Commercial Club Considers a Number of Important Subjects Upon Which Action Will Soon Be Taken.

The reorganized Commercial Club held its second meeting Tuesday afternoon, Vice President D. W. Higgins, in the absence of Mr. Lauridsen presiding.

In the line of advertising, a number of ideas were brought forth, but chief discussion centered about a proposition, which had been submitted by a stranger, to get out a birds-eye view map, about 20x30 inches, in the shape of a folder. It was said on the one hand that high-class advertising was the necessary thing; on the other that the advisability of the expenditure of $500 for this one item was very different in our town, where property sold for hundreds, than in Seattle, where the yearly sales run up well into the millions. While Seattle made a splendid showing on the map, our little city could not, unless conditions were grossly exaggerated. The city might better be presented in individual views of business blocks, industrial plants, homes, ranches, etc., given in connection with descriptive matter of our climate, resources, and dairying and other industries.

Mr. Higgins believed that the home newspapers should receive all the aid and encouragement possible; not a dollar should be spent outside for printed matter; he was ready to contribute liberally to any advertising matter, but he hadn't a dime for the printing establishments of other cities. He cited the work of the newspapers in the upbuilding of Victoria and Vancouver, where he, as publisher, had years of personal experience, and in our own cities of Seattle, Tacoma, etc. He said the newspapers of a town had more to do with the building up of a town than any other one thing; that we could have creditable dailies here if we patronized them, but we must first demonstrate by our patronage of the weekly papers that it would be possible for them to establish dailies.

Col Peter spoke along the same line, saying he believed the home newspapers should do the printing for the home Commercial Club. Mr. Levy believed a map of the townsite to be a necessity, (not a birds-eye map, but a reproduction of the blue print map of the city) and that it should be printed in connection with a terse summary of all those points in which a homeseeker or investor would be interested. His idea met with general favor and he was forced to accept a place on the publicity committee. Mr. Merritt also said he absolutely refused to have anything to do with an outside scheme; he believed in keeping money in circulation at home where it was needed. Mr. Higgins suggested the publication of articles descriptive of our city and county and their many advantages in the Angeles papers, articles to be prepared by members of the Club, or worked up from their suggestions, the Club purchasing a sufficient number of copies each week to meet the requirements of its members. Action on the matter was finally taken by instructing the publicity committee and members of the press to ascertain what could be done and a proposion framed up for submission to the Club.

The matter of extending assistance to Mr. Gregory in the opening of a trail to his mine, located on Little river, back of Mt. Angeles, was bro't up and favorably commented on by the members present. Mr. Gregory has been working, more or less, for nine years on his present proposition, having blasted a tunnel for a considerable depth into the base of the mountain, the work being thru rock as hard as granite. During all this time he has had to carry supplies in on his back. While he has always had good assays, it is only lately that he has reached a solid vein of ore of which there seems to be an unlimited quantity. Assays made both in Seattle and Denver are exactly the same, the ore being one-third zinc, and yielding $26 in copper to the ton. Ten experts have, at various times, inspected the mine; an expert here from British Columbia a few days ago said it was the second mine he had ever seen where all conditions were favorable. The ore could be mined from a tunnel instead of a shaft, giving a dry mine and saving the expense of pumping. Being but a few miles from the water front at Angeles, with a low grade all the way, rails could easily be laid for shipment.

The committee on reorganization is making good progress, C. F. Merritt reporting a considerable list of signed members who have agreed to join in advancing the city's interests. A large membership is most desirable, not only on account of the effectiveness of united effort, but because the contribution of each member of one dollar per month will in the aggregate make a substantial sum to be used in carrying out the various lines of work that may be planned.

The project for a county fair was brought up by Col. W. H. Peter, who believed it should be conducted along the lines familiar in the East, embracing all lines of husbandry, and should be held at the ball park. A further report is to be received on the subject on Tuesday, October 29th.

CHARITY ENTERTAINMENT

Was Very Successful Affair. Proceeds, Amounting to $50, Divided Among Several Parties.

The Charity Entertainment and dance given under the auspices of Mrs. T. S. Brophy Friday evening was well attended and greatly appreciated by the audience. The first number on the program was a character song, "In Old New York," sung by the Misses Atheline Fisher and Angeline Ritchie, and illustrated by seven of the High School girls. The next, a solo, "Kiss, Kiss, Kiss," was by Miss Cecil Smith, who appeared dressed as a little Irish boy. The piece was well rendered for one so young, the audience showing appreciation by a hearty encore. A second illustrated song, "Molly, My Irish Molly," sung by Miss Marie Allen, dressed as a boy, and Miss Ruth Gould as "Molly," was received with much applause and laughter. Next was a song and tableau, sung by Miss Lucille Foster, Miss Donohue and Mr. Davis appearing in the background, obviously to show us how love-making should be carried on properly by the silvery light of the moon. Geo. Parks favored the audience with one of those exquisite violin solos, of which Angeles people can never tire. The Angeles Orchestra played several popular pieces; then followed a series of tableaux, which ended the program for the evening, after which the young people enjoyed a dance, music being rendered by the orchestra.

The committee chosen by Mrs. Brophy to apportionate the prodeeds made the following report: Amount taken in, $87.50; expenses, $37.68; balance, $50.92, divided as follows: To Mrs. Bogue, who was recently burned out, $20; Laidies Aid Congregational Church, $10; Civic Club, $10; Elwha Jimmie, $10. The committee was Mrs. Brophy, Mrs. John Trumbull and Mrs. A. G. Frye.

$175,000 HOTEL AT HOT SPRINGS

WILL BE BUILT THIS WINTER

Roads to Built from Port Crescent to Lake and from Lake to Springs; New Steamer for the Lake.

The Soleduck Springs, in the heart of the Olympic Mountains, in what is declared by many to be one of the grandest scenic regions of the North Pacific Coast, is sold to a syndicate of capitalists headed by Michael Earles. The consideration is said to have been close to $50,000 and the property transferred includes 320 acres of land, all heavily timbered, besides the mineral springs. The Solduck Hot Springs Company was formed yesterday, with Michael Earles as president, C. J. Farmer secretary and John Trumbull and W. F. Delabarre as trustees, with the other two officers named.

Michael Earles says that "a hotel costing approximately $175,000 and and other improvements costing $75-000 more will be made at once and the property opened to the public by April 15. We propose to build and operate a steamboat on Lake Crescent and to operate a stage line between the lake and Port Crescent. Another stage line will be operated between the lake and the springs and we will build a road connecting the sdrings with the lake provided we can get some help from the County."

The waters of the springs are highly mineralized and it wants only the expenditure of money to make the place one the noted health resorts of the entire West. Tne scenery is as grand as any that can be found on the entire Pacific slope. The springs lie in the heart of the Olympics aud if that part of the state is made a national park, as it should be, the whole district will soon be known as one of the show spots of the continent."—Seattle Times.

