William Everett, Pioneer, Born At Freshwater 82 Years Ago, Dies Here

By Jack Henson

William Everett, 82, of Freshwater, Clallam county, one of this area's most prominent pioneers, noted mountaineer and hunter, died at a hospital here last night

Funeral services are Monday, October 23, at 2 p.m. at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church with Rev. Carl Fischer officiating under direction of the McDonald Funeral Home. Burial will be in Mt. Angeles Cemetery.

"The Mowich Man," or mighty

hunter, the exploits of whose life became legends while he was yet alive and active, died during the deer hunting season in which he hoped to participate. Picking apples at his farm home he fell from a tree and injured his head. He was not bedridden and one day later shot some crows out of an apple tree with a shot gun. He then complained of a pain in his head. He was taken to the hospital Saturday and was in a coma most of the time until he died last night.

OBSERVER OF NATURE

Friends who traveled the trails with him remember him as a keen-eyed observer of nature who never lost his love for the woods and hills. He was first in most everything pertaining to the Olympic mountains and was perhaps the oldest Clallam county born resident.

He knew much of the early history of the county and the Indian legends. He had many tales of hunting exploits and the Indian legend of the Thunderbird. He helped build a shake cabin on Lake Crescent where his father, John Everett, had a trap line more than 80 years ago. He told the story of the Lake Crescent mythical sea serpent that Crescent Charlie used to keep other Indians away from the lake.

The keenness of his eyes was uncanny. He could see deer on the hillsides where no one else could. He read the trail signs and interpreted them unerringly. Men half his age found it difficult to keep up with him on mountain trails and he was always happy in the hills, sleeping under the stars or sitting around a camp fire.

BORN AT FRESHWATER

Born February 28, 1868 on his father's farm at Freshwater bay, Mr. Everett lived all his life in Clallam county, much of the time on his own farm a quarter of a mile southwest of his birthplace.

His father was John Everett, an Ohio man, who, with John Sutherland, settled at Freshwater in 1863. Both had mined gold in California in 1849, then migrated north to join the Cassair gold stampede in northern British Columbia. They met at the Hudson's Bay trading post at Victoria and came here to hunt and trap for that company and made their headquarters at Freshwater.

The two were the first white men to see what are now lakes Sutherland and Crescent and ran trap lines around them and took the furs to the trading post in Indians' canoes.

First name of Lake Crescent was Lake Everett. Lake Sutherland has retained the name of Everett's partner. John Everett died at his Freshwater home in 1917 and Sutherland at Forks a few years later.

William Everett's mother died when he was very young. He learned woodcraft from his father, helped him hunt animals for their pelts and spent much time on trap lines on the shores of Lake Crescent.

FIRST IN OLYMPICS

It was he who was the first white man to see many places in the Olympic mountains as he roamed the hills and woods hunting and exploring. For his hunting skill he was called the "Mowich Man." In the Chinook jargon mowich is deer and the title indicates a mighty hunter.

When 16 years old he discovered Cream lake in the Bailey range and made his last trip to that area when he was 80 years old when he accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Herb Crisler on a picture-taking trip. He killed his last buck deer and elk during the 1949 hunting seasons.

For years he reigned supreme as the king of the Olympic peninsula cougar hunters. He and his favorite cougar hound "Babe" and other dogs treed and killed 99 cougar and innumerable bob cats. He often yearned to kill his one-hundredth cougar.

Besides hunting with a gun, the pioneer was a photographer and his pictures of game, taken in the mountains are some of the best taken in the Olympics.

PLANNING HUNTING TRIP

Before becoming ill several weeks ago, Mr. Everett was planning on a deer hunting trip during the present open season and to hunt elk next month.

William Everett and Margaret Schoeffel were married September 21, 1893 at the home of Mrs. Everett's sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Blater, in Eden valley. Soon afterwards they moved from the old Everett homestead to the present home nearby at Freshwater that they and their children have developed into a large, modern farm.

DEVELOPED HOT SPRINGS

Mr. Everett, "Slim" Farrell and Charles Anderson were hunting cougar along Boulder creek, a tributary of the Elwha river, in 1908 when they first saw the Olympic hot springs. They stayed and hewed out a cedar log for a tub, piped in the sulphur water and that was the start of the present Olympic Hot Springs resort.

Lumber was whipsawed and cabins built. His two partners withdrew from the enterprise and for a decade Mr. and Mrs. Everett devoted themselves to the development of the resort. He built a large rustic hotel as a part of the plant. The hotel burned down a dozen years ago.

While developing the hot springs, the Everett's were also building up their farm home. Their son Carl has managed the farm in recent years and their daughter Jean and her husband Harry Schoeffel have had active charge of the hot springs.

CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

It was September 21, 1943 that Mr. and Mrs. Everett celebrated their golden wedding with a reenactment of the ceremony at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church and open house at their home and a reception at the church.

Many relatives and old friends were guests during the day and congratulated the couple.

Surviving relatives are his wife, Mrs. Margaret Everett, son Carl Everett, and daughter Mrs. Harry Schoeffel, and a grandson Robert Schoeffel, of Clallam county, and many other more distant relatives.

Commissioners Ask 35 MPH Zone Near Monroe School

County commissioners announced at today's meeting they will ask the state highway department to designate a 35 mph zone from Mount Pleasant road to the city limits. This is to slow traffic approaching Monroe school crossing.

They also appointed W. Francis Chambers, route two, to serve as commissioner of fire district II. Chambers will fill the unexpired two-year term of A stin Wyman, who resigned. Wyman has indicated he will continue to serve as secretary for the district. Commissioners made the appointment on recommendation of Fire Chief Clay Wolverton and James Vail, Gales addition chief of volunteers, representing the district.

A supplemental ground lease was signed with J. R. Robinson for an additional 520 by 360 feet of land at Clallam county airport. The newly leased area begins just east of the present machine shop and extends west and north. Terms are the same as the original lease signed in May, 1950.

EAST END ROAD

Commissioner Fred G. Evans assured Mr. and Mrs. James B. Huckins, who live at Diamond point, the county will build a road from state highway 101 to Diamond point. The Huckins have a few cabins which they rent and also have children attending school. Evans explained the county has delayed improving the road because it has been unsuccessful in obtaining one right-of-way.

Commissioners said they will wait until the November 6 meeting for a reply to their letter. If they can't come to an agreement at that time. they will undertake condemnation.

The county attorney advised commissioners they have no authority to grant Van C. Fredrickson a franchise to collect garbage and refuse in the county as he requested. They will discuss the matter with the county health department.

