Strait Balks Thomas On Third Try; Possible Sunday Attempt Slated

In Victoria today Bert Thomas announced he plans to make another swimming attempt on the Strait of Juan de Fuca Sunday at 9 a.m., Port Angeles time, weather permitting.

He said he hopes to be recovered from a slight cramp in his left leg suffered Thursday in swimming past Race Rocks.

The Rev. John Donelon of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church of Toronto plans to start his swim at 4 a.m. Monday. Janice White plans to take to the water at 4:45 a.m. Monday. The weather will determine their attempts.

VICTORIA, B. C. (AP) — Beaten three times by the Strait of Juan de Fuca, indomitable Bert Thomas, 29-year-old Tacoma logger, plans to try the 18.3-mile swim again, possibly Saturday.

"What has that Strait got against me," Thomas cried after he was pulled from the water Thursday afternoon 9 hours and 11 minutes after he set out from here for Port Angeles, Wash.

Two other challengers of the unconquered Strait have scheduled their assaults of the cold, tide-churned channel early Monday. They are the Rev. John Donelin a Roman Catholic priest, and 18-year-old Janice White, both of Toronto.

BITTER PILL

Thursday's defeat was a bitter pill for Thomas, a former Marine frogman. He had swum nearly 20 miles on a zig-zag course before being pulled from the water and at one stage came within less than six miles of the Washington shore before a strong wind and tides pushed him back.

Earlier this month the tides had stopped him when he was nine miles from Port Angeles. In April he was pulled out with a stomach cramp after swimming only seven miles.

ANOTHER TRY

Only after his sponsor ordered him out and promised to back him on another try did Thomas give up Thursday.

He was in good condition when he came out of the 49-degree water.

Father Donelin hopes his attempt will help construction of a youth center in Toronto. He has practiced for about 800 hours in Toronto, including an eight-hour swim in the 46-degree waters of Lake Ontario.

Miss White was here earlier this year to take a crack at the Strait but bad weather stopped her attempt.

A stubborn tide, which threw the brawny swimmer back 2½ miles, plus a rising wind and choppy seas finally forced Thomas out of the water.

Optimism for success on this try was running high after he cleared the treacherous Race Rock channel and hit the strait 45 minutes ahead of schedule.

But then the strait began to get in its licks. Thomas was riding an extreme ebb tide and planning on catching fast running flood tide which should have carried him into shore on or near Ediz Hook.

Instead of carrying him this way it set him back and finally proved too much of a barrier to be whipped.

With his accompanying boats bobbing around like corks in the rising wind and sea, Thomas was still confident about 1:30 p.m. He was quoted as saying: "Wait till that flood comes. I'll give her hell all the way over."

TURNS DOWN BID

BERLIN (AP) — West Berlin Mayor Otto Suhr said Friday he has turned down another Communist bid to negotiate with East Berlin on city unity.

400 Make First Kalakala Trip This Morning

The Washington State Ferry Kalakala left at 10 a.m. today for Victoria with more than 400 persons and 35 cars aboard.

The ferry today inaugurated a summer schedule between Port Angeles and Victoria on Vancouver Island.

Approximately 250 persons aboard the ferry on the first regular trip today were from Port Angeles. About 150 went aboard in cars from Washington, Oregon and California.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce officials said at least 1,000 residents of that city were making the trip starting at noon, Port Angeles time, and arriving at 1:30 p.m.

Accompanying the Canadian delegation are civic officials, a kiltie band, a western music group, horse - drawn tallyho, Neptune's Daughter in the person of Doreen Wells.

OFFICIAL DELEGATION

From Port Angeles went Mayor Ivor Smith, City Manager G. S. Vergeer, President G. C. Leverett of the Chamber of Commerce, Secretary-Manager Ila Thomas and civic leaders and townspeople. Troop 19 of the Girl Scouts was aboard.

Captain of the Kalakala today is A. F. Eikum. Two of the three pursers are Robert Shideler and Roy Manock, former Port Angeles residents.

H. R. Dally, district agent of the Washington State Ferries from Anacortes, was here Thursday and today in charge of arrangements. Manager Floyd McDowell and Executive Assistant H. G. Swendson arrived here on the trip from Victoria. They participated there in ceremonies in which the Victoria Chamber of Commerce presented a plaque for the Kalakala.

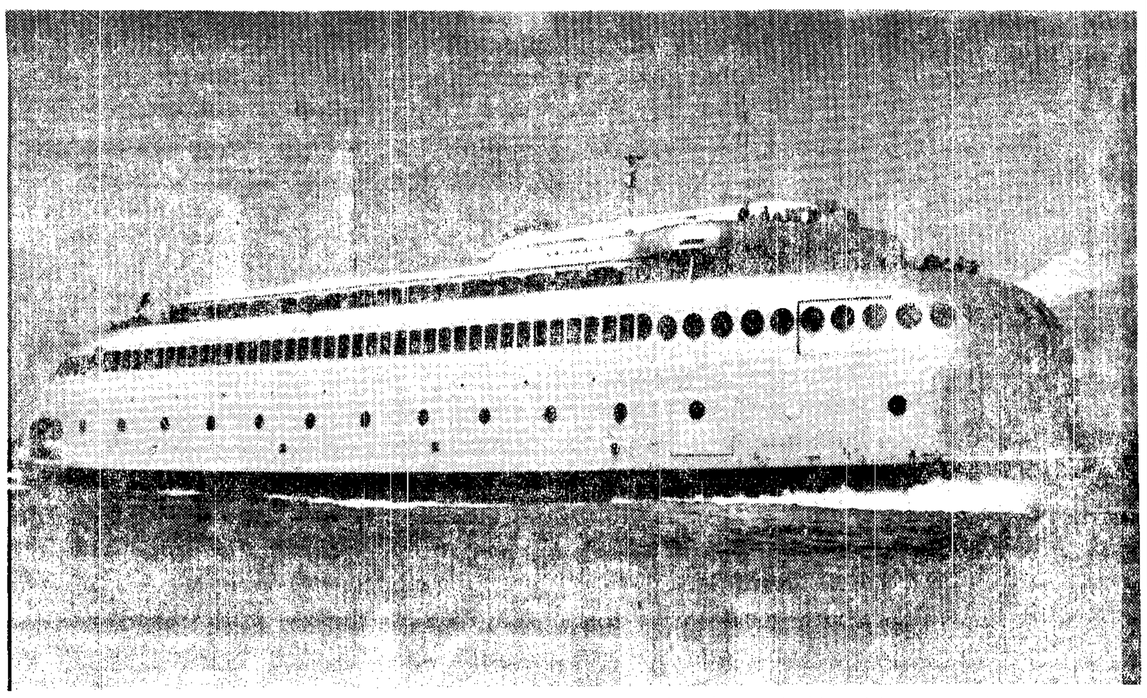
The Kalakala arrived in Port Angeles at 8:30 p.m. after a trial run from Victoria. The motor ship went there earlier in the day from Seattle, where it operated on the Seattle-Bremerton run.

2,000 PASSENGER

The streamlined ferry has a capacity of 2,000 passengers and 70 cars.

The Kalakala will use the Black Ball dock where the Chinook docked both in Port Angeles and in Victoria.

The vessel will operate only during the summer months. It will maintain the schedule of the Chinook, with four round trips a day.



THE WASHINGTON STATE FERRY KALAKALA started service today between Port Angeles and Victoria, B.C., for the summer months. First trip leaving here at 10 a.m. carried a Port Angeles delegation to meet a Victoria group en route to Port Angeles at noon. The ferry, formerly plying between Seattle and Bremerton, takes over the run of the Chinook of the Black Ball line transferred to the Nanaimo-Vancouver run. The streamlined vessel carries 70 cars and up to 2,000 passengers.

Opposition To Penn Street Sewer Project Halved During Hearing

Opposition to the Penn Street sewer project under a local improvement district was halved Thursday night during a hearing on the proposal in the city council room at Front and Oak.

City Councilman Joseph Wolfe estimated that the 30 per cent of the property owners who had objected to the project was cut to 18 percent after the proposal was fully explained.

Opposition melted rapidly after City Manager G. S. Vergeer explained property owners along Second Street could build their own lateral sewers to connect with the main sewer trunk line after the system is installed.

The area involved in the sewer district lies just south of Highway 101 on the eastern edge of the city.

TRUNK LINE

As City Engineer Herman Ahlvers explained it, the project consists of a trunk line running through the district then connecting with another main line on Francis Street at Georgiana.

The main objection was that laterals or branches off the trunk line are planned in the streets and alleys from Third Street south, but all property owners in the entire district must pay an equal assessment to finance the cost of building the main trunk.

Ahlvers explained that a lateral is planned for the alley between Second and Third Streets but none for Second Street. He said no lateral was planned there at this time because most of the lots along the street do not have houses on them.

He further pointed out that, in cases where no lateral sewers are planned, property owners do not have to pay second assessment in addition to the one for the trunk line.

OBJECTION

In answer to a question about the main sewer line, Ahlvers pointed out the State Health Department had objected to the city creating any more sewage outlets into the harbor.

Original planning called for dumping the sewage into White Creek which would have carried it into the harbor. White Creek forms the western boundary of the proposed sewer district.

Because of the state objection, Ahlvers explained, it is necessary to construct the main sewer trunk to the Francis Street line.

One of the spokesmen for those opposing the project was Norman F. Johnson of 609 E. 3rd. He contended the estimated cost of the sewers is too high.

He noted the valuation of his property is $1,060 while his total assessment for the sewers comes to $1,062.

He also said property owners in the district were told when the project was first proposed the cost would be about $280 per lot but is now about $320.

Vergeer pointed out the $320 figure is based on advanced engineering estimates and may not be the final cost total. He explained final costs to the property owners must be determined by the successful bid on actual construction of the sewers.

KEY TO HOME GROWTH

Building of the Penn Street sewer system is the key to the city's future home building growth. Earlier this year the State Health Department declared the area a health hazard.

Along with that action, the department barred the city from issuing further building permits until steps were taken to correct the situation.

After receiving plans from the city last month on the Penn Street project, the health department gave the city permission to again issue permits for home building.

During a part of the hearing, Johnson charged the city with conspiring with the health department to get the hazard declaration in a move to "force" the project on the Penn district home owners.

Vergeer immediately denied the charge, pointing out the city was warned repeatedly by the state about the situation before the formal declaration was made.

A home owner in the Penn Street area supported the city manager, pointing out it had taken him a year to get a permit to build his home because of the state ruling.

HARDPAN SOIL

The state contends septic tanks now used in the area by home owners do not function properly because of a "hardpan" soil. Because of the soil condition, sewage works to the ground surface, creating the health hazard.

Biggest break in the opposition came near the end of the hearing when Mrs. F. D. Lowry, owner of 88 lots in the district, withdrew her objections.

Others who followed her lead were Matthew J. Yoncher, David Cherpesky and Harold Hartman.

Final decision on going ahead with the project or dropping it is up to the city council when it meets in regular session.

Storm Detection Radar Contemplated For Tatoosh Station

WASHINGTON (AP) — A long-term storm detection radar station at Tatoosh Island is among Weather Bureau improvements contemplated by the Senate when it voted to add $2,500,000 to a Department of Commerce appropriations measure Thursday, Sen. Magnuson (D-Wash) said later.

