Pecos, down in Texas.

By the time we reached California and the first fringe of home friends, we felt that we were already in the penumbra of the lonesome little log cabin in the Olympics that is home to Cris and me. Little old Humes ranch.

We reached our first Washington friend in Olympia. Ernst Freitag.

We couldn't surprise Ernst. He knew we were coming. In fact, he sat reading, facing the window past which we had to drive.

But at the moment we passed, he happened to have his paper up. He didn't spy us. Cris parked out of sight and we stole back to the door, hoping to surprise him a little bit anyway.

But the door flew open. Out came Ernst, his arms wide, with a big gruff bellow, "Well, well, Cris!"

Ernst is a steel bridge designer, an engineer. Now an engineer is a man who will work hard to figure out how to avoid work.

So it surprised us when presently Ernst slipped out to the kitchen and puttered a few minutes. Then he called us to a feast he had prepared all by himself.

He had plates heaped up and crowded with green vegetables like a meal from the Ga'den at Humes ranch. He had a quart of buttermilk for Cris and a bottle of pure whipping cream for me.

Last winter he had built a fine play-back. Before we arrived he had stacked it with records. And all through this homecoming feast there was a great joyous uproar of Wagner, Beethoven, Tchaikovski.

Best of all, Ernst was ready to listen while we unloaded!

NEWS IN SEATTLE

We had no sooner reached Seattle than we ran into our second surprise.

Cris took the truck to the garage while I went up to our room at the hotel. I thought Cris was a little slow returning. When he came in he tried to act nonchalant. But he looked as plumy as a cat that has caught a mouse and brought it in for the family to admire.

Cris' "mouse" was a piece of news. His former partner, Don, was married. Cris had dropped into a drugstore. The girl clerk had recognized him from seeing him at our lecture last fall. She was the one who had told him the news. This tickled Cris. He figured he was putting one over on Don.

That afternoon he picked up another tidbit of news. He heard that Don and his bride had gone up to Humes ranch on their honeymoon.

When we went out to see Don himself, he evidently thought he had a big surprise for Cris. He and Amy tried to act very unrelated. Actually they both glittered all over.

Cris grinned from ear to ear. "I hear you're married," he said.

Don howled and slapped Amy on the shoulders. "You big so and so," he yelled at Cris. "How did you find it out?"

Cris purred. With deep gratification he brought out his second mouse. "Hear you spent yo' honeymoon at Humes ranch," he said.

For one second Don's eyes got wide. Then he and Amy grabbed each other and buried their faces on each other's shoulders, laughing.

They straightened up and gave each other a look. That look had a premonitory gleam of cat-caught-a-mouse itself. It was even a mouse-caught-a-cat-sized look.

SURPRISE AT RANCH

Demurely they showed us their wedding pictures. Then Amy burst out, "Where are those pictures of —"

Don drowned her out. "If you say another word," he yelled, "I'll wring your neck."

Don organized a bunch of snapshots in his hand as illustrations. He settled himself at the head of the table. ("This is a production," Amy murmured to us.)

Then Don doled out the pictures and unfolded the crowning surprise. Amy shoved the story along with smiles and giggles and asides.

It seems that they went up to Humes ranch in dripping rain. The road was blocked by slides. They took their packs, left the car and walked five or six miles to the ranch.

Amy had never been there before. They tiptoed into the yard, alert for a possible glimpse of wild animals in the clearing.

No water was coming down the water log where we get our water. Don turned and whispered, "No water." This left Amy a little blank. As far as she could see there was water everywhere.

They saw animals all right. A dozen elk were grazing down in the pasture. Don took a few pictures.

The next morning he started up to the woodpile by the bothy to bring down some wood.

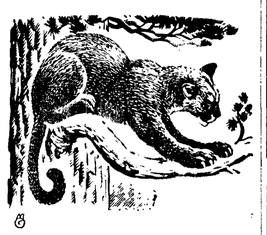
As he crossed Cris' little forest bridge and stepped into the swamped-out deer trail to the bothy, he thought "It would be just my luck to go up there with no camera and see a deer."

It was still pouring rain. When he came to the woodpile, he glanced ahead at the bothy and decided to stroll over and look in.

The bothy is an open log lean-to. Cris built it for our guests to sleep in. It is something like a park lean-to, except that Chris cut and framed a wide opening, like a window, in the center of the back wall. Also he had made a pleasant bed, a movable log crib on the floor, and filled it with ferns.

Don did not think of being quiet. But the water-soaked forest duff made no sound.

He came to the side of the bothy and looked in.



There on the bed, three feet away from him, lay a fine big wildcat, fast asleep.

It was curled up luxuriously, nose to flank, in the nice dry shelter, on the bed, while all around the world dripped gray.

Don looked at the cat. The cat lifted its head, with one eye still closed, and looked at Don.

The cat could hardly believe what it saw. Its other eye opened. Don disappeared from the cat's view.

There was just one thing he wanted more than anything else in the world. His camera.

He walked—not ran—back past the woodpile. "I won't look," he thought. "Maybe it will go back to sleep!"

At the mouth of the trail he just had to glance back. The wildcat stood looking out the back "window" at him, its paws on the sill.