Registration Closes Nov. 13th.

Attorney General Atkinson has written a lengthy opinion on the question of registration under the primary law, holding that the last day for registration closes six days before the day of the primary, or on November 13th.

INDEPENDENT OR NEW PARTY

Candidates for City Offices May Still Be Brought Forward by their Friends.

The last day for the filing of declarations of candidacy on any political ticket closed Saturday last. No more candidates of a political party can be received, but an independent candidate may declare his candidacy after November 3 and not later than December 1, as provided under the old law.

This opinion is based on the clause in the new direct primary law which reads:

"No names of candidates of any political party which is required to make nominations under this act shall be placed upon the official election ballot, unless such candidate shall have been chosen in accordance with this act, except in cases of vacancy occasioned by death, removal or resignation of any candidate so chosen, or arising otherwise, etc."

This states specifically that no candidates of any political party can file their declarations after November 19, but it in no way refers to the filing of declarations by independent candidates not earlier than thirty days prior to an election nor later than three days before.

As the new direct primary law has been interpretated by the attorney general in other instances where a question was raised over a conflicting of views as to whether or not the new law had bearing upon features in the old measure not represented in the latter one, it would seem that the old law would still hold good in the matter of declarations of candidacy independently of any political party—Olympiia News.

Olympia, Oct. 16.—Attorney General Atkinson has rendered an interesting opinion on features of the new primary law, holding that a candidate for office, if nominated by two parties, must elect under which ticket his name shall appear; that there is no reason why a candidate defeated at the primary should not be allowed to run on a convention ticket when nominated, and that candidates may be nominated by a new party on the day the primary election is held. The opinion is rendered at request of H. C. Beach, city attorney at Bellingham.

The Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern railway, on construction work near Abbotsford, has recently dismissed all Japanese in its employ, replacing them with Hindus. The reason given is that the Japanese have become too independent and refuse to obey orders with anything like promptness.

FARMERS' CONGRESS FAVORS RECIPROCITY

Oklahoma City. Okla., Oct. 22.—The first work of the National Farmers' Congress yesterday was the adoption of resolutions favoring reciprocity with foreign nations, thereby enlarging the market for American products; the prohibition of the dealing in futures in agricultural products; the improvement of all waterways and good roads. They oppose the indiscriminate free distribution of seeds by congress.

A resolution asking congress to extend the time of payment by the farmers who bid in the Kiowa and Comanche Indian lands was approved.

Congressman Charles R. Davis, of St. Peter, Minn., addressed the farmers on the promotion of secondary technical education by federal aid. Davis has already introduced a bill in congress for such purposes. He was followed by Prof. W. R. Hart, of the Massachusetts Agricultural college, of Amherst, Mass., and F. A. Cotton, state superintendent of public instruction of Indiana.

PERMANENT INJUNCTION

Court Restrains Pressmen From Breaking Contract.

Cincinnati, Oct. 22.—The temporary injunction against the inciting of a strike by the International Pressmen's Union for an eight hour day has been made permanent by United States Judge Thompson, who held that such action on the part of the union officers would be the breaking of a valid contract.

The injunction was sought by the United Typothetae of America and certain publishing concerns in New York, Chicago, St. Louis and Massachusetts, to prevent the defendants, officers and members of the pressmans' union, from inciting and carrying on a strike, which was in effect the breaking of a contract entered into last May and running until January, 1908. According to the contract, the pressmen were to have a nine hour day until the expiration of this contract, when the eight hour day was to go into effect, but the union had demanded the immediate acceptance of the eight hour day.

Clearing Tacoma Terminal Grounds

Tacoma, Oct. 22.—The terminal grounds purchased by the Union Pacific railroad on the tide flats are being cleared off in preparation for the incoming of the road. The property belonged to the St. Paul and Tacoma Lumber Company and was partially covered with buildings and lumber yards. The mill company has been given intimation by officials of the Union Pacific that the property will be wanted by the first of the year.

TREASURY TO ASSIST

CORTELYOU SAYS LEGITIMATE BUSINESS WILL GET HELP.

Government Will Use All Its Facilities to Aid Proper Business Interests ---- Speculators Must Get Out of the Banking Business.

New York, Oct. 23.—"All speculators and gamblers masquerading as bankers must be driven out of the banking business."

This positive statement was made by the head of one of the leading banks in the financial district, after a midnight conference with George B. Cortelyou, secretary of the treasury.

Secretary Cortelyou arrived from Washington soon after 10 o'clock and met Hamilton Fish, assistant treasurer, in charge of the subtreasury; J. P. Morgan, George F. Baker, president of the First National Bank; Frank H. Vanderlip, of the National City Bank; A. P. Hepburn, president of the Chase National Bank; George W. Perkins and several others.

After midnight Mr. Cortelyou issued the follownig statement:

"The treasury department will use all its facilities to assist in every proper way any leigtimate business interests, and its action will be prompt and thorough.

"The national banks of New York City are in an exceptionally strong condition. The general situation here seems to be well in hand, and is being looked after by many strong and influential men, sueh as those whose recent action in the clearing house received emphatic approval.

The movement for similar concert of action among the trust companies should have a helpful and far reaching effect. I shall spend the day in the subtreasury, and take any action necessary to help the situation."

After the conference between the bankers and Mr. Cortelyou, one of those in the conference made this statement:

"Such trouble as exists in various places today is due entirely to bad management by bad men. Some we have gotten rid of, and the rest are sure to go."

KNICKERBOCKER TRUST FORCED TO SUSPEND

New York, Oct. 23.—The Knickerbocker Trust Company will likely go into the hands of a receiver today. The directors late last night decided to apply to the courts to liquidate the company. Should they change their minds Attorney General Jackson, who has hurried here from Albany, will take the necessary steps.

The unfortunate company suspended payment shortly after noon to end a heart-breaking run on the main bank at No. 60 Broadway, and on its Fifth avenue, Harlem and Bronx branches The directors declared that the entire $8,000,000 cash reserve had been exhausted in paying depositors and settling with its clearing agents, the National Bank of Commerce.

The run was started by the announcement that the Knickerbocker had deposed Charles T. Barney as president, and that the National Bank of Commerce would no longer act for it in the New York Clearing house.

STATE ATTORNEY GENERAL FINED BY FEDERAL COURT

St. Paul, Oct. 22.—Attorney General Young, of Minnesota, was judged in contempt of court by Judge Lochren in the United States district court yesterday, and fined $100, which he refused to pay. An appeal to the United States supreme court will be taken in the form of an application for a writ of habeas corpus, as Mr. Young has been remanded to the custody of the United States marshal and the question of whether the United States court has the right to enjoin a state from enforcing its laws will thus be finally disposed of.