More Funds Needed For Street Decorating

The Chamber of Commerce Christmas decorating committee still needs at least $900 to finish its job.

Allen Sawalish, chairman of the committee, announced following a meeting yesterday that the group has received 176 pledges and contributions totalling $3,100. The committee has placed an order with a professional decorating company to start placing greens, lights, and plastic decorative pieces on downtown streets November 20.

The committee plans that the initial outlay will provide decorations which may be used from year to year. Sawalish said $4,000 is the minimum the committee needs to get the project started.

The area to be covered includes Lincoln street from Front to Eighth, Front street from Lincoln to Oak, and First street from Peabody to the Davidson-Hay Hospital.

Sawalish today asked any merchant, business firms or professional men who have not yet contributed to the fund to do so as soon as possible.

The committee chairman urged widest possible support for the proposal to brighten up Port Angeles streets during the holiday season.

Freedom Bell Rings Tuesday

BREMERHAVEN, Germany—(AP)—The big bronze freedom bell scheduled to ring for the first time in West Berlin next Tuesday—United Nations day—arrived by ship from New York today, and started on the last leg of its journey—which leads through Russian territory.

American officials refused to discuss reports that the communists planned to hinder the bell from reaching Berlin, which lies inside the Soviet zone.

The ten ton bell. contributed by the Crusade of Freedom movement in the United States, has been the subject of propaganda attacks in East Berlin's communist press.

Chinese Reds Give Aid To Indochinese

WASHINGTON —(AP)— American officials said today the Chinese communists have given substantial help, in the form of weapons and training, to red forces in Indochina. Communist advances in that embattled country are largely attributed to this assistance.

Top United States authorities have been searching for ways in which this country might help the French and native Indochinese armies meet the situation, which is regarded here with increasing concern.

But a week-long policy review in the goveernment was mostly negative except for the decision announced last week to speed American arms shipments to Indochina. These shipments have a priority second only to arms for Korea.

President Truman told his news conference yesterday that Gen. Douglas MacArthur and he discussed Indochina in their Wake island conference but that no decisions were made.

LINES OF ACTION

Indications are that as part of the policy review officials have considered the possibility of action along two new lines:

1. Sending American forces to assist the anti-communist fight in Indochina. Authorities said, however, there is no present plan to take action of this kind.

2. Throwing the whole situation into the United Nations. On this point, officials reported that such a move would be up to the French, who have primary responsibility in Indochina, and that the United States has not urged the French to act.

The Paris government faces a difficult issue in this respect because the Indochinese fighting has been going on for many years and there is no basis for a clear-cut charge of aggression, as there was in the case of the communist attack in South Korea.

Moreover, because the Indochinese fighting is a kind of civil war—even though the reds have the assistance of the Chinese communists—there is some belief here that the present temper of Asiatic powers like India might result in a move in the UN for a "compromise" settlement. Neither French nor American authorities think that a compromise with the red leader Ho Chi Minh is a practical way out of the difficulty.

TWO REASONS

The main reasons why there is so much concern here over Indochina are both political and strategic.

On the political front, Washington authorities believe that international communist leaders are seeking to recapture some of the prestige and initiative they have lost in Korea.

On the strategic side, communist conquest of Indochina would endanger Burma and Thailand and Malaya. Eventually it would threaten Indonesia, which along with Malaya is an important source of raw materials for the western world. Furthermore, eventual communist expansion into these countries would have the effect of splitting the western Pacific from the Indian ocean.

Find 2 Missing State Patrolmen

EVERETT — (AP) — Two missing state patrolmen were found safe today in the mountainous region of eastern Snohomish county.

They had been missing since Tuesday. They were reported to be in good condition. There was no further information about them in the scant radio report received at the Verlot ranger station.

The two men are Allen Kuest and Joseph J. Harvey.

The report of their safety came from Tom Niederhauser, a state patrolman from Everett.

Search leaders said it would be at least an hour and a half before the men could be brought from the rugged, heavily timbered wilds.

The report of the men's safety came after a searching force had expanded to close to 200 men. As weather improved today, a helicopter and two small planes were summoned to the region to aid in one of the largest scale searches ever carried on in the Cascades.

The men were found shortly before 11 a.m.

The report received by the ranger station was that they were only about half a mile southeast of airplane wreckage where they were last seen three days ago. They had gone to the area to investigate the wreckage, which proved to be from a crash of several years ago.

The radio report said they apparently were making their way slowly down the rugged mountainside when searchers found them.

Sets Thanksgiving Day; Asks Prayers

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Proclaiming Thanksgiving Day, President Truman yesterday called upon all Americans "in church, chapel and synagogue, in their homes and in the busy walks of life, every day and everywhere, to pray for peace."

Under legislation which congress approved in 1941, Thanksgiving Day falls each year on the fourth Thursday of November—this year the 23rd.

"In keeping with the custom established by our forefathers and hallowed by faithful observance throughout the years," Mr. Truman said in his proclamation, "it is fitting that once again at this season we set aside a day for giving thanks to God for the many blessings which he has bestowed upon us. . .

"Again I ask all my countrymen to appeal to the Most High, that the God of our fathers who has blessed this land beyond all others will in His infinite mercy grant to all nations that peace which the world cannot give. . ."

Three Starving U.S. GI's Tell Ghastly Tale of "Death March" of 283 Americans

By Tom Lambert

PYONGYANG, Korea—(AP)—Three nearly starved American prisoners today told a ghastly tale of a "death march" from Seoul to Pyongyang by 283 U. S. soldiers.

Many of their comrades, the bearded trio said, were beaten and murdered by their communist captors. The reds shrugged their shoulders and said a few more atrocities against them did not matter.

The few survivors, said the liberated prisoners, boosted the American POWS held in Pyongyang to 373. Most of the 373 were moved to the north to an unknown fate as Pyongyang began to totter.

The three said they saw no other Americans in Pyongyang except those they marched with from Seoul.

Swinging down Stalin street—the Russian-named main street of Pyongyang—the bearded and long-haired captives were found by a group of correspondents as the prisoners marched arm in arm with three North Korean students who had befriended them. The Americans told of buddies being "beaten and murdered" on a torture march from Seoul.

NAMES OF SURVIVORS

The three American survivors of the death march were:

Air Force Capt. William Locke, 30, Rt. 2, Enfield, N.C., an F-51 pilot whose wife Ronda and nine-months-old daughter Karon were at Yokoda air base in Japan when he crashed in North Korean territory near Waegwan Aug. 17.

Army Lt. Alexander Makaroumis, 27, 548 Fletcher street, Lowell, Mass., of Company I, 29th regiment, captured near Hadong July 27.