The long range station would spot storms 200 miles at sea giving added protection to fishing and ocean commerce.

Other plans included modernizing the upper air observation station at Spokane and installation of improved surface observation equipment at Seattle-Tacoma, Olympia, Spokane and Bellingham airports, Magnuson said.

The money still must be approved by the House.

Molotov Changes Signals On Dinner For U.N. Delegates

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)— V. M. Molotov, in a lightning change of signals, decided Friday to have his formal dinner for some U. N. delegates before former President Truman speaks, instead of afterward.

The Soviet foreign minister sent a special delegation spokesman to the U. N. press area to deny once more reports that he had scheduled a dinner for a number of U.N. delegates in order to steal Truman's audience when Truman speaks Friday night as a distinguished personality.

Thursday night Molotov had passed out word that the dinner would be held after Truman spoke. Then he learned that Truman will make his talk at 9 p.m. This is late for dinner, even on the Moscow style, so Friday morning he made it known the dinner will take place at 7 p.m. It will be a quickie—an hour long—and the guests can reach the U. N. meeting in time to hear Truman.

House Committee Approves Keeping Debt Limit On

WASHINGTON (AP)— The House Ways and Means Committee Friday quickly approved an administration request to keep the national debt limit at 281 billion dollars for another year.

Committee members said the group acted by voice vote in a brief closed session, with no dissents heard. The action came after Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey asked for a continuation of the dollar ceiling—six billions above that allowed in the permanent law.

"It will be a tight squeeze but we will try to live with it." Humphrey told the committee.

He made no airtight promise that the administration wouldn't have to ask for another extension or an increase.

"We may be back a year from now. We may be back next January if the least thing goes wrong," he said. "It's that tight."

The renewed one-year increase in the ceiling is expected to win Congress' passage within a matter of days. The present law permitting the higher ceiling is due to expire next Thursday.

Humphrey foresaw a sharp cut in a 2½ billion dollar deficit predicted for the government in the coming fiscal year, or perhaps even a balanced budget.

Nurses Needed For Baby Douglas Firs

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists Friday were seeking nurses for baby Douglas fir trees.

John M. Pierovich of the U. S. Forest Service told the Pacific Division of the American Assn. for the advancement of Science that heat injury and death of the tree seedlings can be reduced by using nurse plants for shade.

The Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management, and Oregon State College are studying several plants as possible nurses to protect these seedlings until they are big enough to look after themselves.

Dulles Bluntly Tells Russia To End Cold War By Stopping Use of Force

By MAX HARRELSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles told Russia in blunt language today that the way to end the cold war is to stop using force against other countries and to stop supporting subversion.

In a stinging attack on communism, Dulles declared:

"To bring the cold war to an end, seven points are not needed; this one is sufficient."

The secretary spoke at the U. N.'s 10th anniversary meeting, which Wednesday heard Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov propose a seven-point program to liquidate the cold war.

Dulles spoke with President Eisenhower's "full confidence and concurrence." The President himself said so on Monday when he addressed the opening session. He told the delegates the secretary would speak today "on appropriate elements in the foreign policy of this nation."

PULLED NO PUNCHES

Dulles pulled no punches as he reviewed the role of communism in recent history. He agreed with Molotov that some problems had been settled recently, but he said they would have been settled years earlier except for the Communists.

"We do not forget," he said, "we dare not forget, that some of those who now hail the recent developments are precisely those who for years sought to stop them."

Dulles strongly defended the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and other regional organizations which Molotov blamed for much of the trouble today. These organizations were based on the spirit of the U. N. Charter, he said, and it was Western strength, backed by these organizations, which had led to the solution of major problems.

Then, in sarcastic language, he took up the problems which Molotov had listed in his speech as having been solved. The Korean War, he said, was ended only after U. N. forces had repelled Communist aggression.

"INDEED STRANGE"

"It is indeed strange," he said, "to hear this triumph of collective security now hailed as proof of the peaceloving character of the aggressor and its supporters. If they had had their way, we would today be commemorating the fifth anniversary of the demise of the United Nations."

The Indochina fighting was ended by agreement in Geneva, but only after the United States and other nations made it clear that continued fighting might call for collective action within the framework of the U. N. charter.

The Austrian treaty should have been signed years ago, but it was delayed while one of its occupying powers exploited its economy for a decade.

Yugoslav-Soviet relations have been improved but they were bad in ghe first place only because Yugoslavia had broken away from "an alien yoke."

President Urges U. S. To Remain Strong For Peace

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

With Eisenhower In New Hampshire (AP) — President Eisenhower said Friday that if America remains strong "we will be able to lead the world toward that promised goal" of lasting peace.

Speaking at Franconia Notch, at ceremonies marking the 150th anniversary of "Old Man of the Mountains"—a great stone face etched by nature—the President told an audience of about 2,500 persons;

"We would like to be at peace. We do not like to send our boys off into the armed services. We do not want to have the terrible things happen that could happen in a new war."

BETTER UNDERSTANDING

Eisenhower urged all Americans to try to achieve a better understanding of the people of other nations, and in this way "to bring about the great dream of mankind and reach a peaceful world."

Speaking against the backdrop of the famed mountain, Eisenhower said:

"If we have sufficient devotion to the cause of peace we will be strong.

"Only strength can cooperate with others to attain peace; weakness cannot cooperate; weakness can only beg."

Continuing his tour of northern New England, the President went to Franconia Notch after speaking informally earlier at Lincoln, home town of his chief aide, former New Hampshire Gov. Sherman Adams.

POLITICAL PLANS

At neither Franconia Notch nor Lincoln did Eisenhower make any allusion to his political plans for 1956.

At Concord, Thursday he caused a great stir with a "teaser" suggestion that he might run for another term.

A presidential aide, who asked not to be named, said Eisenhower laughed uproariously Friday in reading newspaper accounts of the commotion he caused as a result of his Concord speech.

The President dealt with the second term subject in Thursday's Concord speech in a teasing way, but he completely surprised his police-estimated audience of 15,000.

Steelworkers Flatly Reject Wage Hike Offer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp., its offer to boost wages about 10 cents an hour flatly rejected by the CIO United Steel Workers, today studied its next move to head off a threatened strike at midnight next Thursday.

No negotiations were scheduled. But both sides indicated that behind-the-scenes talks were in the works.

David J. McDonald, president of the USW, turned down the offer last night less than an hour after it was made.

Big steel termed it "substantial" and said it "should produce a prompt settlement."

McDonald declared:

"We can see no justification whatsoever to accept a settlement this year—the most profitable in the industry's history—which is approximately one half of the cost of the settlements already made in the automobile industry. We will not accept such discriminatory treatment."

Steel workers now average $2.33 an hour.

The USW's two-year contract, which provides for wage talks only this year, permits it to call its members out on strike at midnight June 30 unless an agreement has been reached.

McDonald summoned the union's 170-man wage policy committee to meet here Monday "in light of the critical situation."

McDonald never has said how much he wants. However, Bill Hatton, president of local 3423 at Hammond, Ind., says the union is asking a 25-cent-an-hour across-the board increase.

Couple Charged With Toledo Holdup

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) —Bernard George Miller, 45, and his wife, Marie Edith, 35, were arrested Thursday by FBI agents on charges of robbing the Toledo, Wash., bank of $1,331.50 last Feb.1.

The two, arrested in their home here, are being held in Los Angeles County jail pending return to Seattle for prosecution on the bank robbery charges.

David Swesey, 17, Mrs. Miller's son, was arrested in Toledo in April and pleaded guilty to participating in the robbery. He is under sentence to remain in a federal correctional institution until he is 21.

Public Health Service Backs Polio Shot Plans

By B. L. LIVINGSTONE

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Public Health Service, agreeing with the opinion of a panel of medical experts, says "we continue to endorse the manufacture and use" of Salk polio vaccine.

The health service statement, reaffirming its earlier stand, was issued as the House Commerce Committee completed two days of unusual hearings in which researchers expressed opinions which added up to an 8-2 vote of confidence in the vaccine.

There still was no word, however, on how soon additional supplies of the vaccine might be available. A special vaccine clearance committee which advises the health service met late yesterday, but took no action on supplies awaiting clearance.

A health service spokesman said no further meetings were scheduled this week, but that it was possible now to clear vaccine through a telephone conference.

Summing up two days of testimony by the 15 specialists at the House hearing, Chairman Priest (D-Tenn.) told newsmen today:

"The differences among these eminent doctors appeared to me more moral and technical than basic. It was significant there was no dissent on substituting new virus strains for preparation of the vaccine.

"It was also significant that among the dissenters to the program great stress was laid on the moral responsibility of doctors in administering the vaccine."

Utah Man Named To State Post

OLYMPIA (AP) — Dr. George Spendlove, 42, former Utah director of health, was named Thursday to administer Washington's medical welfare program.

The office of George M. Hollenbeck, acting director of the Department of Public Assistance, said Spendlove will be an assistant to Hollenbeck and will direct the state program of providing free medical and dental care to needy persons. His salary will be $15,000 a year.

Puget Sound Pilots Tell City Council of Action Planned To Move Station Barge Off Ediz Hook

The city got further assurance from the Puget Sound Pilots Thursday night action is being taken to move the pilot station barge off Ediz Hook.

Reading from a prepared statement, Puget Sound Pilots President Capt. Gunnar Olsborg told city councilmen of his organization's plans to build a new station on the tidelands just east of the pilot's present dock.

In a message to the station here Thursday afternoon, the pilots' attorney advised them of the latest developments on leasing the building site.

TO POST NOTICE

The message stated the State Land Commission will soon post notice of the pending lease at the Clallam County courthouse to comply with state law.

The message also noted there have been no objections to the lease to date.

Olsborg told the council arrangements are made with a local firm to drive pilings for the foundation platform. He further explained that plans for the new station are about ready and the pilots should be in a position to accept construction bids next week.

Olsborg appeared before the council after the special hearing on the proposed Penn Street sewer district project was completed.

OLSBORG STATEMENT

His statement follows:

"Just two weeks ago one of my colleagues, Capt. Thomisen, who is also a member of the Washington State Pilotage Commission, appeared before this body in order to explain his position as a commissioner. Needless to say, he was accorded rather rough treatment, understandable perhaps when one considers the position of the city.

"Speaking as an individual and at the same time realizing that I represent the pilots, I wish to reiterate that the pilots are sympathetic with the city in their successful efforts to retain the Coast Guard. Because of this, the pilots are committed to moving their station.

"Perhaps the city wonders why it takes us so long to accomplish this movement. Please let me answer this question by stating that our problems, the same as problems of the city of Port Angeles or any other city for that matter, are not solved overnight.

"Just recently the city of Port Angeles completed the construction of a new road out to the Spit. That did not happen overnight. Many problems had to be solved before the cement was laid.

"We have had similar problems with our pilot station—legal, physical and financial.

"As everyone knows, the January 18 deadline was called off by the Coast Guard subject to the findings of the Coast Guard Board of Inquiry. When this board reached their decision, we immediately attempted to solve our problem.

"We found that the majority of the members wished to float and secure the barge to our present dock. However, the $5000 figure which we estimated it would cost seemed out of proportion to the benefits to be obtained by the pilots.