Once out of sight, Don ran. Amy said he tore into the cabin, his eyes like saucers. He yelled directions. "Where's my camera? Get your coat. Keep still."

They stole back, but Stik Puss-puss was gone. On the bed was a deep nest nestled in the dry ferns.

More than once Cris and I have observed that a cat has denned up for a short time in old unused shelters.

Our place must have been ideal from this cat's point of view, because it had two exits. He could not be hemmed in.

Privately I hope that wildcat was there waiting for the Crislers to come home.

STALKED BY WILDCAT

It reminded me of the first honeymooners who came up to Humes ranch. In fact Al and Beryl were the second people to visit us after we moved up there. Don himself was the first.

Cris and I were walking through the forest snow, out to Whiskey Bend. Around a turn ahead came two dark human figures. I felt so far away from people that for a moment it almost bewildered me to see human beings.

The road was snowed under. Al had left their car a couple of miles down the mountain.

The next day we all walked down to the car together. A wildcat had picked up their trail almost as soon as they left the car and had followed it to where they met us. The cat had stepped along in Al's track the whole way.

There was some ribald argument about why the cat had selected Al's track. Of course the real reason was that Al's feet made a wider trail in the snow than did Beryl's.

In spite of the cat stalking our first honeymooners, since then we have had a lot of honeymooners at Humes ranch.

Cris and I will kind of feel like honeymooners ourselves when we get home to the ranch.

But that won't be until after showings in different towns—Chehalis, Olympia, Hoodsport, Sequim, Forks and Clallam Bay.

"OPEN DOOR" POLICY

EDMONTON, Alta. —(CP)— Decisive action may be taken by the British Columbia government to end Doukhobor terrorism in the Kootenays.

Attorney-General Gordon S. Wismer in an interview here Thursday described the situation as serious and he hinted decisive action might be taken.

"You might say we favor the 'open door' policy for the Doukhobors," he said.

"The door is open and they can leave any time. There's only one thing, who is going to take them?"

Russ Turn Iran Into Hot Front in Cold War

By Stanley Swinton

TEHRAN, Iran—(AP)—A pepped up Soviet propaganda offensive has once more made Iran a hot front in the cold war.

The "Free Azerbaijan radio," operating from inside the Soviet Union, is spearheading the campaign against the neighboring Iranian government. The new broadcast line started about 10 weeks ago and has been mounting steadily in violence, even inciting Iranians to revolt.

Before that the Soviets, for a long period, had tempered their propaganda campaign against Iran in an apparent attempt to improve relations with their oil-rich southern neighbor.

A recent Washington dispatch said U.S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson was deeply concerned over alarming reports reaching him from the American ambassador to Tehran, John C. Wiley. The communist campaign, state department experts said, has been helped greatly by economic troubles following last year's cereal crop failure in Iran.

U. S. MISSION

A U.S. survey mission soon may be sent to recommend aid for this strategic Middle East country on the eastern end of the anti-communist cordon.

Reports of radio monitors here show these four consistent propaganda themes in Soviet broadcasts beamed this way:

1. An attempt to blame United States "intervention" for Iran's economic depression.

2. Persistent charges that the U.S. is turning the Iranian army into an "American stooge."

3. An attempt to picture the shah—hitherto usually exempt from Soviet attacks—as under American influence.

4. An effort to picture the Iranian government as so corrupt it should be overthrown.

Accompanying these attacks are paens of praise for the outlawed Tudeh (communist) party, whose growth since economic depression began here has western diplomats openly worried.

One American source who follows the Azerbaijan radio said that one recent broadcast called for an open revolt.

'I AM AN AMERICAN' DAY

OLYMPIA — (AP) — Washington residents will observe "I Am An American Day" Sunday, May 21.

The observance was proclaimed yesterday by Governor Langlie who stressed that the day should be used, not only to honor persons gaining citizenship during the last year, but also by all Americans "to reaffirm their faith in the principles of liberty, justice, equality and opportunity. . ."

In urging greater use of bird dogs to retrieve, game officials say 11.5 per cent of the ducks shot on Utah's marsh lands are not recovered.

PLANTINGS SCHEDULED

PORTLAND—(AP)— Forest service crews intend to plant 5,000,000 seedlings in national forests in Oregon and Washington this spring.

They will be planted on 8,000 acres, bringing the total reforested area up to 98,500 acres.

HAL BOYLE SAYS—

Galloping Gertie—Tacoma Narrows Bridge to You—Has Daughter Now

TACOMA—(AP)— Galloping Gertie, the greatest shimmy shaker of the 20th century, has a daughter who makes her debut this autumn.

The debutante is expected to be much more stable than her mother, who plumb shook herself to pieces.

Who was Galloping Gertie? Well, the boys with the slide rules all know the answer to that one. They'll never forget her.

Gertie was a bridge—a slender, tremulous suspension bridge—which became the victim of what is known as "the Pearl Harbor of American civil engineering."

It happened on Nov. 7, 1940, when Gertie was just slightly more than four months old. She spanned the breeze-whipped Tacoma narrows, and some 265,000 cars had passed across her. From the start she had been a very nervous bridge. She quivered like Gilda Gray—or a plucked guitar string—in any steady wind.

But on this stormy November day she vibrated herself apart and collapsed into a multi-million dollar ruin into Puget sound.