Army Sgt. Takeshi Kumdai of Honolulu, headquarters company, 34th regiment, 24th division, captured July 20 when the reds took Taegon.

They had been hiding since Saturday.

The three were the only survivors of a group of 283 American prisoners of war marched here from Seoul in late September and early October.

The three Americans had hidden under a school and had been fed by the three students.

They came out today as the city fell to American and South Korean troops.

PLEADS WITH REDS

Captain Locke said he pleaded with North Korean officials not to move the men and to give medical attention to the wounded.

The airman said the North Koreans replied:

"We already got enough atrocities listed against us so a few more won't make any difference."

Captain Locke said that during the death march Americans "died like flies from starvation, cold, pneumonia and dysentery."

Seventeen in the group were wounded when an American plane strafed their column, obviously mistaking them for reds.

On the trudge from Seoul to Pyongyang, the trio said the reds shot those Americans who could not walk.

MEN BAYONETTED

Said one:

"Some of the men were carrying their buddies on their backs. Guys who fell down were beaten and bayonetted by the red guards."

Captain Locke said the guards killed those Americans who could not continue marching.

First thing the three asked for was sugar—or anything sweet.

They ate heartily of army ration jelly and cookies.

They gulped army ration spaghetti and hamburger.

Captain Locke remarked they would probably get sick from overeating.

Since their capture they had lived on scant rations of rice and water plus food given them by civilians who visited the school.

All three accused the North Koreans of starving American prisoners and failing to give them necessary medical treatment.

Captain Locke said 373 Americans were moved out of Seoul on Sept. 20 as the Americans advanced on the city. He said many of the prisoners were suffering from hunger.

The reds refused an American plea for water during the march.

Captain Locke said once an American plane dropped 36 cases of rations for them but "the bastard North Koreans took them although our men were starving."

PLACED IN SCHOOL

When the Americans arrived in Pyongyang they were placed in the school. Some civilians, including the three students who marched down the street with them today, were allowed to visit them. Some brought them cigarettes.

The students told the trio of a trap door in the school building. The trio dropped through the trap door Saturday shortly before the other prisoners were headed north.

Since then the three students had been feeding them with rice and water smuggled underneath the building.

Captain Locke said while they were in Seoul three or four Russians visited them but didn't speak—"they just kind of smiled."

Douglas Fir Lumber Prices Skidding Down

PORTLAND — (AP) — Douglas fir lumber prices were skidding sharply today, orders were falling and scattered mills began to cut back on production.

The price break, that started when the government imposed restrictions on building loans six weeks ago, became a collapse this week on green dimension—2x4's, 2x6's and the like.

Sales of No. 2 green 2x4's at $50 a thousand board feet were reported yesterday. In August some mills were getting as much as $90 and more for them.

The hardest hit lumber is that used in starting new houses.

Finishing lumber, still in demand to complete houses already under construction, has dropped some but not much. It is beginning to follow the green lumber collapse, though, C. C. Crow said today. Crow is editor of the Pacific Coast Lumber Digest which concerns itself with price trends.

STILL FALLING

"There is every reason to believe that the bottom has yet to be reached," Crow said, adding that government credit restrictions had "brought the starting of new jobs almost to a standstill."

Lumber prices in late 1949 began climbing from a brief slump and started skyrocketing last spring. Outbreak of the Korean war speeded the climb to what Crow called "unheard-of levels."

H. V. Simpson, executive vice-president of the West Coast Lumbermen's Association, said it seemed likely now that an all-time fir production record would not be set this year. On Sept. 1 he said such a record was a cinch.

There were no reports of mill closures. They were expected in one to three weeks from marginal operators—small concerns whose costs are high—and some mills this week began eleminating their second shifts. There was no early tabulation on the number or how many men were being laid off.

SHINGLE MARKET HIT

However, with the shingle market heading downward, too, the North Vancouver, B.C., shingle mill laid off 300 men yesterday in closing for two weeks. A spokesman said it was due to the U.S. price drop, which he expected to be temporary.

Crow wasn't optimistic about that. He said pine prices still were holding up but a decline "will come very rapidly from now on."

In fir, Crow said, the past week has brought "the biggest footage of (order) cancellations ever known in the history of the industry."

One wholesaler reported hearing of some plywood order cancellations but there was no evidence of price weakening.

Name Gaitskell To Cripps' Post

LONDON —(AP)— Youthful Hugh Gaitskell flew home today to take over the toughest job in Britain: guiding the nation's economic future. He held out little hope to Britons for a relaxation of belt-tightening austerity.

Gaitskell, 44, took over the job of chancellor of the exchequer—boss of Britain's treasury—upon the resignation yesterday of Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's ailing czar of austerity. Prime Minister Attlee decided to name Gaitskell, who was Cripps' deputy, over the heads of several cabinet ministers who might have expected the important post.

Parachutists Jump To Finish War In Korea

By Russell Brines

TOKYO — (AP) — Thousands of American parachute troops leaped deep into red Korea to clean up the war today.

They had two missions: To finish the UN war and rescue mistreated captive Americans.

General MacArthur himself directed the spectacular aerial assault, the first parachute offensive of the Korean war, from his plane overhead.

The paratroop operation, 23 miles north of the captured communist capital of Pyongyang, cut the escape of die-hard red troops still hanging around the north rim of the city.

After flying over the scene, MacArthur said:

NO OPPOSITION

"I didn't see any opposition. It looks like it was a complete surprise. It looks like we closed the trap. Closing that trap should be the end of all organized resistance. The war is very definitely coming to an end."

The airborne troopers, floating down 80 miles south of the Manchurian border, slammed shut the red escape gates north of Pyongyang.

They sought, too, to rescue American prisoners whisked out of liberated Seoul and to seize the fugitive red military headquarters.

But, up until a late hour Friday, there was no word whether the American prisoners—some of them forced to a death march from Seoul—had been rescued.

Some prisoners liberated in Pyongyang said many died.

They said these included Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, commander of the U.S. 24th division who disappeared in the battle for Taejon in July, early in the United Nations defense of the South Korean republic. There was no confirmation of the report about General Dean.

NO AMPLIFICATION

MacArthur did not amplify his appraisal that the war was coming to an end.

The parachute landings were in two-battalion strength.

The number of 'chutists was not reported. But with 120 planes dropping 35 men each the total would approximate 4,200.

Less than 24 hours after United Nations troops seized the red heart of North Korea—Pyongyang—the U. S. parachute battlers were writing the final pages of the UN's historic first armed police action.