The question is whether an officer or servant of a sovereign state can be sued. It came up in the attempt to enforce the commodity freight rate law enacted by the last legislature.

Judge Lochren enjoined Attorney General Young from enforcing the law. Thereupon Attorney General Young brought mandamus proceedings in the court to compel the railroads to revise their rates according to the state law.

Hindus Help Farmers

Grand Forks, B. C., Oct. 18.—The Hindus in the Boundary district are proving a boon to the farmers of this valley, as potato diggers, as they are experts at this work. Farm help is difficult to get this year and if it were not for the numbers of Hindus found here this fall a great portion of the root crop would undoubtedly go to loss in the ground.

Trains for Riparia Branch

Lewiston, Idaho, Oct. 21.—By November 15, the O. R. & N. expects to have the Lewiston-Riparia branch ready to turn over to the operating department and it is the purpose of the road at that time to establish a passenger service from this point to Riparia, connecting there with its main line trains to Portland.

DID NOT GET MORE PAY

Law Granting Increased Salaries to State Officials Not Yet Effective.

Olympia, Oct. 21.—The state supreme court has decided that members of the state board of control cannot receive the $3,000 salary authorized by the last legislature, but must continue to serve for $2,000 a year until their terms expire. The decision will also probably prevent the fish commissioner, mine inspector and labor commissioner from receiving the increases in salary authorized by the last session.

The decision was in the action brought by J. H. Davis, of the board, for a writ of mandamus to compel the state auditor to issue salary warrants at the higher rate. The contention was that the new law, which doubled the duties of the members of the board, repealed the old law. Under this belief, Gov. Mead reappointed the old members of the board. The supreme court in its decision says:

"The intent of the constitution is plain and unmistakable and the whole act convinces us that it was not the intent of the legislature to create a new office or repeal the old law, but simply to amend the law with respect to the amount of salary and with respect to the added duties and powers. The case falls plainly within the inhibition of the constitution in relation to increasing the salary of public officers and the auditor was justified in refusing to issue the warrant. The writ is denied."

JAPAN TO DISCOURAGE FLOW OF EMIGRATION

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 21.—According to advices received by the steamer Epmress of China, the Japanese government will organize a bureau of emirgation and colonization.

Recent action of the government, resulting from protests on the Pacific coast, has forced into liquidation twenty-eight emirgation companies. The government raised the indemnity each company is compelled to furnish from $5,000 each to $25,000, which they were unable to furnish.

Another circumstance having to do with their failure is the refusal of the government to issue passports to Mexico and Peru. Emigration to Hawaii and Canada averages only about 1,000 per month, which is insignificant when divided among so many companies.

Many of the newspapers comment adversely on the new bureau, which they call a ladder on which to back down from Occidental prejudice. One paper attacks the statement accredited to Mr. Ishii while in the United States recently, that Japanese emigration would in the future be confined to Manchuria, Korea and Russian Siberia, saying that this territory does not offer sufficient outlet for the Japanese.

SUPREME COURT TAKES CHARGE OF MEAT CARE

Washington, Oct. 22.—The supreme court of the United States yesterday took jurisdiction of the meat packers' case, wherein the Armour, Swift, Morris and Cudahy packing companies were fined $15,000 for accepting a preferential rate from the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad on shipments of meat for export from Mississippi river points to the Atlantic seaboard. The case involves the application of the Elkins act to export shipments. The motion for a writ of certiorari was granted.

Large Bodies of Molybdenite

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 18.—The discovery of large bodies of molybdenite is reported on Queen Charlotte islands. Samples sent here are having their commercial value determined by the government assayer. The mineral very much resembles graphite.

PUNISH DISHONESTY

PRESIDENT REITERATES POLICY IN NASHVILLE SPEECH.

Sixteen Months More of Persistent Effort to Punish Successful Dishonesty---Turned Light Into Dark Places But Is Not Responsible for Revelations.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 23.—President Roosevelt, in his address at the Auditorium, said he did not believe his policies had any material effect in bringing about the present disturbance in the financial world. After paying a high tribute to Tennessee, he said in part:

"I have come down on this trip, friends, primarily in connection with the development of this country. I wish to see the great main artery of the Mississippi and its chief affluents made a navigable highway, open to all the people of the United States, as only waterways can be. I believe that developments will prove of immediate benefit to all the states adjacent to the Mississippi. I believe it will prove of ultimate benefit to all the states beyond the Mississippi, because I am convinced that in the long run, disregarding minor exceptions, [illegible] benefit any portion of the can republic, the benefit in the ffuses itself over the entire re- [illegible]

To Punish Dishonesty

ere has been trouble in the stock [illegible]t, in the high financial world, [illegible]g the past few months. The [illegible]ent has frequently been made [illegible]he policies for which I stand, [illegible]tive and executive, are responfor the trouble. Now, gentle- those policies of mine can be [illegible]ed up in one brief sentence. represent the effort to punish [illegible]ssful dishonesty. I doubt if policies have had any material [illegible] in bringing about the present [illegible]le, but if they have it will not in the slightest degree my de- [illegible]nation that for the remaining [illegible]n months of my term those poli- shall be persevered in unswerv- [illegible]. If to arouse that type of civic [illegible]ood in our nation it were neces- [illegible]o suffer any temporary commer- [illegible]epression, I should consider the [illegible]mall.

Only Unearthed Wrongs

[illegible] we have done has been to un- [illegible] the wrong done. It was not the [illegible]hat it was unearthed that did [illegible]mage. All I did was to turn [illegible]light. I am responsible for turning on the light, but I am not responsible for what the light showed.

"I will permit neither the demagogue on the one side nor the reactionary on the other to drive me away from the course of policy which I regard most vital for the well-being of this nation. And the thing most important to remember is that that policy has two sides.

"It would be an evil day for this nation, it would mean the beginning of the end of our nation's greatness, if we ever permitted in this republic to grow up a spirit which would discriminate against the honest man who achieves business success. There is nothing baser and meaner than the hatred of the man who prospers honestly, simply because he has prospered.

"I challenge the spirit of every good American when I say that the honest railroad man, the honest banker and the honest business man, the man who makes a fortune because his exceptional business ability enables him to render exceptional service to the community, shall receive the amplest protection and be safeguarded against all injustice.

"If ever there should be any temporary gusts of popular feeling that demand what is wrong, what is unrighteous, then the true servant of the people, the man who truly serves the interests of the people, is the man who disregards that temporary wish of the people to do evil.

"No man will stand more strongly than I will in the defense of property so long as it is honestly acquired and honestly used. I will stand against the poor man if he does wrong, just as I will stand against the rich man if he does wrong. I will stand against crimes of brutal violence, just as I stand against crimes of unscrupulous cunning.