The event shook some of the methematical certainty out of engineering circles. They learned the sad lesson that wind pressure could shake a suspension bridge apart as quickly as too great a weight strain could break it in half. The trouble was no one really knew much about the aerodynamics of bridges.

"It had to happen sometime and we were just the goats," said Charles E. Andrew, principal engineer of the Washington toll bridge authority.

"There was an instability of design—the bridge was too narrow. When it was being built, it swayed so much some of the riveters actually became seasick."

After it was opened the shimmy antics of Galloping Gertie made her a kind of public entertainment. Thousands drove many miles just for the thrill of going across a bridge that acted like it was a roller coaster.

"Sometimes there were 50 cars lined up waiting to go over," recalled Andrew. "People are funny."

Plans were drawn to strengthen Gertie. But before they could be carried out the storm came—and Gertie wasn't there anymore.

Now she has a $14,000,000 daughter in her place, a huskier span that will be the world's third longest suspension bridge upon completion this September. And the 5,000-foot new bridge embodies new construction principles .

"We spent three and a half years studying aerodynamic oscillation caused by the wind passing over a fixed object," said Andrew. "We tested models in a wind tunnel—just as airplane manufacturers do."

The research disclosed that a steady wind of 40 to 50 miles an hour could cause more vibration damage than 100-mile-an-hour gusts. The new bridge has slotted roadways and deep supporting trusses to equalize or nullify wind pressures.

Work on Gertie the 2nd has been slowed by a fire and an earthquake. But it annoys Andrew greatly to have her referred to as "the jinx bridge." She is wider and stronger than her mother, and built in conformance to aerodynamic principles unknown ten years ago. She is constructed to withstand steady winds of 125 miles an hour, and the highest wind ever recorded across the straits is only about 84.

It was a 45-mile-an-hour wind that collapsed Gertie the first—and Andrew is certain Gertie's daughter will never meet that fate. When anyone asks how long she'll last, he says confidently:

"She'll last longer than you will."

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

His Punch is His Signature

Was on the train up to Central City the other day and when the conductor came around, I asked him why their ticket punches make such odd-shaped holes in the ticket.

"Every conductor in the country has a different design for his punch," he tells me. "Some even show up a fellow's preferences. Now take mine. The hole it makes looks like a beer goblet."

Sure enough! Then he went on to say that the punch is just like the conductor's signature. Makes it easy to trace tickets . . . to check up if something happens.

From where I sit, even though your ticket is punched differently from mine, it still gets you where you're going. Just like people with their opinions. You might like coffee, another person, tea—and I'll settle for a temperate glass of beer. But what does it matter, so long as we respect the right of the other to have tastes and opinions? We're all trying to go in the same direction — towards a friendlier, more pleasant world for all of us.

Charm School For Teachers Proves Popular in Philadelphia

By Billee Wheelock

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— "Walking is harder than you think," said the teacher as she promenaded up and down before 100 other teachers who watched with edge-of-chair attention.

On the blackboard in perfect Palmer method script was the tip-off: "Charm School for Teachers."

The promenader was Mary Senk who volunteered as an object lesson on how not to walk.

Miss Senk, who has nice, humorous blue eyes, confided to her fellow instructors and charm school demonstrator Violet Hale, "My trouble is tense knees."

She and all the other school marms — young and old, tall and short — were crowded into the small auditorium of a Philadelphia grade school to learn how to be charming in six weeks.

Once a week in a two hour session after school the teachers are being taught how to sit, how to stand, what to wear and how to use their hands and voices more effectively.

Later on there will be an hour or two on make-up application, appropriate hair styles, and a fashion show.

SALARY INCREASE

It's a board of education project aimed at making the ladies conscious of their eye-appeal. Each woman who completes the course will be given a credit which counts in salary increase considerations.

For the opener last week more than 150 teachers were signed up, but lack of space limited the enrollees to 100.

Then the word spread throughout the school system and hundreds of others said they wanted to come too. So a messenger was sent from school to school today to tell them there was no more room.

This, said Principal Helen Blount who is in charge, means the charm school has come to stay in the Philadelphia school system.

Today's charm expert, Miss Hale of television station WFIL-TV, spent two hours talking and demonstrating the art of walking and sitting.

The teachers took notes madly, craned their necks and didn't seem to hear at all the outside spring-day noises of school children playing baseball.

Instructed Miss Hale: "Stand up, tummy in and up, chest up and out, chin up and straighten your backs."

And the teachers followed through, point by point.

Miss Hale, a well-put-together example of what she teaches, brooked no nonsense.

When there was too much whispering at one point she admonished quickly: "Girls, I think you're being rude."

But like students anywhere, the teachers were just bubbling over with unrestrained enthusiasm.

As Anna Rita Fieo, grade school teacher-counselor explained: "This is just what we teachers need — something to make us more attractive to the children. Boys and girls like pretty teachers."

20,000 AT FARM DAY

REDMOND, Wash.—(AP)—A farming demonstration drew a crowd here yesterday to rival a major sports event.

An estimated 20,000 people turned out for the "farm face-lifting day" at the 500-acre Marymoor farm. Machinery hummed all over the place in demonstrations of modern techniques and scientific methods.