Dulles Says Malik Attempting To Discredit Trygve Lie

LAKE SUCCESS —(AP)— Russia's Jacob A. Malik said today John Foster Dulles told him in a private conversation that UN Secretary-General Trygve Lie had followed a "double-faced policy" but that the United States had to support Lie for re-election because of certain commitments.

Dulles denied he had told Malik anything like this. He charged the Soviet delegate was merely trying to discredit Lie.

In a statement to the press, Dulles, republican adviser to Secretary of State Acheson said:

"There is no truth in Mr. Malik's reported statement to the Associated Press and other UN correspondents. This is just another attempt of the Soviet Union to discredit Secretary-General Lie because of the firm stand he has taken in support of United Nations action in resisting aggression in Korea."

TALKS TO REPORTERS

Malik met a reporter in the delegates lounge at the UN and relayed the information he had talked with Dulles about the post of secretary-general. Malik vetoed the re-election of Lie and the question will come up again in a secret meeting of the security council this afternoon.

The Soviet delegate said he did not believe one man should have the job longer than five years, which is one term.

After all, he said, it is not like being president of the United States.

Malik, asked if he had a candidate for the post, grinned and said no. He said that his candidate might be Warren R. Austin, chief U. S. delegate, but that he was certain that Austin, committed to Lie, would vote against himself.

NO PREDICTIONS

At this stage no one would predict the outcome of the fight over the secretary-generalship.

Russia is determined to throw Lie out because he supported wholeheartedly United Nations actions to combat aggression in Korea. Russia maintains that the North Koreans were innocent vicitims of American and South Korean warmaking.

The Soviet Union is supported in its campaign against Lie by Nationalist China—usually her bitterest enemy in the UN. Chiang Kai-Shek's representative resents the fact that Lie favors seating the Chinese communist government in the UN.

The United States strongly favors another term for the former Norwegian foreign minister.

UN Plan to Halt Aggression Everywhere Is Most Powerful Peace Move Ever Made

By Dewitt Mackenzie
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The United Nations' adoption of the plan to halt aggression anywhere and everywhere, by force if necessary, represents the most powerful organized peace move every made.

It tacitly recognizes that until human nature is changed mankind is going to resort to war at times, and must be restrained.

In effect it acknowledges that there will be occasions when only force, or a display of force, can turn the trick.

This far-reaching project is given teeth by a provision requiring that UN members place specified units of their armed forces at the disposal of the peace organization to meet crises. It represents a perpetuation of the emergency measure under which the UN was able to send its own forces into Korea to end the aggression from the north.

True, the program still has to go through the formality of being passed by the general assembly. However, the big majority by which it was adopted in the assembly's political committee ensures its passage in the larger body.

FIRST MEETING

It's just over 50 years ago that the world saw the first meeting of nations ever assembled to discuss ways and means of maintaining peace. That was in 1899 when 26 countries met at the Hague and adopted a "convention for the pacific settlement of international disputes."

This was followed in 1907 by the "second peace conference," when 44 states—representing virtually all the independent nations of the globe—reaffirmed the convention and added to it. The convention provided for mediation, arbitration, and international commissions of inquiry into situations likely to lead to war.

The next step—and it was a seven-league stride—was the creation of the League of Nations at the end of world war I. That did some good work—but it failed in the great emergencies because it lacked the courage (and the means) to take forceful action against aggressors.

In an effort to bolster the league, the Locarno pact was forced in 1925, with the primary idea of preventing any further German-French upheavals. Then in 1928, because the League of Nations didn't completely abolish war, 59, of the 64 independent nations of the world signed the Paris peace pact for "renunciation of war."

DISARMAMENT

These peace moves were followed by disarmament conferences. And of course much has been done in the interests of peace in the western hemisphere by the various Pan American conferences.

Probably it has required all this patient and persistent spade work to prepare the way for the historic employment of sanctions by force to halt aggression. In any event, it has remained for the United Nations to make the first concerted application of such sanctions.

Now this daring but fortunately successful experiment is leading to the adoption of permanent measures that will provide the UN with the machinery to deal with aggression.

Perhaps it is too much to hope that this will prevent any further aggression. But it is the most powerful move in that direction yet made.

Certainly it will encourage small and weak nations to go ahead in working out their own destinies without fear of assault by great powers with evil designs.

Charter Foreign Flag Vessels

SEATTLE—(AP)—Rear Adm. W. M. Callaghan, head of the military sea transportation service, said yesterday the MSTS has chartered 11 foreign flag vessels.

But, he added, "to my knowledge, none has Soviet connections."

Callaghan made his statement during an interview when asked regarding a charge by Harry Lundeberg, head of the Sailors Union of the Pacific. Lundeberg told a congressional subcommittee in San Francisco Tuesday that some of the foreign registered ships chartered by MSTS are communist-owned and operated.

"As of this date we have only 11 foreign flag vessels." the admiral responded. "These vessels were chartered on an emergency basis when we could not tell precisely where the Korean situation might lead. They will be the first to be given up. To my knowledge, none has Soviet connections."

OLYMPIC TRAIL TALK—71

Never a Dull Moment When Visitors Partake of Humes Ranch Breakfast

By Lois Crisler

A most remarkable thing is happening around here. The actual color of the trees is changing Not only that, but it is changing to a more beautiful color than it was before.

It stands to reason that a green tree would remain a green tree. If its leaves died they would just wither and fall off. But no, the utterly unreasonable and unexpected thing happens. In between living and dying the leaves turn pure gold.

It's no secret now where the clumps of maple are on the mountainsides. They are lighted up among the dark evergreens like world's fair decorations.

Banks and towers of red-gold wall our pastures here at Humes ranch.

Down in the "fern pasture" beyond Idaho creek the bracken grows taller than my head. It's changing too. All that bracken has turned a rich rust color now, like the color of a new fall coat.

There's the track of a lone bull elk by the creek. The grouse drums in the forest as if it were spring again.

Rhododendron time on the Olympic peninsula? I remember; it was wonderful. But drive out to Elwha bridge and decide if October isn't better. Even under gray mists those mountainsides are lighted up, among the dark firs.

BREAKFAST CALL

We had a satisfying lot of company over last weekend. First came Ernst Freitag, a structural steel bridge designer with the state highway department down at Olympia. He arrived Thursday evening.

As he started for his tent after dinner, he said, "What time do we have breakfast?" Ernst is an engineer to the core. He is v-e-r-y methodical.

Cris jauntily replied, "Breakfast at eight."

The next morning for some reason Cris decided to start something I had wanted for years. A big cupboard for bedding in the storeroom. Up to now I've stocked all bedding in Grant Humes' old grain bin, which Cris dragged up from the barn.