Punishment Difficult

"It is a difficult matter to punish the crimes of unscrupulous cunnning committed by men of great wealth. It is a dicffiult matter to punish, as he should be punished, the man at the head of a great business concern, or at the head of a great rairload, who does wrong to the whole body politic by mismanagement of that property.

"It is difficult because as yet we hardly have the proper laws, and still more because the people themselves, through their representatives and personally, do not yet fully realize how serious the crimes are which are committed in this fashion."

"In other words, gentlemen, our whole movement is simply and solely to make the decalogue and the golden rule of some practical moment in the business of the community."

Passenger Agents Select Seattle

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 18.—The American Association of Traveling Passenger Agents, in thirty-fourth annual session at the Jamestown exposition, selected Seattle as the next place of meeting and selected M. C. Roche, of Portland, Or., president.

FISH THE WINNER

TEMPORARY VICTORY IN ILLINOIS CENTRAL FIGHT.

Adjournment of Stockholders Meeting to December 18 to Await Decision of Court Regarding Voting of Stock Tied Up By Injunction.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Stuyvesant Fish yesterday secured a postponement of the Illinois Central stockholders' meeting until December 18. The Harriman people agreed to the adjournment, although they had previously been anxious to push matters as rapidly as possible.

The decision to adjourn the meeting was the result of a conference held at 3 o'clock a. m., between William Cromwell, for Mr. Harriman, and Judge E. H. Farrar for Mr. Fish. The overtures came from Mr. Cromwell, who sought out the Fish people and declared that he wished to come to some sort of an agreement. He was informed by Judge Farrar that the only agreement that could be reached was to accept the terms of Mr. Fish, which would be adjournment to December 18, and a decision of the court to determine the right to vote of 286,718 shares of stock against which a temporary injunction was issued by Judge Ball a week ago. After an extended conference Mr. Cromwell assented.

The proxy committee has nearly finished its work. The total number of votes to be reported will be not far from 460,000. Of these Mr. Fish controls about 250,000 and Mr. Harriman about 210,000, and it was evident that Mr. Harriman is beaten unless he can bring into the contest some portion of the 286,731 shares now temporarily enjoined from voting.

Fish In High Spirits

Mr. Fish was evidently in the highest good humor. He declined to talk for publication, but said he had secured everything he wanted. Neither he nor his attorneys would make any statement as to the original propositions advanced by Mr. Cromwell, although they declared that they were different from the agreement finally signed.

Mr. Fish gave out a statement last night in which he claimed to have had a majority of from 30,000 to 50,000 when the count of proxies was abandoned. The statement further says:

"Our victory is most gratifiyng and real. The best we could have hoped for under Judge Ball's injunction or his order was to prevent an election of directors at this time. This has not only been accomplished, but we have also secured a definite adjournment until December 18. When, on Saturday, it became apparent to the Union Pacific party that our majority was so large that they could not win, even if they secured every remaining proxy, their tactics for prolonging the session of the stockholders meeting from day to day became apparent.

Says It Speaks for Itself

"Late Saturday night, realizing that the best interests of the Illinois Central railroad demanded that the present session should be closed, I authorized the making of an agreement between counsel, which speaks for itself From now on I shall pursue my quest for proxies with greater vigor, feeling sure of the support of the investing public who are interested in preserving the independence of the Illinois Central."

INDUSTRIAL PEACE FUND

Nobel Prize Only Nucleus for Total of $1,000,000.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Seth Low, of New York, the treasurer of the Industrial Peace Fund, has reported to the secretary of commerce and labor, Oscar Strauss, that contributions are being received to the fund. Mr. Strauss says the trustees hope that this fund will be increased by contributions from laborers as well as from capitalists. The fund is about $40,000 and it is hoped by the foundation that it will grow to at least a million, as the interest on this amount will be required to effectively carry out the purpose of the foundation.

Germany Negotiating for Aeroplane

Berlin, Oct. 21.—Although negotiations have been begun by the Wright Brothers, of Dayton, Ohio, with the German authorities with a view to the purchase by Germany of their aeroplane, it is not likely that any definite decision will be arrived at for some time, owing to the number of technical details involved. It is believed, however, that Germany has been given an option on the Wright invention, as the Dayton aeronauts admit that before coming here they withdrew their offer to the French government. They also state that they have never had any dealings with the British government regarding their machine.

Local Lumber Prices Drop

Tacoma, Oct. 21.—Lumber has declined in price until common dimension stuff can now be purchased from the mills in Tacoma at $13 and $14 a thousand, this being $3 and $4 below the figures quoted at the first of the year. The weakening of the lumber market has stimulated building in the city and the lumber mills making a specialty of local trade report business was never better. The decline in the lumber market is due to the falling off in the price of logs.

CONFERENCE CLOSED

HAGUE PEACE MEETING HOLDS LAST SESSION.

Thirteen Conventions Signed During the Sitting of the Conference, Most Important Being one for Peaceful Regulation of International Differences.

The Hague, Oct. 19.—The Hall of Knights presented an impressive spectacle at the closing session of the international peace conference.

The president, M. Nelidoff, of Russia, made a long speech, reviewing the results. There was unanimous acclamation of President Rosevelt for his initiative in convoking the conference and, in a new manifestation in favor of the further development of the principle of the world undertaking to regulate international relations, the delegates reiterated their approval of the president's course of action It is understood that the propaganda in favor of these ideas is to begin immediately after the adjournment of the conference and will continue until the meeting of the next conference. Joseph Choate, head of the American delegation, yesterday signed the final act of the peace conference and the conference adjourned.

Permanent Peace Court

The ninth plenary sitting of the peace conference Tuesday voted upon the question of the establishment of a permanent court. There were thirty-eight votes in favor of the project.

The report of Baron Guillaume, of Belgium, on the declaration of Count Tourielli, of Italy, regarding obligatory arbitration was adopted unanimously.

The next subject taken up was the proposal of Gen. Horace Porter on the subject of contractural debts. The proposal was aproved by thirty-nine votes.

During the sittings of the conference thirteen conventions have been signed as follows:

First—The peaceful regulation of international conflicts.

Second—Providing for an international prize court.

Third—Regulating the rights and duties of neutrals on land.

Fourth—Regulating the rights and duties of neutrals at sea.

Fifth—Covering the laying of submarine mines.

Sixth—Regulating the bombardment of towns from sea.

Seventh—In the matter of the collection of contractural debts.

Eighth—The tranformation of merchantmen into warships.

Ninth—Regarding the treatment of captured criminals.

Tenth—Covering the inviolability of fishing rights.

Eleventh—Inviolability of the postal service.

Twelfth—The application of the Geneva conference and the Red Cross to sea warfare.

Thirteenth—The laws and custom regulating sea warfare.

Declarations Also Made

In addition, the conference has concluded the following reolutions and declarations:

First—That balloons not be used for throwing explosives.