"At this particular time, a study of a tideland map prepared by John U. Wright of Port Angeles revealed a 58-foot undeeded and unleased strip of tideland just 24 feet east of our present dock. As a result of this discovery by our attorney, Charles B. Howard, in consultation with a Coast Guard engineering officer, the pilots decided to build a new station.

"This, of course, posed numerous problems. The foremost consideration was the securing of title to the tideland. Accordingly, an application was filed over a month ago and Andrew Severyns, your attorney, can verify as stated in the June 17th issue of the Port Angeles Evening News that the Washington State Pilotage Commission has made an application for title to this tideland.

"We have been assured by the Land Commissioner at Olympia that we will receive title to this strip. A telephone call to Olympia this morning revealed the fact that we have a few more days to go in order to process our application.

"The only possible source that we know of that could nullify our obtaining title to this strip is the Coast Guard. They have been notified by our attorney as well, I am sure, by the State Land Commissioner. So far as we know, there has been no objection from the U. S. Coast Guard.

"Our next move has been correspondence with the U. S. Army Engineers. The engineers have granted us permission to build any structure we wish, in as much as it is inside of the harbor boundary lines. However, we realize that our structure must have the approval of the U. S. Coast Guard as to elevation and location outside of the 15 degree glide angle.

"We are also in receipt of correspondence from the Seattle architectural firm of Grant, Copeland & Chervenak, located in the Lloyd Building. These plans should be available for the builders the first part of next week.

"I have with me our office file on the pilot station containing almost 130 pieces of correspondence, all but 20 letters compiled since January first. We may, in the eyes of some, appear to have been dilatory, but we have not been inactive. All reference to correspondence in this statement is supported and can be readily obtained from the file on request of the city officials.

"In conclusion, please let me state that the Puget Sound Pilots cooperate with the U. S. Coast Guard by furnishing daily reports of ship movements in and out of Port Angeles Pilot Station.

"During World War II those of us in the pilotage service were officers in the Coast Guard Reserve and disenrolled with the rank of Commander.

"For years we have supported and contributed bicycles to the children's salmon derby.

"We furnish employment to five Port Angeles residents, maintain two boats which are used in an emergency to assist others, and we purchase much of our supplies in Port Angeles.

"Therefore, we earnestly seek your cooperation in solving our problem at the earliest possible date."

Brother Killed In Freak Accident

EVERETT (AP) — One of three brothers was killed in a freak accident Thursday as he attempted to prevent the bumper of a stalled car from locking with the bumper on a truck pushing it.

John William Rodgers, 67, was standing on the bumpers when the car started and pulled away from the truck. Rodgers fell and the truck ran over him. He died two hours later while being transferred to a Seattle hospital.

Swimmer in Strait Has Sympathy Of Local Official Greeting Body

If Bert Thomas sometimes becomes a little frustrated at being balked by the Strait of Juan de Fuca, he has a small group here who can sympathize with him.

Since the strait swimming season began early in the spring a small party made up of the official city greeters, press, radio and TV men have been standing by for "Operation Alert."

Key man in the plan is Capt. Loring Hyde, manager of the local Puget Sound Pilots' station.

The operation works this way. Capt. Hyde makes arrangements for use of one of the larger locally owned cruisers.

Then when one of the channel swimmer makes an attempt the boatman on duty at the pilot station keeps in touch with the swimmer's progress.

When the hopeful gets over the half-way mark, the "Operation Alert" begins.

The boatman calls Capt. Hyde. He, in turn, calls the different members of the party, telling them the departure time of the boat. Everyone meets at the boat and off they go to greet the swimmer.

THEORY OF PLAN

At least that is the theory behind the whole thing. So far "Operation Alert" got a little off schedule once and actually got the party on the waters of the strait Thursday.

None of the swimmers got close enough to put the plan into effect until early this month when Bert Thomas and Pat Russell both crossed the halfway mark.

Everything went fine until the party reached the dock at the Boat Haven where they were supposed to board the boat. No boat. Somewhere along the line signals got crossed and the greeters were left stranded on the beach.

The tides of the strait settled everything by whipping both swimmers before arrangements could be made for another boat.

THURSDAY DIFFERENT

Thursday it was different. The party arrived and boarded B. N. Phillips' 35-foot cruiser, Bobby Sue. She was almost within sight of the swim flotilla when the radio report came that Thomas had given up his third attempt.

Aboard the craft were Mayor Ivor Smith, Chamber of Commerce President G. C. Leverett, Chamber Secretary Ila Thomas, James Robinson, co-chairman of the chamber tourist committee, Hyde, Phillips and representatives of the Evening News, radio station KONP and a press service and TV photographer.

Special guests aboard were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Diamond of Tacoma, mother and step-father of Thomas.

Mrs. Diamond anxiously followed the progress of her son and when he was taken out of the water said she knew he would keep on trying until he makes it.

As far as the greeters were concerned the theory of "Operation Alert" was proven.

From the number of the swimmers lined up on the Victoria side, it looks as if the official group is going to be busy. Of course with Thomas still on the other side the party is sure to be on the go until he makes it.

The Connecticut state library, located here, contains the table upon which Abraham Lincoln signed the historic Emancipation proclamation, one of the nation's treasures.

Dedicate Lucky Peak Dam On Boise River

BOISE (AP) —Lucky Peak Dam — a great mass of earth and crushed rock astride the Boise River — took its place officially Thursday in man's battle to control the floods and irrigate the farms of the Columbia River Basin.

It was the first of three newly finished projects in the Pacific Northwest to be dedicated by the Army Corps of Engineers.

Albeni Falls Dam, a power-producing structure on the Pend Oreille River in northern Idaho, will be the scene of ceremonies Friday.

The third — a dam on the Willamette River in Oregon — will be dedicated Saturday.

Actually, the Lucky Peak dam has been in operation for many months, holding back snow runoff from the nearby mountains and releasing it for downtown irrigation.

Lucky Peak took more than four years to build. The 328-foot structure cost $19,300,000. With the help of Arrowrock and Anderson Ranch dams it is expected to provide Boise Valley with a guarantee against future floods.

Merger of 2 Church Denominations Hailed As Important Union

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The merger of two Protestant denominations has been hailed by leaders of both churches as one of the most important unions of Protestant sects in the country's history.

The merger of the Evangelical and Reformed Church and the Congregational Christian Church was announced here yesterday after a three-day meeting of both groups. The two churches have a combined membership of more than two million.

The union which had been discussed since 1942—will be effective June 25, 1957, church leaders said. The new combined church will be called the United Church of Christ.

Church officials estimated the new church would be ranked eighth or ninth in size among Protestant sects.

Evangelical and Reformed Church membership numbers 761,325 and has 2,735 churches in the United States. The Congregationalists have 1,283,754 members and 5,573 churches. All figures are for 1954 as listed by the Year Book of American Churches.

The merger will be accomplished in several steps. Studies and discussions will be held this year and next on the basis of union and interpretations. Church members from each sect will exchange visits.

Also, during 1956-57, the constitution for the new church will be drafted.

Forest Products Society Names Site

SEATTLE (AP) — The Forest Products Research Society Thursday named Asheville, N.C., for its 1956 conventon and named Ralph H. Bescher of Pittsburgh, Pa., as president-elect.

Bescher, of the Koppers Co., Inc., will take office at the end of the 1956 session. Moss B. Christian, Tallulah, La., who was elected a year ago, took office as president today, succeeding Lester J. Carr of Sacramento.

Frank H. Kaufert of the University of Minnesota succeeds the new president-elect as vice president.

A plywood expert told the convention that competition among hardboard, particle board and plywood products is a healthy factor for both the industry and consumers.

Theodore Smetana of St. Paul, who directs Weyerhaeuser plywood promotion, expressed the opinion that some of the factory processes used in competing products might be adopted to the advantage of plywood makers.

Most of the 550 delegates were to visit Everett mills during the afternoon and join in an evening salmon barbecue on Hood Canal.

Former Red Called In Bridges Case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ex-Communist John Schomaker was called for searching cross-examination Thursday on his testimony that he persuaded Harry Bridges to sign into the Communist Party in 1933.

Schomaker testified at the government's civil suit seeking cancellation of Bridges' U. S. citizenship, contending he got it in 1945 by lying about Communist Party connections.

Schomaker, a 6-footer, said he is unemployed except for occasional work with the Immigration Department on the Bridges case. He has held jobs as hod-carrier, mental hospital attendant and Communist Party worker and organizer.

Wednesday he testified he and longshoreman B. B. Jones persuaded Bridges to sign. Schomaker didn't see the actual signing, he said, because he left the table—but Jones showed him the application with Bridges' name on one side and the name Harry Dorgan on the other. It had been agreed Bridges would use his mother's maiden name as a party member.

Schomaker gave the same testimony five years ago when Bridges was convicted of criminal perjury. Jones, a defense witness at that trial, denied it. That conviction was thrown out by the U. S. Supreme Court, which invoked the statute of limitations. The statute does not apply to this civil case, says the government.

Sewing Circle Makes Eskimo Nightshirts

SITTINGBOURNE, England (AP)—Ladies of the local sewing circle are making nightshirts for Eskimos of Canada's far northwest — where the nights are six months long.

Normally, Eskimos don't bother much with nightshirts. Fur is the fashion. But the cloth garments are needed when they go to a hospital, a missionary explained on a trip here recently from Canada.

The 12 Sittingbourne sewers set to work immediately. So far their score is 16 flannelette nightshirts and 14 pairs of pajamas, in both plain and striped material.

One problem was size. Said Miss Margaret Sellen, a sewing circle leader:

"We understand Eskimos are rather small so we've used patterns for rather large children. We do hope they'll fit."

MILITARY RULE SEEN FOR ARGENTINA — President Juan Peron (right) chats with Gen. Franklin Lucero as they tour bomb-damaged areas in Buenos Aires hit by naval planes in Argentina's short-lived revolt. The Argentine cabinet resigned soon after Peron conferred with Lucero and Vice President Alberto Teisaire, a retired rear admiral. Diplomatic reports in Montevideo, Uruguay, predicted a three-man military junta will rule Argentina, with Lucero as strong man, Peron No. 2 and Teisaire No. 3—as part of a move to oust Peron out of power.

100 Children Attend Swim Classes Daily

Popularity of the Sequim swim classes at the Port Angeles pool established itself this week with an average daily attendance of approximately 100 children for the first three days of the program.

Two hundred fifty Sequim youth are registered with the swim committee. Children with names A-K attend classes on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Those with names L-Z take lessons on Wednesdays and Fridays.

Since the bus transporting the swimmers has a capacity of only 50, mothers have been taking the overflow to Port Angeles by private car.

If the attendance continues at this rate, the committee states it may be necessary to consider renting another bus. However, limited finances prevent any such plans at present.

Anyone wishing to offer transportation or financial assistance is asked to contact Mrs. Reid Priest or Mrs. Peter Black.

An open account designated as the "recreation fund" is open at the Bank of Sequim to receive donations to the program.

Red Newspaper Slips; Four Workers Held

BERLIN (AP) — Four employes of Communist East Germany's leading newspaper were reported behind bars today for printing an "error" which completely reversed the party line on peace.

Their newspaper, the party organ Neues Deutschland, yesterday printed this statement:

"From day to day, in all lands of the earth, the number of persons who have signed the Vienna (Communist) appeal for preparation of an atomic war is growing."