This project meant rulers and measuring how long a folded sheet is and how high a folded comfort is. At five minutes till eight I sneaked out to the kitchen and started the yeast for hotcakes.

At 8 a.m. precisely — no sooner, no later — the back door opened. Ernst entered. He looked despondently at the bare stove.

"Breakfast ready, Lois?" he growled.

The pinch of the night's famine was not abated till nearly 9 o'clock. Ernst said nothing. But he gave a crackling look at the clock, then at me.

I had to go to Port Angeles that day. Cris came out to Whiskey bend to help carry the pack home. It was night by the time we got home.

BLINTZES FOR SUPPER

Ernst sat by the stove in the dark, diffusing a deeper gloom.

Cris said cheerfully, "Let's have blintzes for supper." Blintzes are his favorite quick, high protein supper.

I was cheerful too. "Do you know what blintzes are?" I asked Ernst.

"No," he replied, pouring forth still darker billows of gloom.

When the gas lantern hissed over the hot kitchen stove and the blintzes began to fluff up on the griddles, a faint gleam illuminated Ernst's features. "Something like crepe suzettes?" he asked hopefully.

He and Cris settled down at the table in the living room, quietly and steadily siloing in the blintzes.

Brightness beamed over Ernst's face. He came out to the kitchen looking positively convivial. "These things call for coffee," he said buoyantly. I had set out thick cold buttermilk. Ernst made himself a quart of hot black coffee.

RECIPE

How do you make those little blintzes? Beat four egg whites stiff. Then gently beat in the four egg yolks, 2/3 cup of 100 per cent whole wheat flour, one teaspoon each of salt and sugar, ½ cup of powdered milk and two cups of ordinary milk.

Bake them in butter, three spoonfuls to a cake, on a medium hot griddle.

You don't pollute blintzes with syrup. If you have the ingredients (I usually don't!) you make this filling. Two cups of dry cottage cheese, an egg, salt, two tablespoons each of sugar, powdered milk, and whole-wheat flour.

When you turn a blintz, you dunk a couple of tablespoons of this goo onto it, fold it over and finish browning it.

They aren't officially blintzes unless you serve them with thick sour cream. As for Cris and me, we like the little unsweetened cakes alone so well that we don't bother with the goo and the cream. We call them blintzes anyway.

MORE VISITORS

Rev. George Poor of Trinity Methodist Church in Ballard unexpectedly dashed up the trail with three boys, his own sons Phil and John, and a friend of theirs They slept in the bothy Friday night and cooked for themselves over a campfire.

The Poors like to do things the Spartan way. We met them on the trail once last August, coming down from the Low divide. They had just siwashed it up on the ridge between Mt. Seattle and Mt. Noyes. (Siwashing means sleeping out without shelter or bags. Often without grub!)

As they toiled up toward the ridge, eight-year-old John dashed ahead to the top. He recoiled. "It's 1,000 feet straight down on the other side," he called to them. "Boy, that gets your guts!"

On Saturday the Poors left and the Gunnar Fagerlunds came, with their young sons, Jerry and Noel.

Jerry and Noel are the most remarkable playmates that come to the ranch. They are creative and independent. They organized the creek in front of the cabin into a mighty hydraulics work. Ponds, waterfalls, dams, by-passes, "logs." Even a parking space — of moss and gravel, overlooking the works.

All they asked of adults was once in an hour or so to come and glance at their current project.

LATE!

On Sunday morning Ernst had a shock. Saturday morning breakfast had been timed about like Friday morning's. But Sunday was different. Cris helped!

By 7:30 the hotcake batter was rising and foamy. The long oilcloth tabel was set, with jugs of cane syrup from Simmons' farm in south Georgia and hot maple syrup from Wes Lamb's place in the Adirondacks. The Fagerlunds poured in rosily.

At eight a.m. on the dot — no sooner, no later — the back door opened and Ernst's face appeared with a glum, sure-of-the-worst expression already anchored in place.

His eyes swept the crowded activity. The Fagerlund boys were washing. Frances supervising, Gunnar drinking orange juice, Lois turning cakes at the hot griddles, Cris lugging a platter of ham in to the long table.

Ernst could find no words. "Aha!" he bellowed, in a great roar of frustration.

This was the moment I had been waiting for. "You're late!" I shouted joyfully.

DEPT. OF ELUCIDATION

(1) Friday as I drove back from town, seven-year-old Jock Broadbent hailed me down near the Elwha ranger station. His face was brilliant.

"I saw you in town," he called.

"You did!" I said. "Where were you?"

Jock concentrated for a moment. "I was — Right There!" he stated firmly.

(2) Last August when the Albertsons were here, seven-year-old Mary rose first one morning. I was getting breakfast.

"How do you like your egg?" I asked her. "Fried, boiled, poached or scrambled?"

Mary's dark eyes looked away from me uncertainly. Then she composed herself and replied with shy dignity, "I like mine cooked"!

Fliers Must Behave Near Hanford Plant

PORTLAND—(AP) — Private fliers were told yesterday to be on their good behavior when flying in the area of the Hanford plant. A CAA official said too many have been violating security rules.

Peter Hill of the Seattle CAA office said more pilots had been prosecuted for violating the Hanford aerial curtain in the past 90 days than in the previous year.

Hill said many war-time regulations were to be revived.

He added, "we are not helping our cause any by wandering over the Hanford area."

Hill spoke at a conference of airport and flying school and service operators of the northwest. He said they soon would be given pilot identification cards like those issued during world war II. This is the first of 49 steps planned to get civilian aviation lined up for defense purposes, he said.

"We in the northwest are the closest to the potential enemy," Hill said. "We have some of the most important targets and are the most vulnerable. It is up to us pilots to do everything we can to help protect the area."

Washington PTA Sees School Film

Washington PTA program Wednesday night included a film "The Sixth Chair," entertainment by students, and announcements of forthcoming activities.

The film depicted the crowded conditions in schools, which Principal Angus Edwards compared to Washington school's condition. He urged parents to favor proposed school building legislation.

Entertaining parents were fifth graders Judy James, who gave a recitation, and Dorothea Scott, playing a piano solo, "Third Man Theme."

Mrs. Clare Howard explained the PTA Mothersinger organization being started and urged those who sing to join.

The PTA will participate in the City Council's rummage sale early in November. Those having rummage should leave it at the school gym, or contact Mrs. Stanley Taylor, 5213.

The PTA executive board donated food for a sale held during the meeting.

Mrs. Lillian Keller's room won the attendance prize, and third grade mothers served refreshments.