Second—A recommendation in favor of obligatory arbitration.

Third—A recommendation regarding the establishment of a court of arbitration.

Fourth—A recommendation concerning the limitation of armaments.

Fifth—The convocation of the third conference.

Sixth—The prohibition of unnecessarily cruel bullets in warfare.

Seventh—The cooperation of all countries in the building of the Palace of Peace.

It is asserted also that before the convocation of the third conference Germany, Austria, Hungary and Great Britain will insist, in view of the experience gained from this conference, that small states be excluded, but there is nothing to justify such a statement. Indeed, a majority of the delegates are of the opinion that it will be impossible to return again to an arbitrary division of countries as at the first conference.

Home Grown Walnuts on Market

Bellingham, Oct. 21.—City jobbers were surprised last week by the appearance of local English walnuts on the market. The walnuts were raised by E. Grandquist, of Everson, and are the first English walnuts grown in Washington and marketed in Bellingham. Grandquist brought in 500 pounds, picked from six trees. The nuts are selling at 17 cents a pound. Several farmers around Lynden have young English walnut groves and in a few years Bellingham will be well supplied by the local groves.

Travelling Dairy School

Pullman, Oct. 19.—Because the prices for dairy products in Washington are higher than they are anywhere else in the United States, and the consequent growth of the dairy industry in this state, the state college experiment station staff are conducting a series of "traveling dairy schools" for the purpose of informing farmers who are unable to attend the regular courses in dairying offered by the college.

LARGE WHEAT ACREAGE

State Grain Inspector Reports Several New Districts to Be Sown.

Tacoma, Oct. 19.—State Grain Inspector Arrasmith, who has just returned from Eastern Washington, says the conditions in the cereal districts here are ideal for the sowing of a large acreage of fall wheat. The heavy rains during harvest time have placed the summer fallowed land in prime order and the farmers are making ready to put in an enormous crop.

A feature of next season's crop, according to the grain inspector, will be the large acreage of wheat in the new districts. These include the Rattlesnake country in Klickitat and the southern portion of Yakima county, the northern and eastern portions of Benton county and parts of Franklin county. Farmers in these districts have been so successful in raising large crops of wheat this year that they feel encouraged to go in heavier the coming season.

Threshing is now over and the farmers are marketing their grain. An average of from eighty to ninety cars are arriving here daily.

LABOR COUNCIL GOES INTO COAL MINING

Seattle, Oct. 18.—At the meeting in the Labor Temple to consider the coal proposition last night the purchase of a coal mine was indorsed by the Central Labor Council and the committee was empowered to go ahead with the business arrangements already entered into.

This action pledges the Central Labor Council to purchase 200,000 shares of stock at 75 cents a share in the Superior Coal Mining Company, which is capitalized at $400,000. The par value of the stock is $1. In consideration of taking up the block of stock labor will be entitled to three of the five trustees on the board of management. These were elected last evening andare R. A. Hicks, H. F. Boulton and C. S. Munroe.

The mining property of the company is situated near Issaquah, two and three-quarters miles from the Northern Pacific railroad. A road has already been graded from the mine to the Northern Pacific railway and is ready for the steel.

The mines are developed to such an extent that shipping can be commenced at once, the managers say, but with further work the shipments can be maintained on a much larger scale and the $150,000 derived from the sale of the stock will be devoted to qualifying the mine for a good output.

Prof. Milnor Roberts, of the state School of Mines, has made a favorable raport on the property. It embraces four coal veins, all of good quality and in quantity and location favorable to economical mining.

The coal committee of the Central Labor Council has information showing that the coal can be mined at a cost of $2, and until the railway spur to the Northern Pacific is completed cartage to Issaquah will cost $1.25, and freight from that place to Seattle is 65 cents a ton. They figure that it can be marketed in Seattle at about $5.50 a ton.

QUALITY, NOT QUANTY, OF CHILDREN IMPORTANT

Bloomington, Ills., Oct. 19.—Nearly three hundred delegates present at the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs this week heard from Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson, wife of the former vice president, the "humane" side of the race suicide argument.

"There is no thoughtful woman in America," said Mrs. Stevenson, "who has not been more than startled by the appeal for larger families. While this appeal has been most urgent, I do not recall that there has been one word in reference to the healthier life of the mother, nor has the ability of the mother, physically, mentally, morally, spiritually or financially, to rear children been touched upon

"The question should not be how many children, but their condition and what kind of citizens they will make. The plea that some thought should be given to prolonging the life of the mother and thus protect the babes, should occupy first place in the work of mothers' clubs. The size of the family is of less importance."

Military Telegraphers Must Obey Court

Washington, Oct. 22.—The law officers of the war department have decided that a military telegrapher in Alaska must obey a subpoena from a civil court in the locality calling him to produce retained copies of commercial messages. It is held that in case he is called upon to produce copies of government telegrams he should consult higher authority.

Packing Plant for Portland

Portland, Oct. 22.—Portland is now assured of two of the largest and most modern packing plants in the country. The plant of Swift & Company was assured some time ago and now announcement is made that Schwarzschild & Sulzberger, the great Chicago packing firm will also build a large and modern plant on the peninsula in packing town.

Small Admits He Is Out

Chicago, Oct. 21.—S. J. Small, suspended president of the telegraphers' union, has announced his retirement from office and from the union. He said: "I am down and out and will not make any further attempt to recover my position. I will look for a job next week.

BALLOON RECORD

ARMY SIGNAL CORPS AERONAUTS WIN LAHM CUP.

Trophy Will Be Property of United States Army Officer Unless Record Is Beaten Within Three Years--Trip Was Made in Balloon No. 10.

St. Louis, Oct. 19.—The balloon United States No. 10, in which Capt. De Forest Chandler, accompanied by J. McCoy, won the Lahm cup for long distance ascensions, was still sailing when sighted near Camelton West Virginia yesterday afternoon in the foothills of the Allegheny mountains—500 miles as the crow flies—according to a long distance telephone message.

The Lahm cup, offered by Lieutenant Lahm to whoever should outdistance his recent record of 403 and a fraction miles from Paris in the Bennett cup contest last year, will now become the property of Capt. Chandler and the United States army. For three years any balloonist is at liberty to break Capt. Chandler's record, and if he succeeds the cup becomes his, unless Capt. Chandler successfully defends his title. After three years it becomes his unconditionally.

Shape Course By Stars

Dusk fell while the balloon was still close to St. Louis Thursday night and it passed through the moonlight over the Illinois prairies, swept by stiff easterly winds, twenty-two miles an hour.

When dawn broke the balloon was sailing across Ohio and the aeronauts were fortunate in having full daylight upon them when they crossed the Ohio river at Galliopolis. During the whole trip they must have crossed the river at least three times and the Kanawha river once.