Oregon Indian Woman Named As Nation's Mother of the Year

PORTLAND —(AP)— Mrs. Henry Roe Cloud, who started life in an Indian reservation log cabin, is the mother of the year.

The first of her race to be selected, she was named by the American Mothers' committee in New York City.

Typically, the 59-year-old mother of four daughters was too busy to learn the news at once. She was speaking before churchwomen when the committee first tried to telephone her. Then she was off on her rounds as chairman of the Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs and chairman of the Indian welfare committee. Only hours later did she learn of the honor.

The committee cited her religious honesty and the character and achievements of her children in selecting her from 52 candidates, representing all the states, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii and Pureto Rico.

She was born on the White Earth Indian reservation at Fosston, Minn., as Elizabeth Bender. Her mother was a Chippewa Indian, her father a German homesteader.

She is not the first of her family to achieve fame. Her brother, Charles, starred in baseball for years as Chief Bender, pitcher for the Philadelphia Athletics, a team he still is with as a scout.

Mrs. Roe Cloud was graduated from Hampton, Va., Institute. Later she taught school for the Blackfoot Indians in Montana.

Then she was married to Henry Roe Cloud, a full-blooded Winnebago, who was the first Indian graduate from Yale University. Their four daughters were born at the American Indian Institute for Boys at Wichita, Kas., which he founded.

The eldest daughter, now Mrs. Edward Hughes, 32, Portland, was the first Indian girl graduated from Wellesley College. The other three also are college graduates, all winning scholarships and financing their education with summer work.

Her husband became a leader in Indian affairs as she did in women's affairs. He was active in Indian education, then became superintendent of the Umatilla reservation in Oregon. At death he was regional representative of the bureau of Indian affairs.

Mrs. Roe Cloud was named by President Roosevelt to be a delegate to a White House conference in 1940 on children and youth.

When named Oregon mother earlier this year, she protested that others must be worthier. When selected "American mother of 1950" yesterday, she accepted in a telegram that said:

"I accept your committee's selection with the greatest of humility. My only hope is that I may prove worthy in representing all American mothers. Thank you from a very full heart."

She will receive a medal and scroll at ceremonies in New York City May 12.

Census Count Nears 7,000

Unofficial census figures released this week indicate Port Townsend's 1950 population will exceed 7,000, including the total 1,600 single army men at Fort Worden. The fort was included in the city population total in 1930 and 1940. The city's official 1940 census, including the fort, was 4,683.

May Reconsider Time

Port Townsend councilmen may reconsider their decision to adopt daylight saving time at their meeting next Tuesday night, according to Mayor Harry E. Anderson. The council vote in favor of daylight time was five to two, but the mayor said he believes two councilmen have changed their minds.

Fair Secretary Resigns

'Bomb' Is Drift Signal

Rumors of a bomb found in the Port Ludlow district evaporated this week when the Fort Worden ordnance department found the suspicious-looking contraption was a drift signal dropped from aircraft to determine wind velocity and direction. Some residents of the area were fearful it was a bomb dropped from some of the Japanese balloons which drifted over this section during the war.

Organization Briefs

WASHINGTON STATE NURSES ASSOCIATION, district 12, will meet Monday night at 8 with Mrs. Gertrude Andrews. Reports during the meeting will include those of Mrs. Maybeth Williams and Doris Stuart, delegates to the recent state convention.

OLYMPIC SADDLE CLUB will have breakfast at the clubhouse Sunday at 10 a.m. instead of at Keith Smith's home as planned. Afterward members will practice pole bending and other stunts for the May Day and Fourth of July shows.

WASHINGTON SPASTIC CHILDREN'S SOCIETY, Clallam county chapter, will hold a special meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Eagles hall. "Important developments make it necessary to hold this special public meeting," R. C. Hutchison, president, announces. All parents of cerebral palsied children are urged to attend, he said.

DRY CREEK PTA elected Mrs. Wilbur Johnson president for the coming year at its meeting Wednesday night at the school. Mrs. Herman Evanger will be vice president and Mrs. Patrick Dunbar will serve as secretary. Dorothy Romans showed colored slides of her trip to South America during the program following the business meeting.

PTA Sponsors Kids' Movies Saturday

Washington PTA is sponsoring a children's two-hour movie Saturday morning at the Lincoln Theatre. The entertainment will start at 10 a.m., featuring "The Last of the Mohicans" starring Randolph Scott. This picture is recommended by the national PTA, local sponsors point out.

Included in the show are three comedies, "Bird in the Head," "Island Fling" and "John Henry and Inky Pod."

Proceeds will benefit Washington school and help send delegates to the PTA convention.

New Books in The City Library

The Angler's Handbook, by Ted Trueblood. Crowell, 1949. Hardy's Favorite, Black Demon, Royal Coachman. No, this isn't the starting lineup at Santa Anita. They're suggested flies for steelhead fishing. Reviews indicate this book is good bait for fisherman.

Modern Arms and Free Men, by Vannevar Bush. Schuster, 1949. A scientist discusses the role of science in preserving the peace in this atomic age.

Norwegian Holiday, by Harlan Major. Funk, 1950. Now's the time to make vacation plans. This one covers hotels, driving routes, skiing, hiking, and even lists the best fishing rivers—readers of the first book on this list, take note.