What had actually been meant, the paper explained today, was "prevention" of an atomic war, not "preparation."

The West Berlin Telegraf said East German secret police arrested three of Neues Deutschland's editors and a proof reader.

400 Veterinarians Vote Disapproval

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — Nearly 400 veterinarians voted disapproval Wednesday of a proposed medical insurance plan for pets. They denounced it as "socialized medicine."

The vote followed a six page committee report to the California State Veterinary Medical Assn. on a Southern California proposal for a pet health plan.

The plan contemplated premium payments of $25 to $30 a year by pet owners, construction of a $350,000 animal hospital in San Fernando Valley in Southern California and siphoning business to the central hospital by leasing the businesses of affiliated veterinarians, who would be placed on salary.

Drop in New Polio Cases Over Nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — New polio last week dropped to 266 from 300 cases reported over the nation in the week before. It was the lowest total for the comparable week since 1951.

The 266 cases in the week ended June 18 compared with 421 in the corresponding 1954 week. This put the total number of cases since April 1 behind the comparative 1954 figures for the first time in some weeks.

The Public Health Service also reported Thursday that confirmed cases among contacts of persons given the Salk vaccine had risen to 149 and confirmed cases among vaccinated persons had numbered 168.

Proposed Tollway Is Called Costly

SEATTLE (AP) — The proposed Tacoma - Seattle - Everett tollway was called excessively costly and poorly planned Thursday by King County Engineer D. L. Evans.

Evans said it is neither necessary nor desirable to route the tollway through Seattle's central business district.

"At least another hundred million dollars in interest charges would be collected from motorists before the project became toll free. The 227 million dollars from toll revenue bonds would be only the initial cost of the project," he said.

"I think that where this much of the people's money is being spent a better job could be done—and probably for less money," he added.

Third Mobile Unit Announced By Elks

ABERDEEN (AP)—In a prelude to opening of the Washington State Elks convention, the organization's project committee announced Thursday the addition of a third mobile unit in its cerebral palsy program.

The unit will be stationed in Everett to serve the northwest area, said Edwin J. Alexander of Olympia, the committee chairman. Existing units are in the southwest and Yakima areas.

Mrs. Ruth Elizabeth Clark of Ellensburg, a physical therapist, has been hired to handle the Yakima Valley unit, Alexander said, and Lois Radomski will shift from Yakima to the new Everett unit.

More than 1,000 Elks were registered for the convention, which was to open during the afternoon.

SMALL NET

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—The Police Department netted exactly 62 cents per car for 34 unclaimed automobiles sold at auction. The cars brought higher prices but most of the money went for storage fees.

New techniques in building welded steel swimming pools have reduced costs so much as to start a new boom in private pool construction.

He apparently had been slain elsewhere and then jammed into the trunk.

Route To Hurricane Ridge By Old Road Open To Public

With winter snows cleared, the scenic route to the top of Hurricane Ridge via the old road is now open to the public, Superintendent Fred J. Overly of Olympic National Park made the announcement.

Overly announced that the public service building on top of the ridge will be open on July 1. Light lunches will be served to accommodate the visiting public.

From the vicinity of the public service building those who are interested may enjoy the Hurricane nature trail. Self-guiding leaflets will be available and a ranger naturalist will be on duty Saturdays and Sundays.

Hurricane Ridge has held great appeal to visitors because it offers a panoramic view of the park's rugged mountain area, including the Bailey Ridge, Elwha Canyon and Mt. Olympus.

A better view of the latter can be gained at Obstruction Point, 6,450 feet, which is at the terminus of the present Hurricane road and approximately 12 miles beyond the public service building. The road to Obstruction Point will not be open for several weeks.

ELWHA ROUTE

Visitors to Hurricane Ridge, approximately 23 miles from Port Angeles, must use the Elwha route, leaving U.S. 101 at the Elwha bridge 9 miles west of Port Angeles.

A shorter but perhaps not a less interesting trip to Hurricane Ridge will be possible with completion of the new Heart o' the Hills Highway in 1957. Boring of three tunnels on this route has been completed and construction of the seven miles above the tunnels to connect with another link, already constructed, is underway.

Superintendent Overly stressed that motorists using that portion of the Heart o' the Hills Highway open to travel will be able to drive only to a point within a few hundred feet of Lookout Rock because of construction beyond that point. Those who desire may walk from their cars to Lookout Rock but any travel beyond that point might be dangerous, he warned.

31 Soldiers Jailed After Ship Incident

NAHA, Okinawa (AP) — Thirty-one American soldiers from Korea were confined at hard labor here after refusing to obey orders aboard the Seattle-bound transport Gen. William Mitchell Thursday.

Military authorities said two others were taken off the ship and confined in Ryukyus Army Hospital.

The 33 were part of a group of men being sent home from Korea as "undesirable", military authorities said. They were convicted in shipboard summary courts martial for refusal to help a toilet cleaning detail when ordered.

The Mitchell, still carrying 39 similar 'undesirables," known as special category passengers, is due in Seattle July 5.

Peiping Claims Fifth Anti-Red Group Broken Up

TOKYO (AP) — Radio Peiping Friday reported the Red Chinese government had crushed a conspiracy against the Communist state—the fifth uncovered in less than three months.

The new group was found operating in Kiangso, Shantung and Anhwei provinces, Yellow Sea provinces north of Shanghai, the radio said.

All members of the "anti-revolutionary group" were identified as reactionary and rich landowners and farmers.

Peiping said six were sentenced to death and 20 others were given sentences up to life.

The report was carried only on apparently not intended for outside consumption. Most of the previous plots—possibly indicating serious unrest in Red China—were also broadcast only on internal radio programs.

Peiping linked the group to Chiang Kai-shek's government on Formosa. It said it had mapped out propaganda against the Communist regime, "committed burglary" to raise funds, attempted attacks on banks and was forming a guerrilla base in Southern Shantung.

Peron Pushes Dual Campaign Against Overthrow Forces

By JIMMIE PAYNE

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Backed by new pledges of military and political support, President Jaun Peron pushed a dual campaign today against those who tried to overthrow him in last week's bloody revolt and persons spreading rumors of upsets still to come.

To counter one persistent rumor that Army Minister Franklin Lucero had supplanted Peron as Argentina's strong man, a government spokesman predicted that the President soon would end Lucero's special postrevolt powers as temporary chieftain of all armed services.

Gen. Lucero himself in a broadcast saluted Peron as "the President of the nation and commander in chief of all the armed forces." The general called on the troops to "obey loyally and permanently the mandate of the sovreign people."

Statements pledging loyalty to Peron were issued by the six-million-member General Labor Confederation (CGT), the President's chief political bulwark, and by both the men's and women's Peronista parties.

The roundup of rumor mongers followed repeated statements by Lucero that numerous false reports were circulating and should be ignored.

Federal police announced 14 persons were arrested for spreading untruths in Buenos Aires province, which surrounds the capital city but does not include it.

The pro-government newspaper La Epoca reported at least six arrests in the capital.

DEMANDS APOLOGY

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's motion picture industry demanded an apology from the government broadcasting company for a program that said young actresses were "selling their bodies" for a chance at stardom. The program was one of a series on an anti-prostitution bill before the Diet.

At its third meeting, held in Olympia June 20, the Olympic Development League decided to hold its fourth meeting in Port Angeles Monday afternoon, August 8.

Two league officers plan to address the Port Angeles Chamber of Commerce meeting at noon the same day to discuss the new organization's plans and recommend chamber support.

L. V. Venable of Port Angeles, who has attended each meeting, says league officers probably will make similar talks at other Olympic Peninsula Chambers of Commerce.

He said the league officers to address the Port Angeles Chamber of Commerce will be President George Paige and Secretary F. W. Matthias, both of Olympia.

The league also has trustees in the various peninsula towns. Their names and a list of league purposes, as adopted at the second meeting in Shelton May 16, appeared in detail in the Port Angeles Evening News Monday.

The secretary's detailed minutes of the third meeting June 20 will be circulated later. Briefly, Venable said, motions adopted included these:

Seek a bridge across the Columbia River from Megler to Astoria as part of U.S. Highway 101, in place of the present ferry service.

Further the development of U.S. Highway 101, which extends from San Diego up the Pacific Coast to Grays Harbor, Port Angeles and Olympia.

Oppose any relocation of Highway 101 which might eliminate any portion of the existing route.

Magnuson Chides Administration On Defense Program

LONGVIEW (AP) — Sen. Magnuson (D-Wash) chided the administration Thursday for what he termed an inconsistent defense program.

The State's senior senator was particularly critical of the program for heavy presses—a press whereby part of a wing or other section of an airplane can be turned out in a single operation.

Speaking before the annual convention of Washington Veterans of Foreign Wars, Magnuson said the United States will have 10 of the heavy presses in operation by the end of 1956; Russia will have 150.

"No wonder they are approaching us in air supremacy," he declared.

He credited Sen. Jackson, junior senator from Washington, with getting an item in the Navy construction bill for a drydock at Bremerton big enough to handle aircraft carriers of the Forrestal type. He said the item was not in the bill until after Jackson reminded Assistant Navy Secretary Fogler of a statement he made in October, 1954, that such a drydock would be built at Bremerton.

Magnuson said he, himself, had seen to it that an item for publicity was put back in the budget for the Veterans Administration.

He explained that the VA has used numerous publicity avenues in years past.

Scotchman's Dream Comes True; Joins U.S. Air Force

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Air Force will have a hard time finding a more enthusiastic recruit than Norman Sutherland, 18, a Scot.

Sutherland has wanted to join the U.S. Air Force since he was 10. When he reached 16 he wrote the mayor of Richmond, then Dr. E. E. Haddock, about it. He was advised of the requirements and the necessity for a sponsor. Parents prevailed on him to wait until he was 18. He did and he still wanted to join. He wrote Mayor Thomas P. Bryan. Bryan turned the letter over to Maj. William E. Morgan of the recruiting service Maj. Morgan became sponsor.

Sutherland said he held two jobs and worked 85 hours a week to get the money for his passage from Scotland.

POINT BARROW ESKIMOS CELEBRATE WHALING FEAST

By CHARLES J. KEIM

This weekend the Eskimos of Point Barrow, Alaska, farthest-north settlement of the North American continent are celebrating their annual whaling feast, or "nulakatuk" because they have taken approximately 20 of the huge mammals, mostly bowheads or right whales.

The bowheads will grow to 60 feet, which means this prodigious catch has kept the settlement in meat and oil and the all-important delicacy "muktuk" or whale skin and blubber.

The natives are dancing, chanting and feasting and weaving into their celebration the ancient lore that their ancestors built up surrounding the killing of the monsters of the deep.

Modern man now hunts the whales with swift, powerful ships armed with harpoons which can be shot from the deck like a mighty cannonshell and carry an explosive charge which blows up when the harpoon is deeply imbedded in the mammal's vitals.

Powerful winches then tow the whales aboard the vessels where a horde of men soon reduce the corpses to tanks of oil and piles of rendered flesh and bone.

Not so the Eskimos. Just as they have resisted many of the white man's "modern" ways, so have they adhered to the ancient ways of killing the whales.

Don Eyinck, recent Fairbanks city manager, described the guns the natives use to hunt their whales when we talked over a cup of coffee in a downtown restaurant the other day. Don, an engineer, is employed on a project near Barrow.