Poetess Edna St. Vincent Millay Dies

AUSTERLITZ, N. Y.—(AP)—Poetess Edna St. Vincent Millay, who once wrote of death that she would not "give him a leg-up," is dead.

She died alone, as she had lived since the death of her husband, Eugen Jan Boissevain, about year ago.

Miss Millay, 58, apparently suffered a heart attack early yesterday, her doctor said, after she had worked all night editing proofs of some new poems. Her body was found in the afternoon at the foot of the stairway in her big white house on east hill.

County Home Economics Club Hold Fall Meeting at Mt. Pleasant Hall

Clallam county Home Economics Clubs held their fall meeting at the Mount Pleasant community hall Wednesday. Members of the Mount Pleasant club served as hostesses for the all-day session which included reports, luncheon and election of officers.

Installed during an afternoon candelight ceremony were new officers headed by Mrs. Jack Broadbent as president. Mrs. Ruth Keller is vice-president, and Mrs. Janis Anderson, secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Ed Gosnell is the retiring president.

Fall flowers and leaves decorated the hall for the program which opened at 10:30 a.m. Mrs. Ed Gosnell presided. Highlight of the morning included reports from clubs on their year's work, and reports of the standing committees including those by Mrs. Harry Young, Mrs. D. B. Patterson, and Mrs. Louis Alice. Prize checks for fair booths were distributed.

Ruby Knudson, associate extension agent, showed the kits of materials with which women can fashion United Nations flags.

Announcement of a countywide paper drive to aid the Kiwanis Sunday school bus fund concluded the morning program. The paper drive will end October 26.

AFTERNOON SESSION

Following luncheon, Miss Knudson showed colored slides taken of the kitchen tour held earlier this year, and Mount Pleasant school children presented two musical numbers.

County Agent Melvin Michel in his talk explained the proper storage of fruits and vegetables. He advised cleanliness as a prime factor to prevent spread of diseases among the stored products. He advised circulation of air around stored items and dryness. Cardboard containers are not good for apples, he said, as they absorb moisture.

Card tables about the room with attractive decorations for special occasions were explained by the different clubs arranging them. This was a preview of the table settings and service clubs will discuss at their meetings starting November 3.

Donald Midkiff, Roosevelt high school student, spoke on the proposed school legislation, and the clubs adopted a resolution to support these issues.

Clubs voted to accept Sequim Prairie Auxiliary as a member, making a total of 12 in the association.

When asked in a city-wide survey by the University of Washington's department of pedodontics why he did or did not like the dentist, the youngster wrote:

"What I dislike about the dentist: I don't know that I dislike the dentist.

N.Y. Campaign Hits Red Press

MOSCOW—(AP)—New York's torrid political campaign hit the front pages of the Soviet press today.

In detailed accounts of the "Hanley letter" episode the Soviet press said this was proof that Governor Thomas E. Dewey is a "puppet of Wall street."

However, the Soviet newspapers are impartial in their treatment of the campaign.

The headlines here: "Corruption in the democratic and republican parties."

BATTLE OF THE BALLOTS—Newsmap shows states where close contests are expected in the November senatorial elections. Shaded states are those in which the Democrats may lose a seat or two in the United States Senate; states in black are those in which Republicans are in the same danger. The G.O.P. hopes for a double kill in Idaho and Connecticut. In the former, Republican Henry Dworshak is fighting for a four-year term and in the latter Democrat William Benton hopes to fill out the remaining two years of his term. Republicans need to win seven of the Dems' doubtful states to gain a majority in the upper house.

THE WORLD AFTER NEXT

What will this old world be like after saturation H-Bomb warfare? Or had you rather not wonder about it? The picture of the future is clear, however—if you really want to know.

We cannot be certain that life on this earth will be destroyed by the H-Bomb. We do know that the Bomb is capable of doing so! But set this much down as a certainty: Life on this earth, as we know it, will be completely wiped out!

This is not an exhibit of calamity-howling. On the contrary, it is an example of supreme optimism. Strange paradox, isn't it?

Desolation—and Then Some!

Listen to these prophetic words: "Lo, the Eternal soon shall lay the earth bare and wild, rendering it shapeless and scattering its inhabitants; . . . such is the sentence of the Eternal." And these words also: "I beheld, and, lo, there was no man, and all the birds of the heavens were fled. I beheld, and, lo, the fruitful place was a wilderness, and all the cities thereof were broken down at the presence of the Lord, and by his fierce anger."

These alarming words are in the Bible. The first, Isaiah 24 (Moffatt); the second, Jeremiah 4. And listen: prophecy has never, in a single instance, failed!

When can you expect the end of the world? Note that this catastrophe is brought about "at the presence of the Lord." When Christ himself returns to this earth!—as we read elsewhere also.

This is fundamental to an understanding of the future: the reappearance of Jesus Christ (temporarily to remove the righteous from this earth), and the desolation of the earth itself "at the presence of the Lord." It is revealed by Jesus himself: Luke 17:26-30.

But even more fundamental to an understanding of the future is the fact of a re-creation of this world following a period of desolation! This may sound strange to modern ears, but it is nevertheless certain.

Here, then, is a capsule portrayal of the next, desolate world; and the "world after next"—new, re-created: "But the day of the Lord will come like a thief, on which the heavens will pass away with a rush and a roar, the elements be destroyed in the fierce heat, and the earth and all its works will vanish . . . But in accordance with His promise we expect new heavens and a new earth, in which righteousness dwells." II Peter 3:10-13 (Weymouth)

New World Coming!

Tired of the perplexities of the world today? Better be expecting and preparing for a new world, friend. It is the only outcome of affairs that makes any sense at all. It will be the only outcome—period.

"And I saw a new heaven and a new earth . . . and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away. And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new." Rev. 21.

You will be wise if you plan to be there. (Next: How to Survive the End of the World.)

This is No. 2 of a series, telling briefly of the beliefs and hopes of 700,000 of your Seventh-day Adventist neighbors and friends.

20 Injured When Trains Collide

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The New York Central Railroad's Pacemaker collided with an electric engine here last night, injuring some 20 persons.

Ward H. Leahy, Cleveland district superintendent for the road, said the train was moving at about 10 miles an hour through the yards when it collided with an electric engine.

Edward J. Sullivan, 26, of New York, a waiter, was treated at Glenville Hospital for a back injury.

George Jean, 61, of Benton Harbor, Mich., suffered bruises over the right eye and on the forehead and was treated by one of the three NYC doctors called.

Leahy said another 17 were bruised but not seriously hurt and were treated on the train.

He estimated the delay for repairs at two hours.