The Art of Living, by Saul Steinberg. Harper, 1949. Doodle-like satires on this our life. They are the Thurber kind of funny rather than the Ted Key "Hazel" (Saturday Evening Post) kind of funny—if that helps any.

Paper Sculpture, by Tadeusz Lipski. Studio, 1947. A creative and entertaining hobby for people who have next to nothing in their budgets under the heading of "hobbies." A few cents gets you started on this one.

Grange News

Pomona Club completed its plans Wednesday for a Grange ladies tea May 15 at Angeles Grange hall. At that time women of the ten county Granges will exhibit handwork for judging, sending the winning selections on to a state Grange contest in June.

Pomona Club will be hostess for the event next month. All interested Grange ladies are invited to enter the contest and to attend the tea.

Twenty members of Pomona Club met with Mrs. Beryl Nelson at her Sequim Bay home on Wednesday. During the afternoon they heard reports of the April 19 meeting of county home economics clubs. Ruby Knudson, home demonstration agent, showed colored slides of model kitchens for farm homes. In her commentary she drew attention to labor and step-saving layouts, including cupboard details, placing of equipment, and work counters and surfaces with heights adjusted to individual needs.

Pomona Club will meet next on May 24 at the home and gardens of Mrs. Henry Emery in Sequim.

Onions have many uses besides that of seasoning food. They're delicious stuffed and baked, boiled and creamed, or dipped in milk and seasoned flour and fried. Serve them often because they are plentiful and because they offer excellent nutritional values to a family's diet.

Bridge Party, Fashion Shows At Elks Monday

A dessert bridge, table fashion show, and bride's fashion show and program are the entertaining events planned for the public Monday in the Elks ballroom.

At 1 p.m. the Port Angeles Garden Club will have its annual dessert bridge party. In conjunction with the bridge party Zoods is featuring a table fashion show and will have on display various table settings in the modern style. In addition to the table fashions those attending will see special floral arrangements made by garden club members and florists.

In the evening the general public is invited to view free the table settings and witness a bride's fashion show and program presented by the Venture Club.

The table fashion show will be on display from 1 to 10 p.m. and the Venture Club program will be from 8 to 10 p.m.

Club girls will model clothing suitable for four types of modern weddings, and also several old-fashioned gowns. A musical program will add to the program.

Venture girls serving as models will be Gloria Benson, Betty Flatau, Betty Solf and Midge Howard.

Tonight's School Play Tops in Comedy

There is a delightful treat in store for those who attend tonight's presentation of "The Inner Willy" at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

At a preview performance yesterday afternoon the clapping cheering and howls of laughter from the audience provided a steady background sound effect. How the cast kept a straight face amidst the applause, whistling and cheers is a miracle.

Each player is a "natural" for his part. There is the winsome young miss who is determined that all high school men need to be "reformed". And Willy's portrayal of a spineless sissy who finds the path of least resistance a dreary one, is unbelievably good. And the three old aunts, who disagree on how Willy should conduct his love affairs and school life, never over-play their part.

Even the unpopular wallflower with the freckled face makes it plain she doesn't give a hoot whether she is popular or not. But as to which players get the most laughs—that is part of Willy's inner secret.

The little comedy bubbles along without any theatrical dress-up, night-club foolishness, or other trite comedy situations. Instead it manages by means of not too much exaggerated character portrayal, clashing of personalities, and bits of subtle by-play, to put across some really commonsense ideas.

Whether credit should go to one young player more than another is neither here nor there. All of them work as a team.

Certainly "The Inner Willy" is as good as any production seen in the school auditorium this season.

The cast, directed by Robert Stocking is composed of high school juniors. They are, in order of appearance. Chris Johnson, Shirley Melville, Louise Barnett, Danny Janzen, Margaret Corbett, Don Midkiff, Jo Richardson, Sue Brown, Martha Stewart, Ardell Evanson and Louis Schilke. K. A.

Motorcycle News

Sunday the Olympic Peninsula Motorcycle Club will have a hare and hounds chase planned by Andy Decker.

In the race the hare drives a preplanned course which he marks with white powder at the turns or cutoffs. At various locations along the chase he marks a large "x" in the road and within a 20-foot radius places an envelope containing marked slips of paper.

Each hound who sees the "x" removes one marked slip from the envelope. The first hound to reach the destination with the most slips wins the chase.

All riders will leave from the county barn at 10 a.m. A chili feed at the destination is planned, Frank Schlager reports.

CLASSY FIELD IN DRAKE RELAYS MEET

DES MOINES, Ia.—(AP)—A crack array of track and field athletes set out today in quest of Drake relays championships.

The field of 200 teams from 29 universities and 52 colleges from 19 states was pronounced the best in the 41-year history of the carnival. The Drake publicity bureau's brochure listed nine "probable" records.

One of the nine "probables" was the pole vault. Since 1941 some of the country's top vaulters have been gunning for the Drake mark of 14 feet 1/16 inch, but no one has lived up to expectations. That new record just didn't materialize.

GAYDA WITH BLACKHAWKS

PULLMAN—(AP)—Ed Gayda, star forward for Washington State College's northern division basketball champions, said last night he will sign next week with the Tri-Cities Blackhawks.