USE MUZZLELOADERS

He said an associate obtained three of the guns recently. They are brass muzzleloaders weighing approximately 25 pounds. New Bedford, Connecticut, whalers introduced the guns to the natives about 1880 when their sailing ships penetrated the Arctic waters. The natives load the guns with powder, stuff a small bomb into the weapon, arm it with a percussion cap and start looking for their quarry.

They conduct their search in umiaks, or walrus hide boats. When the Eskimos are approximately 10 to 12 feet from a surfaced whale they pull the trigger and row like the dickens away from the surprised mammal.

Approximately 15 seconds later the bomb, which has penetrated the whale, explodes and either immediately kills the mammal or deals it such a grievous wound that it will die in a matter of time, which means little to the Eskimos.

Don said that another sportier method of taking the whales is to affix the bomb on a harpoon, sneak up on the whale, drive the harpoon into its flesh then wait for the bomb to explode approximately 15 seconds later. The umiaks bounce a bit on the water as the mammal throws its body about in massive agony, but the Eskimos have weathered worse storms than this and merely keep their frail craft clear of the storm center.

Don said that recently he went out on the ice where the Eskimos were waiting for some whales to show up. Their umiak was drawn up on the ice, except for a small part of the bow which was left in the water for a quck getaway. The bottom of the craft was lifted up from the ice and a small chunk placed under the vessel so it would not freeze fast.

READY FEAST

"One of the hunters had part of a whale flipper beside him on the ice," Don said. "There was a knife stuck into it. Whenever the hunter decided he was hungry, he'd merely hack off a piece of flipper and chew on it. Nearby was another hunter who had a piece of whale vertebrate and meat. His knife was sticking in it, too, for a ready meal. Strangely enough, I didn't feel that this was out of place. The white man soon accepts their way of living with little question."

Many white persons have flown to Barrow to witness the nulakatuk, which promises to be a major yearly attraction for far north tourists as long as the Eskimos continue to get their whales.

Chances are that will be for a long time. The Eskimos show no sign of losing the intestinal fortitude required to face the whales, and a canny New Bedford firm is continuing to make the same bombs the white whalers first introduced nearly a century ago.

Exception Taken By State On Hells Canyon Decision

OLYMPIA (AP)— The State of Washington took exception Friday to the recommendation of a Federal Power Commission examiner in the Hells Canyon controversy.

Examiner William J. Costello recommended last month that Idaho Power Co. be authorized to build Brownlee Dam, largest of three power projects proposed by the company.

He rejected a plea by public power advocates that the Hells Canyon reach of the Snake River be reserved for a high level federally financed dam.

Gov. Langlie's power consultant, Holland Houston, said Costello's decision was based on an all-hydro electric system and failed to take into consideration the over-all development of the entire area, using both hydro and steam power.

Houston maintained it would not be economically wise to build Brownlee Dam, the proposed high level Hells Canyon federal dam, or any other high-priced dam that stored water for use in low-water years.

He contended that the power potential of the Snake River could be full capacity by using the water as it flows, supplementing it with steam-generated power when the run is too low to turn all the generators.

Houston said Costello's decision was based on an all hydro-electric system, whereas the Pacific Northwest will be served by a combination steam and hydro system within a few years.

He admitted that a combination hydro and steam system would not completely eliminate the need for some storage dams to avert floods like the one in 1948. But, he added, the floor control program could be solved by construction of smaller, less expensive dams farther upstream on streams that do not now have storage dams.

In support of the state's position, Chief Asst. Atty. Gen. Bernard G. Leuctot filed a brief with the FPC, listing 11 exceptions to Costello's recommendations.

"The intervenor State of Washington has not been interested in who develops the Hells Canyon reach of the river," the brief says. "The intervenor has been interested in eliminating from the federal program the construction of concrete monuments.

"These monumental types of construction, even though they increase annual costs which must be paid by the purchasers of power, contribute very little more in the form of power, navigation, irrigation or flood control benefits."

MINH IN CHINA

TOKYO (AP) —Peiping Radio said Ho Chi Minh, president of Communist North Viet Nam, arrived by special train Thursday at Nanning, Kwangsi provincial capital, on his way to visit Peiping and Moscow.

Court Rules On Passport Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U. S. Court of Appeals Thursday rejected the State Department's claim of exclusive control over issuance of passports.

The court ruled in a unanimous decision that the department's actions in passport cases are subject to judicial review and must conform to the "due process" provision of the Fifth Amendment.

The court held that issuance of a passport "is not a purely political matter" involving foreign affairs. If it were, the court said, it would not be subject to court review.

Dickinson Promoted To Park Forester

Supt. Fred J. Overly today announced promotion of Floyd L. Dickinson, formerly assistant chief ranger of the Olympic National Park, to the position of park forester.

Dickinson will head the forestry division of the park, reporting directly to the superintendent. He will be in charge of all forestry activities, including insect and disease control work in the 500,000 acres of forested land in the park.

He will be in charge of salvage operations necessary in the protection of the park forests.

Forest fire control work remains under the park fire chief, Assistant Chief Ranger W. R. (Spike) Oakes.

Overly said protection of the vast and invaluable forests of the park long warranted the services of a park forester, Dickinson, by reason of his training and experience, is qualified for the job.

Dickinson is a native of Washington State and a graduate of the University of Washington College of Forestry. He worked seasonally as a trail crew worker and temporary ranger in the former Mount Olympus National Monument and in the park during his school years. After graduation in 1937 he was employed as an engineering aide by the Bureau of Reclamation until he received his permanent apintoment as park ranger inOlympointment as park ranger in Olympic National Park, where he served as ranger, district park ranger and assistant chief park ranger.

Port Townsend Group Urges Highway 101 Spur to Join U.S. 99

Port Townsend and Whidbey Island residents appeared at the State Highway Commission meeting in Olympia Tuesday afternoon to urge a spur from U.S. Highway 101 north to join U.S. Highway 99.

This would designate the existing highway from Discovery Bay through Port Townsend-Keystone ferry to Whidbey Island and back to the mainland via Deception Pass Bridge.

Urging the change were George Welsh representing Port Townsend Chamber of Commerce; Gen Lindenstein, Port Townsend coordinating secretary; E. M. Starrett, Keystone Harbor Association; Mrs. War Williams, Jefferson County State Parks Association; and Harry Palmerston, Island County Commissioners, Whidbey Island.

Opposing any elimination from existing U.S. Highway 101 was Secretary F. W. Matthias of Olympic Development League.

Representatives of Washington Automobile Club and Washington Good Roads Association supported the Port Townsend recommendation.

State Highways Director W. A. Bugge said the National Highways Association now opposes extension of U.S. Highway routes in this manner.

E. M. Starrett supplied the above information to the Evening News during a Port Angeles visit with his wife and daughter Wednesday.

He said various existing U.S. highway routes contain spurs such as proposed by Port Townsend Chamber of Commerce to assist the alternate northern route from the Olympic Peninsula through Whidbey Island to U.S. Highway 99.

He also said the Port Townsend group urges proposed U.S. Highway 2 continue through Cascade Pass, Whidbey Island and the Olympic Peninsula to the Pacific Ocean at LaPush.

Autonomous State For Sikhs Is Aim Of Schoolmaster

NEW DELHI (AP)—A fiery schoolmaster is determined to create an autonomous state for Sikhs—the "lions" of India. He is causing some anxious moments for government officials.

The six million Sikhs, a warrior sect within the Hindu religion, are concentrated in Punjab state but are a minority there. Some of the more extreme Sikh nationalists want a new state, with a Sikh majority, carved out of the Punjab and neighboring states.

The Sikh demands carry potential dynamite in an India where religious tensions sometimes explode into bloody rioting. The Sikh nationalist agitation last year resulted in riots in Amritsar and Ludhiana. This spring Punjab officials banned the shouting of slogans in organized processions.

The ban was a signal for the Shiromani Akali Dal, to launch a "morcha"—literally, an agitation. It started with Sikhs first going to their temples, then walking into the streets shouting slogans in open defiance of the government ban. The "morcha" still is going strong although thousands of Sikhs have been arrested, including the Akali Dal leader, Master Tara Singh.

His title of "master" derives from his former schoolmaster career. His flowing white beard matches his white robes and white turban. He does not hesitate to talk in terms of revolution, bloodshed and "direct action" to achieve his objective.

The word "Singh," meaning lion, is part of every Sikh's name. It designates him as a fearless warrior. The Sikh was established in 1675, partly as a reform movement with Hinduism, partly as a militant brotherhood aimed at the Moslem Moghul invaders of India.

Orthodox Sikhs do not cut their hair or beards, for they refuse to let a knife touch their skin—unless it happens in battle. Turbans cover their long hair. Their religion requires each to carry a dagger.

There are 66 total eclipses of the sun in the average century, says the National Geographic Society.

Olympic Chambers Hear Park Report, Bridge Statements

The Heart o' the Hills National Park highway may be complete, including paving, in the fall of 1957.

Supt. Fred J. Overly of Olympic National Park made the prediction on the highway completion at a meeting of the North Olympic Chambers of Commerce at Quilcene Tuesday night.

Clearing and grading is progressing along the right-of-way beyond the three tunnels. Contractors have completed work on the tunnels.

Overly announced a group of park planners from the San Francisco regional office of the National Park Service will be here this summer for an inspection of Olympic National Park.

RIDGE ROAD OPEN

The Hurricane Ridge road is open to the chalet on the Big Meadow. Overly said the new Heat o' the Hills Highway will be closed to traffic at a point about a quarter of a mile below the first tunnel.

Trail clearance within Olympic National Park is ahead of schedule this year. The reason, Overly said is the small amount of blow down timber this year compared to some other years.

Money for construction of a bridge near the mouth of the Dickey River is contained in the 1956 fiscal year budget. The bridge will span the stream to make Rialto Beach, near the mouth of the Quillayute River, accessible to automobile traffic. The former county bridge across the Dickey went out in a flood several years ago.

Improvements are being made at the Kalaloch and Olympic Hot Springs National Park camp grounds and funds are expected to be available soon for construction of side roads at the Becker Resort at Kalaloch, Overly said.

BRIDGES AND FERRIES

Delegates from several Chambers of Commerce reported action taken by the groups they represent on Puget Sound and Hood Canal bridges and ferries. No action was taken by the North Olympic Chambers of Commerce, Secretary Arnold Hirsekorn announced.

George Welch, Port Townsend, reported attending a meeting of the State Highway Commission Tuesday at which he urged an extension of Highway 101 to connect with Highway 99 on the mainland. The route would be through Port Townsend, across Whidbey Island and the Deception Pass Bridge.

Secy. F. W. Matthias of the Olympic Development League opposed the extension, Welch reported. Highway Director W. A. Bugge said the National Highways Association opposes such spurs.

Welch said representatives of the Washington Automobile Association and Washington Good Roads Association supported the recommendation originated by the Port Townsend Chamber of Commerce.

Secretary Hirsekorn reported 25 persons at the dinner-meeting at Linger Longer Inn, Quilcene. Delegates were present from Chambers of Commerce at Port Angeles, Port Townsend, Bainbridge Island, Sequim, Poulsbo and Quilcene.