At Point Pleasant, West Virginia, across the Ohio river from Galliopolis, and near the junction of the Kanawha and the Ohio, the balloon was sighted at 10:30 a. m., and remained in sight an hour, drifting close to the earth in a southwesterly direction about twelve miles an hour. The balloonists were plainly visible and waved at the crowds which gathered to view them, but did not drop any message.

A storm gathered and the sky which had been brilliant became overcast. The gas was apparently sensitive to the change and the balloon dipped until it almost touched a barn. By throwing out ballast the balloonists averted an accident and the No. 10 rose gallantly. The breeze carried the as bag out of danger before the storm broke.

The balloon passed Charlestoon flying low. The country about the Kanawha valley which the balloon pilots followed, is broken. and flight over it was attended by so much danger that was believed the aeronauts would soon land They were then 300 miles from the Atlantic ocean.

When No. 10 passed Galliopolis it had been sixteen hours and forty minutes in the air and had sailed an average of a mile in two minutes and twenty seconds

GREAT EARTHQUAKE IS RECORDED AT WASHINGTON

Washington, Oct. 18.—An earthquake of great violence was recorded by the seismograph at the weather bureau yesterday. The strong motion of the disturbance began shortly after 9 o'clock in the morning and subsided about six minutes later, the approximate time, as first shown by the government instruments, being from 9:14 to 9:20.

The weather bureau issued the following bulletin: "Just after the sheets of the seismograph were changed this morning, a great earthquake was recorded the record of which has not yet been entirely completed. The strong part of the motion began at 9:14 a. m., but its duration was relatively short and subsided at about 9:20 a. m.

"The earthquake, which was one of the most violent ever recorded here, was also shown on the seismograph at the coast and geodetic survey magnetic observatory at Cheltenham, Md. The instruments there showed the vibrations began at 8:59 a. m., Eastern standard time, and continued about two hours."

British Columbia Parliament

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 21.—It is officially stated there will be an early session of the British Columbia legislature either in December or January. Among the business to come up will be the coal mines reguliation act and a bill to organize the British Columbia university, for which 2,000,000 acres of land were set aside last session. It is said, however, that the real reason for the meeting of the house is to discuss the Oriental question and thus show the labor men of the province that the provincial government wants to do something for them.

Eight Hundred Tons of Pumpkins

North Yakima, Oct. 21.—The Webber-Bussell Company, of this city, has grown 800 tons of pumpkins on sixty acres of land at Wapato, and will commence hauling them to the cannery in a few days. If all the crop cannot be handled here, the balance will be shipped to the company's plant at Sumner.

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN

Women and the Home.

"It is time enough for women to put on their armor and go forth to battle with the world when stern necessity drives them into fields where they must do or die for themselves and those dependent upon them. Women have proved their ability to win victories over almost insurmountable barriers; but spare them as long as possible from the combats of life.

"Let it be the ambition of American women to make their homes, 'be they ever so humble,' the dearest spot on earth to their husbands and children. Let the men be the 'hewers of wood and drawers of water,' while the wives and mothers brew and bake and make the home a place for rest and recreation. Let the men be brave and true, and scorn to share in the plenty derived from the sweating of the brows of the gentler sex."—Mrs. John A. Logan.

Health and Beauty Hints.

Nothing assists the healthful action of the skin like a hard rubbing with a rough towel or bath brush.

Moth patches are so frequently a sign of a disordered condition of the blood that it is well to consult a physician as to their treatment.

People with greasy skins will find a little borax or ammonia added to the water of the bath excellent to take off the much-despised shine.

Headache sufferers should never sleep with closed windows, winter or summer. Opening the window in the next room won't do. You must have fresh air from outside.

Bad teeth are not only disfiguring but a positive menace to the health. Many a woman considers herself a chronic sufferer from neuralgia when all she needs is a visit to a good dentist.

Cape Wrap of Braided Net.

Anyone who is fond of dainty needlework could make such a wrap as the one illustrated at small expense, although the French model from which the sketch was taken was decidedly high in price, owing to the hand-braiding used as trimming. The wrap was cut in one piece and was of white filet dotted net, the braiding being done in cotton soutache. In doing the work the net should be firmly basted on paper and the braid then applied, the paper being torn away after the work is done.

A Beauty Bit.

Dimples and blushes go together, and blushing is largely a matter of practice. The woman who keeps her skin healthy will have no trouble in blushing, but the woman who lets her skin grow dull and thick will find herself growing warm and uncomfortable, but she can not blush.

The complexion of the chin is to be studied. A pretty pink chin is charming, and if the tips of the ears are also pink it means a great deal in the beauty line.

Need for Companionship.

There is a wise old German saying that "Only a god or a brute can dwell in solitude." Men and women need congenial companionship, both for the sake of health and happiness. Just as your lungs, after using up all the oxygen in a close room, need to be filled with fresh, out of door air, so your minds need contact with other minds to get new ideas. There is such a thing as mental as well as physical hunger. Herders on the cattle ranches of the West frequently become mad from the isolation they are forced to endure. Women on lonely farms and in small villages grow morbid and mildly insane, and people do not guess that the cause is want of companionship. It is for this reason that a woman's work at home is always more trying that that of her husband, who goes to the office, sees new faces and has the friction that is produced by meeting other people. Even the farmer has more intercourse with his neighbor at market or at the village grocery than his wife, who may not see any one outside of her own family for weeks. It is a great mistake for young people to isolate themselves. Even if their tastes lead them to a quiet life, they should make it a point to cultivate a few agreeable friends.—Woman's Life.

When Success Spells Failure.

Business success for the woman does not mean domestic or individual happiness, and, on the whole, business life makes for restlessness, selfishness, and discontent. You can not measure the influence of business on the woman by figures or statistics.

You can not count wrecked lives among women wage-earners as you can tally off divorce cases on court calendars, and trace them to certain causes, such as incompatability, desertion, cruelty, etc. You can not say that a woman in business is a failure or success according to the salary she draws.

You can not expect the trim, self-contained girl at your elbow to admit that her perfectly appointed little apartment becomes a whited sepulchre in perfectly ordered life of dinners, clubs, theaters, and opera parties spells failure.

She says she is a success. In her heart she knows that when the last guest has gone, and the trim little maid has been dismissed, the exquisitely appointed little apartment becomes a whited sepulchre in which the starved soul of the woman sits alone weeping.—Woman's Home Companion.

Wise Plan to Save.

Never mind what the method, save a little. If you can only afford 5 cents a week, save it and do not think it too small to bother with. A woman with a small bank account of her own or with some little savings invested in a strong financial institution, can never be as utterly crushed to earth by any kind of misfortune as the one who, in addition to her other troubles, has not a penny to help herself with. You may have rich friends who are willing to come to your aid in an emergency, but with your own little capital you will have a feeling of independence which is one of the most satisfactory feelings in the world to have. Try it once and see. It is only at the beginning that women have to be urged to save. Just as soon as they realize the satisfaction of it, they are quite ready to go on without any further urging.