It was the second mishap to befall a New York Central passenger train yesterday. In early morning darkness, the railroad's "North Star" plunged off the tracks in the heart of Oneida, N.Y., killing two crewmen and injuring a score of passengers.

Girls Who Lack Beaux Should Watch Eating

By Vivian Brown
AP Newfeatures

"Bobby-soxers who lack beaux, whistles, and friends should take a long look at their emotions, at what makes them tick," advises Elizabeth Porter, assistant director of the family service agency in New Orleans.

Girls who are manless usually have serious personal problems, she says. It's not necessarily their clothes, toothpaste or makeup — they've got to find out what ticks inside of them that sends the boys running.

According to Miss Porter, you can spot the girl who is complex ridden. She's fat or a stutterer or as nervous as a cat.

Naturally you get fat from eating calories, she says. But the girl who wolfs her food down in desperation usually has something eating her—sometimes insecurity. Miss Porter explains:

"Girls bandage ego with banana splits when they feel insecure and unloved. Lacking men, they concentrate on malts . . . and the fatter they get, the slimmer become their chances of snagging swains."

SAMPLE QUIZ

Here's a sample quiz suggested by Miss Porter to find out whether scrambled insides are affecting your outside appearance:

1. Do you walk with your eyes cast down like you were searching for something lost?

2. Do you take long, masculine, determined steps like a four-letter fullback?

3. Do you slouch like a grouch? Or perch at the end of your chair as if there were a coiled rattler in back of you?

4. Do you talk and laugh a little too uproariously?

5. Are you always either chewing gum or fiddling around with your hands?

6. Do you find it hard to look folks straight in the eye?

Every "yes" is an indication that you are insecure and unhappy. Girls who walk confidently, talk pleasantly and straight-forwardly and are always at ease are happy and well adjusted, she says.

If you want to have a smoother, happier life, check yourself with this quiz and then talk your woes over with your parents or a teacher or a family counselor. You might find your date-rating go up.

WILL NATIONALIZE KASHMIR ORCHARDS

SRINAGAR, Kashmir —(AP)— The state government proposes to nationalize all large orchards in Indian-held Kashmir, which includes the fertile valley of Kashmir. Officials say a committee will be appointed to fix the rate of compensation to be paid orchard owners.

Agrarian reforms already announced will distribute farm land among the tillers, with the maximum limit of land ownership to be 20 acres.

BOOST BEER PRICE

CHICAGO—(AP)— The dime glass of beer appears to be on the way out in Chicago saloons.

A group of West Side tavern owners decided last night to boost the price to 15 cents after Nov. 1. Joseph O'Brien, president of the Chicago Taverns' Association, predicted the action would be followed by tavernkeepers throughout the city.

Rising prices of beer and overhead costs were given as the main reasons for the five cent hike.

ISRAEL'S SCHOOLS GROW

TEL AVIV, Israel— (AP) — Israeli school children, steadily increasing in numbers, are back at work for the 1950-51 term while authorities rush the construction of more classrooms. Ministry of education officials estimated from 130,000 to 134,000 children over the age of five would receive instruction this year. The 1949-50 figure was 110,000.

About 17,000 Arab children also are attending schools in various sectors of Israel.

FINDS REDS PLAY ROUGH

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA— (AP)— Marine Lt. Manning T. Jeter pulled his jeep up behind a small ridge and started crawling up to the crest to get a closer look at the enemy he believed to be on the other side. He heard the deafening crack of a nearby weapon and noted the blue flash of an anti-tank discharge overhead. Then he turned over to check on his transportation and saw only the twisted scrap metal of his late jeep.

A few days later, Lt. Jeter was finishing a long delayed shave in another valley when a shell dropped on his shaving gear and pack a short distance away. He was left holding the remains of all his personal possessions—a bottle of shaving lotion.

Thumbnail Reviews Of New Books In The City Library

By Lee Hodson

Eleanor of Aquitaine and the Four Kings, by Amy Kelly; Harvard University, 1950.

Queen Eleanor of Aquitaine was wife to two kings and mother of two others. This volume chronicles Eleanor's life and outlines the clashing politics of medieval England in which she was embroiled.

The book is a piece of straight history, not stuffily written to be sure, but with no effort to sugar coat the scholarly pill. This being the case, it is therefore surprising to find it on the best seller list. Perhaps historical novel enthusiasts have at last wearied of the mishmash currently being printed along that line and have turned with relief to the real thing.

Anybody Can Do Anything, by Betty MacDonald; Lippincott, 1950.

Betty MacDonald fans will enjoy this one.

Meal Planning and Table Service, by Betty Bailey McLean; Bennett, 1949.

Concentrates on problems that are treated scantily elsewhere—rules of table service, principles of menu making, how to carve, how to eat it after you have carved it.

Cats and People, by Frances and Richard Lockridge; Lippincott, 1950.

This husband and wife writing team are the authors of the Mr. and Mrs. North mysteries. They here step out of their usual mysterious milieu to explore the life and times of the cat.

The Norths, pardon us, the Lockridges, write charmingly of Siamese felines of their acquaintance—Pam and Jerry, Martini, Sherry, and Gin, by way of illustration. They also beat down thos ancient bugaboos with which cat haters frighten little children—cats ... suck the breath of babies, kill off all the birdlife, and other bogey man myths.

COFFIN ON ROOF

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J.—(AP)— Motorists in nearby East Brunswick looked twice at the town police car yesterday.

A coffin, inscribed with the words "He was a careless driver," was attached to its roof.

Governor Loses Turkey Over Fires

SEATTLE—(AP)— Oregon's Governor Douglas McKay will be eating turkey—a payoff from Washington's Governor Langlie.

Last spring the two governors wagered a turkey on which state would have the fewest forest fires during the summer.

Oregon—and Governor McKay—won: 1,370 to 2,040.

Langlie's executive assistant, Merritt Benson, presented the gobbler here yesterday.

NEW LOAN APPROACH

CLIFTON, N.J. —(AP)— About a week ago a man walked into the Lakeview Savings and Loan Association and inquired about a GI loan.

Company officials drew up the necessary papers and had everything ready yesterday when the man returned.

But instead of a pen, he pulled out a gun, relieved the company of $3,085 and locked three employees in the vault.

Only about three per cent of Egyptian land is cultivated.

Bond Issue Passage Needed to Take Care Of Critical State Institution Crowding

"Washington state continues to grow in population and industry, but its institutions to care for the deficient have not grown at all," Harold Widsteen, local chairman of the United Voters for school, college and institution bonds, said today.