Much of the meeting was devoted to an open forum discussion of North Olympic Peninsula matters, Hirsekorn said.

Vice President J. J. Dailey of Port Angeles presided in the absence of President Charles R. Willson.

Former Communist Tabs Bridges As Red in Late 30's

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Reno, Nev., motel owner who says he perjured himself for Harry Bridges on Communist Party orders in 1939, returned to the witness stand Friday to buttress his charges he and the longshore leader were fellow party members.

Bruce Hannon, former executive board members of Bridges' International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, made the charges Thursday near the end of the fourth day of the government's civil suit proceedings to strip Bridges of his U. S. citizenship. Federal Judge Louis E. Goodman is hearing the case without a jury.

Hannon testified he lied at Bridges' 1939 deportation hearing when he denied that he, Hannon, was ever a Communist.

"I was requested to testify by Harry Jackson, an official of the Communist Party. I denied I was a member of the party," Hannon testified.

That wasn't true, he added, saying he was an active party member from the spring of 1936 until the winter of 1940.

Hannon appeared as a defense witness in the 1939 case, heard by Dean James M. Landis, who found Bridges not proven to be a party member or affiliated with it.

Hannon told a different story Thursday. He testified that he, Bridges and other officers of the ILWU were party members during the late 1930's. And he said he attended Communist "fraction" meetings with Bridges in Seattle in both 1936 and 1937.

Bundle Under Coat Not Danger Weapon

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Alert guards spotted a man with a bulge under his coat entering the auditorium as Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov addressed the U. N. Assembly Wednesday.

Policemen rushed him out, searched and found . . .

A tiny puppy snuggled under his arm.

The man had a ticket (they're mighty scarce) . . . couldn't bear to lock the puppy alone in his car. . . so brought it along.

The guards enforced the no-dogs rule. Along went the owner.

MR. AND MRS. CARL TORKKO

Julia Ann Smith Now Mrs. Torkko; Couple Plan To Teach in Fall

Lush pink rhododendrons blended with other pinks and greens to set the color theme for the wedding of Miss Julia Ann Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hart E. Smith, to Carl Torkko, of Winlock, here Sunday afternoon, June 12. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Al Blum, of Winlock.

The Rev. Dr. Oscar Adam read the double ring ceremony at the First Methodist Church. Baskets of rhododendrons and ferns decorated the church, with clusters of rhododendrons tied to the end of the pews.

Miss Sue Brown sang "I Love Thee," "I'll Walk Beside You," and "The Lord's Prayer." James Smith, the bride's brother, and Robert Blum, of Aberdeen, stepbrother of the bridegroom, lighted the candles, which were tied with satin bows.

April Star Ferencz, in green chromspun taffeta, led the wedding procession as flower girl. She wore a rosebud hair decoration and carried a basket of rose petals.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white lace and nylon tulle over taffeta. Her elbow-length veil fell from a lace-covered shell and both hat and the neckline of her gown were decorated with seed pearls. She wore a single strand of pearls for jewelry, and carried a single white orchid on a bride's Bible, a gift from Mrs. Randall Kilmer.

The bride's sister, Janice, served as her maid-of-honor, wearing a full-skirted, green chromspun taffeta gown. Her headpiece also bore pink rosebuds, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Richard Sarvela, of Winlock, was best man; Jack Torkko, of Seattle, and James Torkko, of Winlock, both brothers of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Smith, wore a gown of orchid lace with orchid hat and white accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore rosewood lace, with avocado accessories. Both mothers wore white stoles.

RECEPTION AT CHURCH

Approximately 80 friends and relatives attended the reception in the church social room following the ceremony. Pink snapdragons, white carnations, bridal wreathes, baby breath and ferns decorated the room.

Mrs. Iona Ferencz and Mrs. Frank Archer cut the wedding cake; Miss Mary Cahill had charge of the guest book, Mrs. Kilmer and Mrs. Verne Samuelson poured, with Mrs. Rodney Hurd in charge of the punch bowl.

Others assisting included Mrs. Gunnar Fagerlund, Mrs. Cleon Bemis and daughter, Marilyn, and Mrs. Ellen Wharton, of Bellingham.

For her wedding trip to Victoria and Vancouver Island, the bride wore a pink orlon and wool tailored dress with matching hat and gloves and white accessories, with her white orchid.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Torkko are at home at 525 High Street, in Bellingham, where both will attend summer school at Western Washington College of Education. Mrs. Torkko will teach third grade at Ferndale, and her husband seventh grade at Meridian, in the fall.

Showers Honor Miss Paula Case, To Marry Saturday

Friends today told of two of the recent bridal showers for Miss Paula Case. She will be married here Saturday to Clifford E. Smith.

Miss Verda Neale and Miss Zella Zindel surprised Miss Case with a kitchen shower last week at the Neale home. A lavender and yellow umbrella held streamers to the gifts and the cake was decorated with "Renie (Miss Case's nickname) and Cliff."

Guests at this shower were the Misses Karen Sund, Mary Leissler, Jackie Thompson, Pat Randklev and Thelma Thompson; Mmes. Hattie Trenkle, R. J. Zindel and Bobby, Omar Randklev, Richard French, Elmer E. Smith and Sandra, and V. J. Neale.

On last Friday evening, Mrs. Robert Moe entertained with a miscellaneous shower for Miss Case. During the evening the guests played games.

A bridal arrangement centering the refreshment table featured a large angel food cake centered with a doll and iced to represent the bridal gown. Two small pastel cakes with miniature dolls represented the bridesmaids, holding the bride's train.

Guests at this shower included Miss Case's grandmother, Mrs. Carl Case, of Sumner, Ill., and her cousin, Miss Carol Mikels, of Alney, Ill., here for the wedding. From Sequim came Mmes. Gary Edwards, W. Merton Fiddler and George McComb, and from Port Angeles, Mmes. Forrest Case, French, George W. Smith, Elmer Smith and Sandra.

The Brelsfords plan to fly to England, leaving here Monday, to visit his family.

Th party cake carried out the flight theme, shaped like a stratocruiser in shades of blue and gray. A red and white decorated umbrella centered the gift table.

During the evening guests played games and the honored guest opened her gifts.

Those attending included Miss Ruby Knudson and Mmes. Lucy Smock, Walter Baker, Shirley Shortley, A. C. Ramsdell, D. B. Patterson, George Tradewell, Ronald Buehler, Frank Webster, Eldon Anderson, William Andersen, John Lindstrom, and from Sequim, Mrs. Robert Littlejohn and Mrs. Fred Beale.

Treasurer Says Money Can't Buy Riches of U.S.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest, treasurer of the United States, in Louisville for a speech, said she gets many suggestions about the nation's money.

One man told her he was tired of the huge national debt. Why not, he asked, just print currency on one side and sell the other side for advertising?

Another person wondered why women's portraits do not appear on currency. Mrs. Priest said dollar bills once had a picture of George Washington on one side and his wife Martha on the other.

But this was discontinued, the treasurer deadpanned, because "you shouldn't let money come between a man and his wife."

ADDED ATTRACTION

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Writer Perry Covent submitted an idea for a magazine article, "I Survived Three Air Crashes." The next day he flew to nearby Ensenada, Mexico, crashed, and lay in a coma for a week. Released from the hospital after 14 weeks, Covent wrote to the magazine again. This time his story was: "I survived Four Air Crashes."

A recent study indicated that most Indiana farmers do not cultivate a crop of corn more than twice, some of them only once.

BARBERING BOBBY-SOXER—It was shear ambition and environment—that drove pretty Joan Matteo into the barbering business. The 19-year-old cutup of Rochester, Pa., learned the tonsorial trade from her father on weekends and evenings, when she wasn't working as a s[illegible]ry. Trimming heads was a natural for Joan, whose father [illegible] barber, mother is a beautician. They operate both businesses at home. So Joan is right at home helping her father. Beef in Spotlight As Week's Best Buy; Pork, Lamb Up

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Skyrocketing prices of pork and lamb put beef in the spotlight again as the week's best buy for thrifty eating.

Almost everywhere you'll find beef featured prominently on super-markets' lists of week-end specials.

While beef prices are generally about the same as last week, prices of pork and lamb are sharply higher. Prices quoted by one major food chain for center cut pork chops are up as much as 10 cents a pound in some cities; roast leg of lamb is up 2 to 6 cents a pound.

Frying chickens are up a little from last week in some cities, down in others.

To round out summer menus, the budget-conscious housewive can select golden corn from Florida (one big chain is offering five ears for 25 cents), or new crop potatoes from Virginia, the Carolinas or California.

Vegetables tagged as "outstanding boys" by U. S. Department of Agriculture food specialists include beans, cabbage, peppers, beets, radishes, green onions and green or yellow squash.

Salad greens listed as plentiful and cheap include iceberg, "big Boston" and romaine lettuce, endive, and escarole. Other vegetable bargains this week: cucumbers, cauliflower, asparagus and peas.

Word of Advice To Wives of Pastors

KITCHENER, Ont., June 23 (AP)—A writer of religious novels says pastors' wives should try to be attractive—but not too attractive.

Miss Grace Irwin observed in a talk here:

"It is suspected that some Christans may resent an attractive minister's wife."

She had further advice:

A minster's wife must be the most adaptable person in the world. She must be ready to change her role according to the size of her husband's congregation.

"A minister's wife's first function is to complement her husband. Often a charming, capable woman can make an otherwise dull, stodgy wearer of the collar achieve much in his parish."

New Zealand Cashes In On Trees; Only Scrub Pine in U. S.

PORTLAND (AP) — New Zealand is cashing in on trees that are only scrub pine in this country, Carlton W. Pollard of Auckland, N. Z., said Wednesday.

Pollard said seed from Monterey (Calif.) pine was taken to New Zealand about 40 years ago.

There it grows into trees that can be cut into excellent lumber in 15 years and "logs from which to make plywood in 20 years," he said at a national meeting of plywood distributors.

He displayed a log cross-section a foot across. He said it was from a tree nine years old. He added that some grew to 150 feet in height and 9 feet in diameter in 30 years. He did not give an explanation for the rapid growth.

Finance Committee Takes Steps To Float Bond Issue

OLYMPIA (AP) — The State Finance Committee Wednesday took steps to float a 30 million dollar bond issue authorized by the 1955 Legislature for school construction.

The bonds will be repaid with proceeds of an additional one cent a package tax on cigarettes.

A new plan to save the state an estimated 2½ million dollars in interest payments and other costs will be followed in floating the bond issue.

Since the cigarette tax was put into effect May 1, it already is beginning to build up a fund for school construction. That money will be used up before the bonds are sold.

Then the bonds will be sold to various state funds with a surplus as the money is required. They would pay 3 per cent interest.

Ernest Minor, secretary of the finance committee who proposed the interest-saving plan, said the sale of the first batch of bonds probably could be delayed a year or two until the school building needs exceed the income from the cigarette tax.

Other savings would be made through elimination of advertising, traveling and other costs entailed in any sale of bonds on the open market. And, he added, what interest that is paid will be paid to other state funds rather than to private investment bankers.

10,000 Housing Units For Old People Voted By House Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Banking Committee Thursday voted to add 10,000 housing units for old people to the public housing program sought by President Eisenhower.

The congressmen then sent to the House, by a 19-3 vote, the bill to continue government housing activities. The measure includes authorizing another four billion dollars worth of Federal Housing ity.