Your Expression.

What kind of expression do you wear habitually?

Is it sour, morose, repellent?

Do people look happier when you approach them, or do they shrink from you?

It makes all the difference in the world with your prospects for success in either society or business what sort of expression you wear.

The candidate for success should learn the power of a smile, not only because it wins friends, but because its power over one's life is immeasurable.

The effort to be always kind, considerate and gentle, no matter what may be rankling in the heart, has a great influence in transforming life.

Idle Women Are Scored.

"Mentally, morally and physically flabby," is the way one of the periodicals characterizes the women who live in apartment hotels to avoid the troubles of housekeeping. They are abnormally developed as to bust and hips, says the same authority; they pet bull pups instead of children, and spend their days in idleness mixed with bridge. A picture not very complimentary to say the least.

To the Home-Maker.

To build up the power of our homes, for beauty, for companionship, for intelligence, for charity, for a constant acknowledgment and furtherance of the rights of others, is to build up a power greater, perhaps, than we ourselves shall ever realize. And it's within the reach of every home, whether it's a big or a very little one.—Harper's Bazar.

How to Arrange Flowers.

In arranging flowers for the rooms or the table be careful not to overcrowd the vases. Many beautiful effects are spoiled because a desire is felt to "get them all in." The Japanese idea of a single flower in a vase may not be just what you want, but it is a guide in the distributing of the flowers that it is well to note.

Our Married Friends.

When a girl friend marries we lose her. We may frequently call on her, and there may be a renewal of old time chatter, but the little heart to heart talk and the chatter so freely exchanged by all girl friends is missing. She does not take you into her confidence. Probably she will tell you of her little perplexities, etc., but she never wholly confides in you in the same old way. She soon drifts out of your life, new friends come into it, and the girl friend slips into a little sphere of her own. She is still beloved by the girl friend, but even the single girl no longer delights in telling her little secrets, reading her the letters, or making her a confidant in any manner. The young bride will claim to be just the same yesterday, to-day and forever, but as soon as she vows to "love, honor and obey" one of the masculine tribe, then farewell to the girl friend.

ABOUT THE BABY

Baby's first clothes should be made of the finest materials that parents can afford. In such wardrobe softness is the thing essential, as the flesh of a young child is so delicate that it will be irritated and made sore by a quality of linen, etc., that is not exceptionally fine. Lightweight garments are also desirable, as heavy qualities pull from the shoulders and are apt to impede circulation.

For dresses French nainsook is the softest and prettiest goods and launders and wears better than any other. This, however, is from 85 to 90 cents a yard, and two and a half yards would be required for a frock. This allows for a five-inch hem that is a pretty width for an infant's slip.

Next to French is English nainsook. It costs from 35 to 50 cents a yard. Both are the same width. Next to these fabrics the most desirable is Persian lawn.

Men Their Own Menders.

Mrs. McKinley used to tell a story about a Canton woman who declared that her husband was very slipshod, his buttons always coming off. Some one suggested that possibly they were not well sewed on and she admitted that to be the case, as he was a very poor sewer. Mrs. Ibsen says that her distinguished husband always insisted on sewing on his own buttons and she humored him, but as soon as he had finished she sewed them over again.

A Remedy for Ants.

It is said that an effectual cure for the ants that are the bane of many a good housekeeper is to melt together in an earthenware vessel a quarter of a pound of sulphur and two ounces of potash. When cold pulverize and sprinkle in the haunts of the sluggard's example. If the ants will not flee from this mixture be very sure the housekeeper will during the somewhat choky, melting process.

Appearances Deceitful.

A Boston woman has invented a whipping machine for criminals. She can not see that whipping is any more brutal than imprisonment, and declares that many criminals would dread corporal punishment worse than hanging. The little woman who has invented the machine is said to be a very diffident and altogeter refined looking person, which only goes to show that appearances are often deceitful.

Smart Walking Hat.

It is some time since ribbon has been worn as a hat trimming, but this season no hat is complete without a bow or a twist of ribbon, and on many of the smartest hats no other trimming is used. This hat is a pretty corn-colored straw with a large bow of dull blue ribbon. It is an ideal style to wear with a neat tailor-made costume.

Women Should Propose.

Harriet M. Johnston Wood is a lawyer and a partner of her husband. She is also the ex-president of the Portia Club of New York, and has advanced the novel theory that a woman should have the right to propose and not be considered forward for doing so. She maintains that if women had rights equal with men there would be a great deal less unhappiness in the married state.

NOT MUCH DIFFERENCE.

In a two column "statement" in the Tribune-Times last week, Mr. Lauridson endeavors to demonstrate by a long list of cited valuations that the timber lands of Clallam county are not under assessed in proportion to other personal property, and to farming and city lands, saying that, "for a fair comparison, he does not see much difference," and, incidentally, acknowledging by his argument, the correctness of the point we have heretofore made, that his views are identical with those of the attorneys for the timber companies; that he is, in fact, making a noise very much like a timber man.

In the beginning, as a basis for his argument, he says: "I am quoted as saying that 'all timber-lands were assessed too high' This is a deliberate misstatement."

The Olympic-Leader has never made such a statement, nor anything that sounds like it, but the fact that it is attributed to us seems to show the necessity of a straw man to his peculiar line of argument.

Mr. Lauridsen has not brought up one new point, nor made a single statement, that we have not already given him credit for in this paper; his arguments and examples are perfectly familiar to our readers; were they not we should republish his views.

Not one? There is one. In view of the fact that the leading counties of the state had made a decided raise in timber valuations, even to an average of $50 an acre on the Continental's holdings in King, it was necessary to assign some reason for Clallam's failure. Hence the bug-a-boo of possible legal difficulties on this so-called "off year" was introduced—a matter of trifling or no importance, if we may judge by the way the officials of King and other counties went at the matter. The sole and only difference seems to be that in one case the officials went after the necessary information at once and secured it, thus adding millions to the tax rolls this year; while in the other they are pleading ignorance—pleading their failure to acquire the necessary information as an excuse for their failure to acquire it.

E. E. SEEVERS FOR MAYOR.

E. E. Seevers will be the only candidate for mayor on the Citizen's Ticket, Mayor Ritchie, who only filed his papers because there seemed to be no alternative, having withdrawn in Mr. Seevers' favor.

REVIVAL OF THE COMMERCIAL CLUB.