The Grays Harbor ace talked with representatives of the national AAU champions, Phillips 66 Oilers, last week, but said the offer from the National Basketball Association club was "too good to pass up."

One of Gayda's teammates also disclosed yesterday he will continue his cage career as a coach. Bob Elliott, four-year letter winner, said he will coach and teach at Centralia, Wash., high school.

Seventy-one per cent of league basketball games played in the Border Conference during the 1949-50 season were won by the home team.

Roughriders Aim For Third Win Saturday Night

Going for their third straight victory in as many starts, the Roosevelt high school baseball team will take on the Central Kitsap Cougars Saturday night at Civic Field, starting at 8.

Central Kitsap has an impressive record with six wins to only one defeat. Their loss came at the hands of Bremerton high school in an 8-5 contest.

Coach Dick Goodman, Roughrider mentor, said yesterday he will start Ken McLennan on the mound with Bob Heller behind the plate. The Roughrider inner defense will have Don Grant at first, Harold Whitman at second, Ray Dooley at shortstop and Wayne Cayanus will patrol the outer garden.

Radio KONP will broadcast a play-by-play description of the game starting at 8 o'clock.

GAMES LAST NIGHT

Tacoma 2-2, Spokane 1-3.
Wenatchee 5, Victoria 4.
Tri-City 6, Yakima 4.
Salem 8, Vancouver 6(10 innings)

The man with the bat was almost persona non grata in western international league play last night. Only two teams made as many as 10 hits—and both of them lost.

Take Salem for example. The Oregonians collected only two hits but emerged with an 8-6 10-inning victory over Vancouver. The Canadians got 10 baseknocks and were further helped with five Salem errors.

Tacoma snared a 2-1 triumph from Spokane in a seven-inning tilt, but lost a 3-2 decision in the finale despite outclubbing the Indians 10 hits to 8.

The loss spoiled the Tacomans' chances of taking over first place, but Wenatchee took advantage of the split to knot Spokane atop the standings with its 5-4 edge over Victoria.

At Yakima, Tri-City got back on the winning road with a 6-4 decision after two straight setbacks.

Miller City, O., high school, with only 84 students, had the only undefeated prep basketball team in the state in 1950.

The Intercollegiate Rowing Association will stage its 48th annual championship regatta at Marietta, O., on June 17.

Circus Catch Gives Angels Win Over Stars

By Jim Hubbart
Associated Press Sportswriter

According to a Pacific Coast League legend of somewhat obscure origin, as the Chicago Cubs go, so go the fortunes of the Los Angeles Angels, foremost of P. K. Wrigley's rural holdings.

To illustrate: The Cubs, who finished in the cellar last season and dragged the Angels in after them, are maintaining a wholesome record today in the National League. And while Los Angeles may still languish in the coast loop's second division, this much is becoming evident:

The Wrigley operative meant it early in the season when he promised "to give Los Angeles all the help we can."

Folks laughed at that. It was a case of the blind leading the blind. So the Cubs were going to help the Angels. But who was going to help the Cubs?

Today, it's not so funny. The Cincinnati Reds aren't guffawing. Neither are the Hollywood Stars, current PCL leaders. Los Angeles trimmed Hollywood by 5 to 4 last last night, and the Chicago influence showed like lipstick on a starched collar.

Charles Maddern, a Chicago semi-castoff, effected one of those dime novel catches in right field to salvage the triumph for the Angels. The Stars had the tying run on second with two down in the ninth. Catcher Mike Sandlock then laid into a pitch that had home run written all over it. Up against the right field screen it went, and up went Maddern after it.

Clarence picked himself up, looked in his glove. There was the ball—and the game. Maddern, whom nobody ever accused of being agile, was amazed. So were the fans. So were the Hollywoods, because the setback cut their lead to 1½ games.

San Diego beat Seattle again, but that was a foregone conclusion anyway. The score: 6 to 2. It put the second place Padres a game closer to the lead and dropped the Rainiers farther into the basement.

At Sacramento, the Solons and the Portland Beavers played the fastest nine innings on record this season. The game took one hour, 45 minutes, with Portland winning, 2 to 1. Vince Di Biasi shut out Sacramento until the eighth inning. He yielded eight hits.

First baseman Roy Zimmerman paced Oakland to an 8 to 4 triumph over San Francisco by smacking a home run in the seventh frame with two aboard. San Francisco's manager Lefty O'Doul and catcher Roy Partee were ejected from that one following a rhubarb over a call at home plate.

Tonight, the Seals will pitch Elmer Singleton (3-4) at Oakland's Ernie Groth (1-0). Other probable starters:

Seattle (Jim Wilson, 0-4) at San Diego (Hal Saltzman, 0-0).

Hollywood (Lee Anthony, 4-0) at Los Angeles (Ralph Hamner, 3-1).

Portland (Lyman Linde, 2-3) at Sacramento (Frankie Dasso, 2-2).

EVASHEVSKI DOUBTFUL

PULLMAN—(AP)—"We have a long way to go before we'll look like a football team this fall."

That's Forest Evashevski's sizeup of the Washington State College football squad he inherited when he succeeded Phil Sarboe as Cougar Grid Mentor.