The committee action marked formal approval of its decision Wednesday in favor of Eisenhower's plan for 35,000 federally-subsidized low rent housing units in each of the next two years. Shelved was the Senate-passed provision for 135,000 units a year for four years.

But the House group tacked on an authorization of 10,000 units a year especially for old people over the next two years.

Committee aides said this public housing would be for single persons 65 years or older, or for families where the head of the family is 65 or older. They said the same type of income requirements for these persons would be needed as for those getting into existing public housing projects.

Plan Bell Tower In Taft Memory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plans to erect a million-dollar bell tower or carillon on the Capitol grounds as a memorial to the late Republican Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio were announced Thursday.

President Eisenhower and former President Hoover wrote congress urging that the carillon be accepted as a gift and that its erection on the Capitol grounds be authorized.

Senate minority leader Knowland (R-Calif) introduced legislation to carry out this request. It would be the first such memorial erected on the grounds.

The tower, to be paid for by contributions raised by the Robert A. Taft Memorial Foundation, would be 100 feet high, 32 feet wide and 11 feet thick. It would have 25 bells.

The total number of immigrants to the United States before 1927 has been estimated at more than 37 million.

Fabulous American Who Has Become Legend In Art World To Celebrate 90th Birthday

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — A fabulous American named Bernard Berenson celebrates his 90th birthday Sunday.

Tiny and fragile, white-bearded and elegant, Berenson is an intimate of kings, a living legend and the world's greatest authority on paintings of the Italian Renaissance.

On his advice were built some of America's greatest collections. Hundreds of Americans visit his villa I Tatti just outside of Florence to savor his wit and wisdom—and to see how steadfastly American he has remained after 65 years in Italy.

TALKS OF YOUTH

His conversation is peppered with references to "the way we do things in America." He talks of his youth in Boston and the Harvard class of 1887.

"Because I am an American," he says, "I am a European."

A paradox? No, replies "B.B." Only an American can see Europe as a whole and not as single, nationalistic states.

"I am not like some Americans who become patridiotic—that word I coined—about some little part of Europe. They develop an extreme passion for some little spot and can see no other. Of course, I love America but I love it as a European and as an American. Because I am both, I love all of Europe."

What of postwar writers and painters?

MODERN MOTTO

"Inspiration through dissipation seems to be the modern motto. I don't like it."

Berenson himself is a devotee of moderation. Ticking off writers, artists and actors he has met in recent years, he went on:

"They all seem to think that they must find their inspiration through lechery. I see no need for it and certainly their work shows it. It's not for the best."

For present-day artists he has even less use:

"A doctor studies for nine years, a lawyer for five, all professions—and some we never even considered as professions—require time spent in learning—except artists. Men now seem to think that all they need to do is slap a brushful of paint across a canvas, give it a fanciful title, and run to a dealer to sell it. That is not art. Where is the technique?"

ART TREASURES

Here in his beautiful 40-room house, surrounded by devoted friends and servants and a collection of art treasures, Berenson lives like a 19th century gentleman with a 20th century outlook.

He works daily on a new edition of his "Italian Painters of the Renaissance" and maintains a lively interest in world events. He corresponds with friends all over the world. His visitors range from young students to the less accessible of the world's great.

Born in Lithuania, Berenson went to the United States as a boy. A group of Bostonians contributed $750 to send him to Europe for a year after graduation from college. He has been in this art-loving land ever since, in the process amassing a comfortable fortune first as an art buyer and for years after as chief adviser to the late Lord Duveen, the dealer who assembled most big private American collections before World War II.

Italian friends hid him from the Nazis throughout the war.

He plans to leave his estate and library to Harvard University, to be used for the study of Mediterranean art.

"I should like to think," he says, "that after I am gone, students can come to I Tatti as they did to the Medieval cloisters, to study to escape for a while from the cares and clatter of the world, to learn of the arts and to contemplate beauty."

Atomic Scientists Say U. S. May Have New, Cheaper Bomb

CHICAGO (AP) — Members of the Atomic Scientists of Chicago say the United States may possess a new, cheaper and more powerful bomb than the one recently tested in Nevada.

The ASC a group describing itself as an organization of scientists concerned with the impact of science on public affairs, released the statement yesterday.

"Scientists have suggested," it read, "that the hydrogen bomb detonated in the Pacific in March of 1954 was actually a new device—a hydrogen-uranium bomb yielding thousands of times the radioactivity produced by the atomic bombs tested in Nevada, or by simple hydrogen bombs."

A speech made at the University of Chicago June 3 by Dr. Willard F. Libby of the Atomic Energy Commission, the statement said, "was the first major speech to give sufficient information supporting this hypothesis."

The statement said Libby indicated that "ordinary, cheap uranium" was the major explosive content of the Pacific bomb and "the significance of this is held to be enormous."

"To physicists it means that Russia or any other country able to make ordinary atomic bombs can with little effort create superweapons of the megaton (million ton) class," it added.

State Senator To Be Among 12 Farmers To Visit Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Selection of State Sen. Asa B. Clark of Pullman, Wash., as one of 12 United States farmers and agricultural experts to visit Russia this summer was announced Wednesday.

A second Pacific Northwest man named by the Department of Agriculture is J. M. Kleiner of Nampa, Idaho., a farmer, packer and distributor of agricultural products, who has interests in both Portland and Salem, Ore.

Clark is a Southeastern Washington wheat farmer and a longtime Republican member of the Washington State Legislature.

The group will visit Russia under an exchange plan which will bring a Russian group to the United States. The idea came from a Des Moines Register and Tribune editorial suggestion that Russian farmers should be given a chance to see how Iowa corn and hogs grow. It met with acceptance in the Kremlin. An Iowa congressman said six Iowans have been named to the group.

Kleiner is a native of Russia who came to the United States in 1915 with $2.39 in his pocket and now owns several creamery and poultry plants as well as a farm.

Kleiner owns the Columbia Produce Co. in Portland and the American Poultry and Provision Co. at Salem in addition to his Idaho holdings.

He landed in Seattle at the age of 23 and worked for a creamery at Spokane for a time on his climb up the economic ladder. He visited Russia with his family twice before World War II.

District Attorney's Investigator Revealed as Killer

LA JARA, Colo. (AP) — A district attorney's investigator who committed suicide two days after his wife was killed has been identified by Conejos County officials as the slayer of 33-year-old Mrs. Virginia Armijo.

Only hours before an inquest in her death, Deputy Prosecutor Gordon Rowe said Jerry Armijo, 32, killed his wife early Saturday and later took his own life in remorse.

Armijo had maintained his wife was shot down by unknown assailants as the couple stood near their home in this southern Colorado community.

The investigator was found fatally wounded in the bedroom of his home early Monday. Rowe said he had shot himself in the head and left a note. Its contents were not revealed.

Rowe said testimony from witnesses and neighbors led to his official declaration of murder and suicide.

Statue's Head Is Churchill But Body Is War Internee's

LONDON (AP) — That's the former Prime Minister's head on London's new statue of Sir Winston Churchill but the body belongs to a man interned as pro-German during both world wars.

Gerald Hamilton, 67, and also an author, disclosed today that he was the stand-in model for the bigger-than-life, seated bronze of the 80-year-old statesman unveiled in London's Guildhall yesterday.

"I must say the situation did strike me as a little strange," Hamilton told reporters. "But I was only the body. The statue is me only from the head down."

The model explained he has roughly the same measurements as Churchill, and even the famous stoop. Since the former Prime Minister's time was precious and his patience on the short side, sculptor Oscar Nemon asked Hamilton to pose for the 60-odd sittings in which he worked on the body.

Hamilton was interned in World War I as a friend of Sir Roger Casement, the Irishman hanged for dealing with the Germans in the interests of Irish independence. The government put Hamilton under wraps again in 1941 for trying to organize a separate peace with the Germans.

"I'm not a Fascist or a Nazi," he said. "I just thought it was better to deal with the Germans than the Russians—and I still think I was right."

Churchill saw the statue at the Guildhall ceremony yesterday. He liked it, but commented on the stand-in: "Couldn't they pick anyone else?"

Jackson, Hinshaw Endorse Proposal On Nuclear Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U. S. proposal that the United Nations make its own evaluation of possible adverse effects from nuclear weapons tests won bipartisan backing in Congress Thursday.

Sen. Jackson (D-Wash) and Rep. Hinshaw (R-Calif), members of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, both endorsed the proposal made Tuesday by Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., this country's chief U. N. delegate.

Lodge said at the U. N. 10th anniversary meeting in San Francisco such an evaluation should be made "so that all nations can be satisfied that humanity is not endangered by these tests."

Jackson and Hinshaw in separate interviews voiced the opinion that competent scientists of any nation would back the expressed view of American atomic officials that the human race is not endangered by radiation from atomic tests.

But the senator said a U. N. investigation would "put the stamp of impartiality on it" and avoid the implication of a "self-serving declaration" raised by U.S. findings.

In addition, Jackson said he believed a U. N. report would counteract any propaganda advantage Russia might have gained by suggesting a ban on the atomic tests.

Quartet Sought In Italy Not Wanted By New York Police

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City police say four men and a girl sought in Italy are not wanted here in connection with the $305,243 holdup of the Woodside, Queens, branch of the Chase Manhattan Bank last April 6.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Thomas P. Cullen of Queens said yesterday he had become interested in at least some members of the group because of "certain information and rumors."

They have been investigated, he added, and "we have come to the conclusion that they are practically cleared of suspicion."

Cullen, who did not name the individuals, said one man is a respected Queens businessman, another is a New York City civil servant and a third is a federal employe.

Cullen told newsmen that he knows little about the fourth man or the girl, who might have joined the others in Canada or on board a ship.

Deputy Police Commissioner Richard A Dougherty said twice yesterday in response to queries that the Police Department had made no request to any authorities about the five in Italy. Three of them originated from New York City.

Word came from Rome that police had spread a net throughout Italy for the five in connection with the Queens holdup—the biggest cash haul in a bank robbery in U.S. history.

In Italy the five were identified as:

Giuseppe Michael de Tacco, also known as John di Tacco, 37, New York.

John Timothy O'Connell, 35, New York.

Daniel William MacGuire, 28, New York.

Peter Jerome Kirdam, 34, Manchester, England.

Janette Forest, 27, Montreal, Canada.

Scientist Planning Giant Marine Trap For Sea Creatures

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) —Scientists here are planning a giant marine trap to snare a monster from the ocean depths of Cook Strait.

They do not know exactly what they will catch.

"The possibilities are fascinating," says Prof. L. R. Richardson, head of the zoology department at Victoria University College, Wellington.

"Sworn statements by experienced mariners indicate that there are at least four types of giant ocean creatures still unknown to man. Some people call them sea serpents."

There are reports, going back to the 1870s of occasional strandings along the shores of Cook Strait of giant squid, fearsome creatures with plate-sized eyes, bodies 10 feet across with 10 tentacles up to 25 feet long.

With echo soundings taken a few years ago, the probable home of these giant squid was charted. This is a 6,000-foot-deep canyon connecting the Palliser Bay end of the strait with the Pacific Ocean.

Cook Strait is the turbulent stretch of water between the north and south islands of New Zealand.