Referendum No. 8, which will appear on the general ballot at the November 7 election, authorizes the sale of bonds for construction of buildings at state institutions to meet a critical need.

Port Angeles chapter of the United Voters group is actively working for passage of referendums 7, 8, 9 and HJR 10 which will allow bond sale to finance construction of buildings in schools, colleges, institutions and aid local school districts to build to meet local needs.

Widsteen said that few realize the critical need for more housing in the state's charitable, educational and penal institutions.

"Mental hospitals are now crowded 35 per cent above what is considered a safe capacity," he pointed out. "Total bed capacity of the buildings in the northern state, western state and eastern state hospitals is 5,684. There are, however, 7,125 people presently housed and more on waiting lists who can't get in."

"Six hundred children are termed 'emergency' cases by courts but are waiting to be admitted to the Rainier State school and Lakeland Village school for mentally deficient children."

BUILDINGS OUTDATED

State officials admit that many of these institutions' buildings are fire hazards. Some are between 45 and 60 years old.

State reformatories and the penitentiary now are at the limit of their capacity. Proper segregation of inmates is impossible and space for rehabilitative facilities is limited. New buildings are imperative in all these institutions. Widsteens declared.

"Veterans' and Old Soldiers' homes are becoming increasingly crowded. Of all the buildings housing veterans at the state veterans' home, not one is fireproof. New buildings are a recognized need," he continued.

"Our state legislature has given the people a program in referendum 8 to bring our state institutions up to a modern, safe level. Voters must approve bonds to build now. We must not wait until a disastrous fire or prison break dramatizes our critical need as it has before in many other states," he concluded.

License Director Gets Liquor Post

OLYMPIA—(AP)—Robert L. Smith, state director of licenses, was appointed to the state liquor control board today.

Governor Langlie named him to the $10,000 a year post left vacant by the resignation of Clarence B. Lafromboise last Feb. 1.

J. D. McDougall, assistant director of licenses, will assume the duties of acting director of the licenses department.

Smith, 36, a Seattle real estate broker, was appointed head of the licenses department Sept. 6, 1949.

In announcing the shift of assignments, Langlie said:

"Mr. Smith has shown outstanding administrative ability in the management of the department of licenses. I feel that his promotion to this important post in our liquor administration is entirely merited by the fine record he already has made. . ."

Convict Escape Attempt Futile

JACKSON, Mich.—(AP)—A convict made a desperate escape attempt via a sewer at southern Michigan prison yesterday and tried to kill himself when it was futile.

Trapped by hot water in a storm sewer, lifer Reece A. Lawson plunged a knife into his chest.

Over his head were ten tons of coal. Prison guards and employes dug through it to free the perfled fugitive from what could have been a self-chosen grave.

Lawsen, 49, serving life for a Detroit policeman's murder in 1947, stole off from his prison plumbing job in midafternoon and crept into the sewer through a small opening.

Deep in the sewer, 500 yards from where he started, he was trapped by hot water issuing as waste from the prison cannery.

Guards heard his screams as they were searching for him. They dug through the coal and opened a manhole to release him.

There was a stab wound under Lawson's heart. He was brought to the prison hospital. Warden Julian H. Frisbie said Lawson told of trying to kill himself in the belief rescue or escape was impossible.

Escape apparently was impossible. The sewer leads only to a precipitous well outside the prison yards. Without a ladder Lawson could never have emerged. Prison officials said other inmates had made the futile attempt.

Cougar Killed After Woman Wounds It

Mrs. Richard Fralick, Port Angeles, shot and wounded a cougar late yesterday in the Majestic area. The animal was tracked and killed later by her husband and Earl Sanderson, and the latter's cougar dog.

Mrs. Fralick was watching a deer trail at Majestic, between the Lyre and East Twin rivers, when the 100-pound female cougar came in sight sniffing deer tracks on the trail. She had time for only one quick shot, wounding the animal in the jaw and front foot.

Fralick, hunting nearby, heard the shot and found his wife, who is afraid of cougar, quite unnerved. He went to town and got Sanderson and one of his cougar hounds. With the dog on a leash they tracked and shot the wounded animal in about 15 minutes.

The cougar is at the Marina.

Fralick also killed a buck deer yesterday on the ridge west of Majestic and said he saw many cougar signs in the area.

Marine-Air News

A PBY plane from the Ediz hook coast guard, on a flight over the ocean, was crippled when one motor failed yesterday. A thousand pounds of material was jettisoned and another plane from the station and a navy plane escorted the disabled ship to its Ediz hook base. The motor quit 100 miles west of Swiftsure light off the Washington coast. The plane flew low to its destination.

The coast guard alerted firemen, ambulances and other emergency units in preparation for a crash landing, but the plane landed here without incident.

Thirty-three rungs are filled on the 800-rung yearly qualifying ladder of the Port Angeles Salmon Club.

Blackmouth chinook salmon are being taken at the tip of Ediz hook and outside and in the inner harbor as far west as the coast guard dock. At this time of the year or a little later the salmon usually move to the log booms and the western end of the harbor.

Cooked dried beans team well with browned chopped onions and canned tomatoes. Season well with salt and pepper and serve very hot sprinkled with parsley. To cut the parsley fine use a kitchen scissors.

Communists Ridicule Stassen's Letter

MOSCOW—(AP)—The Soviet press today scoffed at Harold Stassen's request for a conference with Generalissimo Stalin as a "dirty game."

In the first Soviet reply to the letter from the University of Pennsylvania president and former republican presidential aspirant the communist party organ Pravda said:

"Stassen by his statement showed that in reality in his program there is not the word 'peace.' Nor the word 'international cooperation.' In the program of Harold Stassen there is arms race and further intensive preparation for war. The hurriedly put on mask of the peacemaker cannot hide the real face of Harold Stassen."

(Stassen, who talked in Moscow in 1947 with Stalin, asked the Russian premier early in October for a similar face-to-face meeting "to stop the drift toward war."

(Stassen in his letter to Stalin also urged that the Russian dictator change the Soviet Union's present policy and "move toward world peace and freedom for mankind.")

"Stassen," said Pravda, "in his letter demands no more, no less than a change by the Soviet Union of its policy.

"It is not difficult to see that Stassen is not only crude but also ridiculous in advancing this wild demand which excludes all possibility of a serious view of any degree of 'document' worked out by the president of Pennsylvania University in cooperation with veteran war-mongers Eisenhower and Dulles."

Schools Get Liquor Funds

OLYMPIA—(AP)—Medical and biological research at the University of Washington and Washington State College received $445,000 from the state liquor control board during the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, Board Chairman Evro Becket said yesterday.