The ex-Michigan state aide said that after two weeks of practice he's satisfied with the team strength, but added:

"Right now we are set in only four spots."

He didn't name them.

Andy Coakley is in his 36th season as baseball coach at Columbia University.

Willie Jones Sparks Phillies to 9-2 Win on Dodgers' Home Grounds

By Jack Hand
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Put Willie (Puddin' Head) Jones in Brooklyn and he makes like Stan Musial. The Phillies Larruping third baseman just loves that Dodger pitching.

Puddin' Head is on cozy terms with pitchers of all varieties this spring. So far he's hitting a rousing .417 with three homers and a league-leading total of 11 RBI's. He has a nine-game hitting streak including one tie game.

Brooklyn, though, is his happy hunting ground. Jones wrecks the Dodgers at Ebbets Field just like Musial. Last year, his first full season in the big time, the kid from Laurel Hill, N. C., batted only .244. Yet he hit .333 at Brooklyn. No visitor, except Musial, bettered his four homers in Flatbush.

When the Dodgers came to Philadelphia last season to clinch the pennant, Puddin' Head almost knocked them out of the World Series. He homered off Preacher Roe Oct. 1 and hit another off Don Newcombe in the final game before the Brooks put over the clincher in the tenth inning.

Now it's the same story all over again. All three homers, came off Brooklyn pitching. Yesterday he ripped into Preacher Roe for a grand slammer in the first inning. The Preach never got the side out as the Phils scored five en route to an easy 9-2 romp.

Robin Roberts, the bonus "baby" from Michigan State, checked the onrushing Dodgers with eight hits. It was Brooklyn's second loss, both to Roberts, smashing a six-game win streak. Last year Robin never beat the Brooks.

PIRATES LOSE

After losing six starts to their old teammate Murry Dickson, the St. Louis Cardinals turned on him last night to trim Pittsburgh, 5-2. Ever since the Cards sold Dickson to the Pirates for $125,000 early in 1949 he has been in their hair. This time they combed him out with a four-run blast in the fifth in the Pirates' first home night game.

Red Munger, beaten by Pittsburgh in the first appearance, lasted the route, allowing six hits. It was Pittsburgh's first defeat since opening day, snapping a five-game win streak.

Dave Koslo, low earned run pitcher in the National last season, lost his control in the tenth and walked Willard Marshall, a former New York Giants teammate, with the bases loaded. That pass gave the Boston Braves and Warren Spahn a 2-1 decision. Spahn became the first major leaguer to win three games with a six-hit effort.

Tommy Byrne was his old wild self in the Yankee stadium, walking eight men in five innings as Boston thumped the New York Yankees, 7-2. Byrne gave up five runs on one hit in the fifth inning. At the time he and Ellis Kinder were all even, 1-1. Tommy walked four, committed a wild pitch and a balk and gave up one single in the big Sox inning.

Bob Hooper, a Buffalo grad, turned in a fine relief job, following starter Hank Wyse, in Philadelphia's 4-3 night win over Washington. Wyse was lifted with two runs in and the bases loaded in the second. Hooper yielded only one run the rest of the way.

Rain and cold weather knocked out a good share of the schedule. Cleveland at Detroit and Chicago at St. Louis in the American were postponed. So was Cincinnati at Chicago in the National.

20 Women Out For Softball

Twenty women turned out Thursday night for the practice session of the Ladies Softball League. The league now has three teams completed, and is filling out a fourth.

The next practice night will be Tuesday at 6 p.m. at the Roosevelt school field. All players are asked to bring their dollar league entry fee.

KEN WASHINGTON DROPPED

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Kenny Washington, former football star, isn't having any luck in baseball.

The onetime backfield star at UCLA and with the Los Angeles Rams was dropped by Los Angeles in the Pacific coast league and today was hoping to catch on with some other club. Earlier this spring Washington failed in a tryout with the New York Giants.

The answers to everyday insurance problems★

By Jerry Nelson
Edson Brown

QUESTION: Some friends of ours had a fairly small roof fire but the firemen had to use a lot of water to put it out. Their furniture wasn't damaged at all by the fire but some of it was completely ruined by the water. They haven't settled up with their insurance company but I just wondered if they would be paid for their furniture.

ANSWER: Yes, so long as the water damage is a result of efforts to extinguish a fire, the damage to house or furniture is covered.

NCAA Studies Effect of TV

CHICAGO—(AP)—A special committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association says that "The whole economic structure of athletics" is threatened by television and it wants to know what its 390 member colleges are doing about it.

In a memorandum to NCAA athletic directors, a three-man committee on television asks some "intimate" financial questions on football. A video questionnaire circulated yesterday said:

"While your school may not yet feel any effect from the development of television, you will be involved too soon as the network spreads and will share the concern that has moved from the east to the midwest and Pacific coast already."

The questionnaire was drafted by Tom Hamilton, University of Pittsburgh athletic director, chairman; Willis O. Hunter of Southern California, and Ralph Furey of Columbia University. It is the springboard for a "major, professional, impartial survey" the committee recommends for the NCAA.

CALIFORNIA FAVORED IN 3-WAY TRACK MEET

SEATTLE — (AP) — California's Golden Bears were odds-on favorites today to leave the University of Washington stadium tomorrow afternoon with more points than the Huskies and Idaho's Vandals combined.