'State' Feud Ends Quickly in Maryland

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) A short-lived and somewhat confusing feud between Boys' State and Girls' State ended yesterday when the girls agreed to allow seven Negro boys to bring Negro dates to tomorrow night's joint inaugural ball.

Earle R. Poorbaugh, Boys' State director, said the plan would be "satisfactory" with the boys, who had voted unanimously to boycott the affair if their Negro delegates were not allowed to dance.

The boys' action came after the Boys' State director reported the girls had decided against inviting the Negroes, although the girls' head said her group had not even issued an invitation to Boys' State for the dance.

Boys' and Girls' States, formed of student representatives from all over Maryland, hold mock legislative sessions at Maryland's capital here each year.

Publicity Memos Survive Theoretical Bomb Disaster

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

EMERGENCY PRESS HEADQUARTERS, Operation (not very) Alert—(NEA)—Everybody here wanted to take the simulated H-bomb attack on 54 American cities seriously, but somehow it just didn't come off.

In a huge, factory-type structure that had served as a temporary government office building in World War II, 150 newsmen assembled to report on how the government would function in case Washington was knocked out and all the big shots evacuated.

Murray Snyder, assistant press secretary at the White House, was in charge with other information specialists from the Departments of State, Defense, Agriculture, Post Office and so on. The only trouble was there wasn't any news, much, to give out.

Nevertheless Snyder went into his act and called his first press conference, gravely, right after the alert was sounded.

HE ANNOUNCED THAT the President had left Washington. Secretary of Defense Wilson had taken off in a helicopter. Mrs. Hobby had arrived at a relocation center—wherever that was.

But then the questions started raining down on Snyder's head. Could it be assumed that the U.S. Strategic Air Command had simulated a retaliatory attack? It would be comforting to know.

Snyder allowed as how nothing could be assumed till he announced it.

In that case, asked a reporter, could Mr. Snyder simulate a question to the Department of Defense and ask them if they were going to simulate a retaliatory attack on the enemy?

Snyder said he would try. Four hours later he got back the answer from some unidentified source that "retaliation was not a part of this exercise." Also, that even if there was retaliation, the reporters wouldn't be told about it.

WHO THE ENEMY WAS that had attacked never was identified.

At 1:30 Snyder announced that the President would broadcast for one minute at 3:00. The reporters went to lunch in the cafeteria provided in the basement.

When they came back it was discovered there was no radio or TV receiver in the place. So it was a couple of hours before the press headquarters found out what the President said.

It was several hours after New York was hit before the press headquarters heard about it. It developed that this wasn't the information headquarters after all. That was some place else.

"I'm wondering what I'm doing here," commented one veteran White House reporter. "We're the last to learn anything."

The news pool of 12 reporters accompanying the President was, in the meantime, doing much better. It relayed to press headquarters such illuminating bulletins as this one by Mr. Snyder:

"THE PRESIDENT HAS LEFT the place where he has been for his own headquarters, with his staff. His relocation site has been moved."

Mimeographed handouts began appearing. There were 16 in the first eight hours. One of them, from Department of Defense, said that Army research engineers had developed a new aerial tramway for landing supplies from ship to shore.

This was a help. It showed that even if the government was bombed out, it could still issue handouts.

The climax came at 7:00 p.m. when Gov. Val Peterson, the Civil Defense administrator, flew in and announced that the theoretical casualties would be in the millions and that exercise was a success, though results were negative.

A bulletin handout from Mrs. Hobby announced that "it had been a very stimulating exercise."

Sabin Criticism Of Vaccine Hit By Basil O'Connor

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The head of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, answering critics of the Salk vaccine, said Thursday anyone seeking to prevent its use "for other than unanswerable scientific reasons would be acting neither as a scientist or a humanitarian."

Basil O'Connor, president of the Foundation, said at a news conference that criticism of the Salk vaccine program before a congressional group in Washington by Dr. Albert B. Sabin was "old stuff."

"He's been using it for years," O'Connor said. "He used it in an attempt to stop the field trials of the Salk vaccine."

Sabin recommended at a hearing before a House investigating subcommittee that Salk inoculations be suspended and the manufacture of the vaccine discontinued. Sabin said a less dangerous preparation could be perfected.

"The Salk vaccine is safe and effective and will protect children from paralytic polio to the extent of 60 to 90 per cent," O'Connor said.

The Foundation president said 7,675,000 children in the United States, Canada and Denmark have received the Salk vaccine with "no untoward results."

"There could be no better proof of its safety than this," O'Connor said.

"No vaccine in the history of the world has ever had such a test for safety."

Boy Dies During Storm From Fright

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — A 10-year-old boy collapsed and died in a mid-city park Wednesday evening as lightning flashed nearby during a thunderstorm.

Isaac A. Thornton, New Castle County deputy coroner, said Lawrence Nichols apparently was "scared to death" by the brief but furious storm. He issued a certificate of accidental death due to shock after an autopsy disclosed no marks on the boy's body nor any other evidence of physical harm.

Young Nichols was returning with four companions from a public swimming pool when the storm caught them in the park.

Federal Grand Jury Exonerates 2 Men In Bank Robbery

SEATTLE (AP) — A federal grand jury Wednesday exonerated two men accused of plotting the 1953 robbery of the Magnolia State Bank here.

The jury held there was insufficient evidence to indict Mark Henry Russell, 20, of Seattle, and George E. Johns, 26, of Everett.

Russell and Johns were arrested by FBI agents last April 20 and charged with planning the $5,477 robbery of the Magnolia bank on Aug. 7, 1953.

The preliminary charge read at a U.S. commissioner's hearing did not say what part they were supposed to have played in the robbery but charged that in April 1952 they conspired to perform the robbery. They were released on $10,000 bond each after the hearing.

After the jury refused to indict Wednesday, Judge John C. Bowen ordered the charges dismissed and the bonds refunded.

The Magnolia bank was robbed by an armed man who forced six employes to lie on the floor while he took the money.

Russell was a soldier home on furlough at the time.

Visitors Inspect Salvage Operations Inside Olympic National Park

Last weekend a group from Olympic Park Associates Inc. visited principal road ends and salvage operations on the west side of Olympic National Park. Guiding them were Park Supt. Fred J. Overly and Asst. Supt. Jerry B. House.

In the group were Leo Gallagher, Tacoma; Mrs. Pauline Dyer, Auburn; Arthur Winder, Seattle; Mr. and Mrs. John Osseward and two children, Seattle; Prof. and Mrs. Ontahank, University of Oregon.

The superintendent reported they started from Quinault Hotel at 8 a.m. Saturday and visited the following that day:

QUINAULT VALLEY: To Graves Creek Flat on East Fork, noting down timber not yet salvaged. Saw where Vernon O. Wilson has removed salvage timber in two places on East Fork.

Crossed new bridge constructed by loggers just below Quinault forks as part of a salvage agreement. Bridge connects East and North Fork roads, thus connecting them for the first time above U. S. Highway 101 below Lake Quinault, avoiding a long detour to go from one fork to the other.

Saw general location where Olson and Osborn are salvaging park timber between Quinault forks above bridge.

QUEETS VALLEY: Saw two small salvage removals by Vernon O. Wilson, not completed.

HOH VALLEY: No salvage operations there now. Went to end of road, which extends five miles inside park. (The Hoh Valley road above U. S. 101 is Jefferson County road. Most of the private and some of the state timberland on this road outside the park boundary is clear cut.)

Did not visit Bogachiel or Calawah valleys above U. S. 101. No roads inside the park there, and no salvage.

Visited park's new public campground at Kalaloch, also park concessioner Becker's new resort additions, both on bluff in ocean strip.

Visited big cedar tree three miles south of Ruby Beach, accessible via one quarter mile logging road going east from U. S. 101 in ocean strip.

Then direct to Lake Crescent Lodge, arriving 7 p.m., for overnight stop.

SUNDAY TRIP

On next day June 19, Supt. Overly and Dr. Harry L. Lydiard of Port Angeles accompanied the group from 8:30 a.m. until they disbanded at 4 p.m. on Hurricane Ridge.

Enroute they viewed salvage removal of danger trees on Lake Crescent highway. They visited two completed salvage operations in the Soleduck Valley accessible to but invisible from the Sol Duc Hot Springs road in the park.

One is in an older blowdown south of the Soleduck North Fork crossing, completed last year. The other, finished this year, is north of the North Fork crossing.

SALVAGE CRITICS

Olympic Park Associates are generally hostile to the inauguration of salvage operations in national parks.

Their viewpoint is expressed in a letter from John Osseward published in the June 3 Port Angeles Evening News, answering a May 18 editorial upholding the salvage as a safeguard against fire and insect devastations of the dense forest.

Supt. Overly says the salvage operations also have enabled Olympic National Park to acquire by exchange private lands in the park appraised at $830,000.

The Park Service stopped salvage exchanges for land in the park in May. Any salvages now are limited to cash sales, with revenue going into the U. S. treasury. Salvage exchanges previously contracted will finish this fall. The only current cash sale salvage operations concern timber removed from roadways in the park.

Texas Publisher Dies; Noted For Philanthropies

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Amon G. Carter, who rose from poverty to become the colorful multimillionaire publisher of the Fort Worth Star - Telegram, one of the major newspapers of the United States, died last night at 75.

He started as a dishwasher and waiter in a Bowie, Tex., boarding house—and was always proud of it.

From there he traveled to the Indian territory of Oklahoma to sell gilt-framed pictures, then to San Francisco as an advertising man, later to Fort Worth as head of his own advertising company. Then he joined in organization of the newspaper.

In the 1930s, he became a very wealthy oil man and turned his great fortune into philanthropy.

He suffered three heart attacks in 1953, but gained strength, took two cruises and conducted some business, but this year decreased his activities to conserve his strength.

In 1952, he relinquished the presidency to his son Amon Jr., but continued as chairman of the board and publisher of Carter publications.

He was a booster of Texas, particularly Fort Worth and west Texas. He was a leader in bringing airplane, motors and other plants to the Fort Worth area. His efforts led the the building of the large new international airport here, and grateful citizens named the field and administration buildings for him.

Olympic National Park in July Issue National Geographic

"In the Gardens of the Olympus" is the title of a story, in words and pictures, of the Olympic National Park in the July issue of the National Geographic Magazine.

The story and pictures are by Paul A. Zahl, who with his wife and two children Eda, 6, and Paul 3, spent three months here in the summer of 1954. They lived in a log cabin at the Elwha National Park ranger station and visited many sections of the park.

The story has a map and 50 illustrations, 45 in natural colors.

Many of the colored pictures were taken on Hurricane Ridge when alpine flowers were in bloom. Other are of scenes in the rain forest of the Hoh Valley.

Other scenes are in Enchanted Valley, on Mount Olympus, and the coastal strip. One picture is of a large elk herd.

One of the colored picture is of the world's largest cedar tree. This big tree, 66 feet in girth, is half a mile from the Pacific in the park's western coastal strip.

The map of the park is a double page one. A double page colored picture of a scene at Ruby Beach is among the most striking illustrations in the group.

Pictures of mountain flowers, taken on Hurricane Ridge, are numerous. One picture, taken July 4, 1954, on Hurricane Ridge, shows deep snow drifts at the road side.

The National Geographic Magazine, official publication of the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C., has a world-wide circulation among members of the society.