The Bears were due here today by plane and Idaho pulls in later by train.

The comparative speeds of their transportation just about symbolizes the strength of the two visiting track and field squads.

Based on the performers' best times and distances to date, California is expected to win all but three events — the 880, 120-yard high hurdles, and the discus. Those go to Washington, maybe.

The meet wil be a scorer's nightmare. Washington will be facing both California and Idaho in Separate dual meets, and all three schools will be vying in a triangular affair.

Four players from the Kansas City Mohawks were named on the U.S. Hockey League all-star team chosen by loop players.

For the second year in succession, Syracuse University's wrestlers and boxers ruled their respective eastern tournaments.

The merry fingers of the wind played pranks with the washing hung out Tuesday by Mrs. Norma Hendricks of Carlsborg. A coast guard JRF plane from Kodiak, Alaska, arrived at the Ediz hook base yesterday afternoon for a routine checkup. Dr. Kinsey's Next Report On Sexual Behavior In Human Female, Reviewed

NEW YORK —(AP)— A magazine preview of Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey's next report says women reach the peak of their sex life about 14 years later than men.

Dr. Kinsey's new book is "Sexual Behavior In The Human Female," to be published next year.

The preview is given in Redbook magazine by Morris Ernst and David Loth, who claim to have worked closely with Kinsey and his associates.

In the current article, Ernst and Loth write that women "reach their peak of sexual drive several years after the average age of marriage.

Based on what Dr. Kinsey has said, we expect his figures to show that this peak is reached at about the age of 29," the two men said.

The first Kinsey report found that males attain their maximum sex drive in their middle teens.

REMAINS HIGH

Ernst and Loth continue that, unlike that of men, the female sex peak "does not decline at once, but rather remains at an average high level, a sort of plateau, for five or six years."

"This peak never is as high as that of men," the article says, "taking the average of both sexes. But the frequency of sexual outlet is about the same for men and women from the age of 25 on."

The co-authors say the sexual development of women is slower. The Kinsey report on males said 92 per cent of males have experienced orgasm (sexual climax) by the time they are 15.

They quote Dr. Kinsey as saying that "only about 25 per cent of females have done so at this age."

They predict that Kinsey's figures on women will show that 90 per cent of women have not experienced orgasm until they approach 30.

FREQUENCY

Discussing the amount or frequency of sexual gratification in women, Ernst and Loth explain it this way:

Dr. Kinsey, in a lecture, "pointed out that the 'normal' frequency of sexual outlets for males ranged from once a month or less to four times a day averaged over many years."

"He represented this graphically on a blackboard by a line two or three feet long, the dot on the left of the line representing the least, and the dot at the right the greatest frequency," Loth and Ernst wrote.

"The range for women," Kinsey is quoted as having said, "would start at the same point at the left for least frequency, but would extend for women representing the greatest frequency 'to here'."

Illustrating 'to here,' they said, Kinsey "walked to the other side of the stage."

Comparing homosexuality of the sexes, the article says the forthcoming Kinsey report "will show an even greater incidence of homosexuality among woman."

The first Kinsey report said homosexual contacts accounted for as much as 22.6 per cent of the total sexual outlet of bachelor men from 31 to 35 years of age.

Modern cooking experts suggest that you do not prick the skin when roasting a duck. Pricking allows some of the meat juices to run out during roasting and does not increase the amount of fat that cooks out.

Merchants Plan May Promotion

Merchants division members announced plans for a citywide 9 cent sale May 18 to 20 at a meeting this morning at Holmer's Cafe.

All stores in Port Angeles are invited to cooperate with the retail merchants group of the Chamber of Commerce, president Hugh Hankins said. Not only will sale items at special prices be featured, but many unusual bargains priced at 9 cents are planned.

Chairman of the 9 cent promotion is Peter Walker. His committee includes Melvin Reidel, Waino Saari, Harvey Gray, C. A. Badgeley, and R. P. Ragland.

Other committees announced by Hankins include the retail division's executive board members. They are Merle Fisher, Alan Sawalish, Melvin Reidel, Walter Miller and John Nicholson.

In charge of the fall promotion will be Lee Silverman, assisted by Frank Withey, J. A. Wrench, John Nicholson, Henry Jensen, Joe Miller and Charles McLean.

Christmas planning including Santa Claus' arrival and street decorations will be carried through by Bill Lawrence, Herb McGee, Joe Niemeyer, Harold Brown, Walter Miller, A. T. Thompson, Les Rodda, Scott Marshall, Melvin Glanville, L. L. Doss, Bob White and Harold Widsteen. Chairman of the group will be Alan Sawalish.

Hit Music Show At Lincoln

Tonight is the last chance to join the throngs enjoying the musical film at the Lincoln Theatre. Entitled "The Midnight Kiss" it tells the story of an opera. Aside from the music, which Port Angeles music critics say is magnificent, there is comedy, ranging from high-brow to slapstick; and there is youth, beauty and grace.

Truck drivers, millionaires and whimsical musical characters all mix together to put over the opera in such a way that it portrays city life in America at its best.

However, to say there is any connection between the story and a "midnight kiss" is purely riculous. —K.A.