All progressive, up-to-date towns have their Boards of Trade, Commercial Clubs, or Tourist Associations Some have all three. It is felt that in this age of fast Luistianas, telephones, telegraphs, and Marconi wireless, it is not wise to sit quietly in our offices or homes and wait for population and business to come to us. All the world is active and instinct with energy and is reaching out for business. The man who sits waiting for time and opportunity to come to him will "get left," as the saying goes. Time and tide wait for no man. They come and go with the regularity that Nature gave them and woe betide the man who should attempt to anticipate the flight of the one or stop the flow of the other. When the courtiers told King Canute that he was so great and powerful that he controlled the elements as well as the world, he bade them set his throne on the shore at low tide. Sceptre in hand, he commanded the sea to retire. But old ocean refused to obey and the beach combers rolled in just as tho he were not there and, wetting his royal nibs' feet, forced him to withdraw. What does this little anecdote teach? It teaches that there is no royal road to success and that there are many things man cannot do. But there are many things man can do easily and well if he but tries. It is always open to him to better his condition. By the observance of thrift, industry, and sobriety he may raise himself to a high position in the politics or business of a country and achieve a noble position among his fellows.

The record of the Commercial Club of Port Angeles is a noteworthy instance of what can be done by a few determined and aggressive individuals when they come together for mutual advancement. The founders of the Commercial Club did well in their day and generation and are deserving of the thanks of the city and county; but they were few in number and lacked general support and cooperation. On all sides they were met by men who disparaged this beautiful place and its surroundings and ridiculed the efforts of the few public-spirited persons who faithfully tried to make our resources known abroad. So the club had drooped and almost died when men came from abroad and after examining the capabilities and possibilities declared, like the emisaries whom Moses sent into the strange country, that this is a land flowing with milk and honey which needs but the quickening touch of enterprise and confidence to furnish homes for many thousands.

These men have joined the Commercial Club and are preparing to lay down and carry out a progressive and aggressive policy for the advancement of Clallam county and, incidentally, the whole Olympic Peninsula. They have decided to advertise the fact that we have the largest forests of standing timber in the world; that we have fertile fields which produce wheat that is almost equal to Minnesota "hard;" that we have orchards which produce the finest fruit on the Pacific slope; that our potatoes and vegetables are the best grown; that tomatoes are raised in the open air; that the products of Clallam county challenge the admiration of beholders and consumers, and that the live stock raised in our valleys are inferior to none.

The revived Club intends to let the world know that three of the most powerful transcontinental railroads on the continent have completed their surveys to or near Port Angeles and that a fourth railroad company has sent its explorers into hills and valleys and passes to select a route for the laying of their tracks and a resting place on the Strait of Fuca for their terminus. The Club intends to labor for the re-establishment of direct communication with Victoria; to draw attention to our unlimited water power; our magnificent harbor; our glorious climate, and last, but by no means least, they will draw attention to our latest discovered asset — the existence of gold bearing quartz of reputed richness in the outskirts of the city.

All these things and many more the Commercial Club will drag from obscurity and place in the form of literature at the disposal of home-seekers and investors who may visit the valley in search of a home or a field for investment.

ASK US SOMETHING EASY.

Mr. Lauridsen: "In regard to that 'Excellent Authority' writing about certain timber lands being worth $145.00 per acre, let me ask, why was it not assessed last year at the proper time at more than $10? If it is worth that now, it was worth it last year; then why didn't that 'Excellent Authority' see to it being properly assessed. Why?"

Simply because of the fact that our "excellent authority,' a man who is familiar with the timber lying along the main roads of the county at least, was neither assessor nor county commissioner last year, and hence was not in a position to regulate the matter of assessments. Knowing him to be a man of undoubted worth and honor, we may say that had he been, whether pledged or not, he would, having acquired the responsibility, immediately set himself the task of becoming familiar with the values of timber and all other personal property in the county, in order that he might have given the people as good an accounting of his office as did the officials of other counties this year.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING.

The recent meeting of the Commercial Club, held at the Olympic Peninsula Co.'s offices, was more largely attended than the first gathering. The interest and enthusiasm seems to be increasing and all present were impressed with the idea that great things will flow from the revival of the club. The statistics which show the loss our manufactures sustain thru being forced to ship via Seattle, instead of by way of Victoria, are startling. Fancy six thousand dollars a month paid in freight and handling charges on shingles alone which might be saved with a car ferry! The proposition for holding a county fair next summer was received with applause. The club will meet again next Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the same offices.

BREWERY TO BE ENLARGED.

W. L. Stetson and W. T. Mosher of this city, says the P.-I., have become the owners of a half interest in the Angeles brewery Mr. Mosher said last evening that the plant would be enlarged at once to a capacity of 150 barrels per day, and that probably even more extensive enlargement would be made in the near future.

A COUNTY FAIR.

At the Commercial Club's meeting on Tuesday Col. Peter's suggestion that a county fair be held at Port Angeles was heartily received. The agriculturists should begin to get their products ready for the club is very much in earnest in their desire to push the county on and intend to hold a show that will be a credit to town and country.

ELK MILLS BURNED.

The Elk Lumber and Shingle Mills, located near Blue Mountain, burned last night.

Uncle Jim Saved.

Mr. Gorman leaves for East Clallam in the morning on the Pike to look after the launch Uncle Jim, which has finally beached in safety. The damage will not exceed $200.

November 1st is the date set for organization of the new order of Sons and Daughters of Veterans.

PORT ANGELES SCHOOL NOTES

(Edited by the Senior Class.)

The program for the literary exercises of the Philomathean Society for Friday afternoon is as follows:

Review of Short Story.....Robert Gould
Essay.....Lucia Laufield
Autobiography..... Grace McKecknie
Current Events.....Beatrice Filion
Book Review .....Helen Trumbull
Paper..... Leah Myers
Essay.....Lyle Beam
Oration.....Frances Buckner
Original Story.....Jolliette Glen Autobiography.....Herman Swanson

Debate—Lorena Fulmer, Robert Thorp, Alta McDonald, Ethel Welch, May Stilwell, Will Barnett.

The question for debate is: Resolved that the editor wields more power than the orator. All are cordially invited to attend. Program begins at 1:30 p. m.

New clocks have been placed in the schools of the 4th ward.

Miss Ruth Fulmer taught the pupils of the first grade all day Monday, as the primary teacher, Miss Webster, was absent on account of illness. Miss Fulmer seems to enjoy teaching, especially during the period from 11:25 to 12:10, when most of the Senior girls were wrestling with Physics' problems in Miss Vaupell's room.

The telephone number of Lincoln Heights school is 110-4.

The Janitor of Central has put in scrapers near each of the four entrances to the main building and the annex. This, it is said, indicates a rainy winter.

The county superintendent, Miss Trumbull, visited the Senior English class last Wednesday.

Miss Ball has organized two grammar grade choruses, one at Lincoln Heights and the other at Central. They practice daily.

SOLD LIQUOR ILLEGALLY.

Sheriff Cosser has in his possession enough wet goods to start a cross-roads saloon, as a result of raids made last week upon two illegal dispensers of intoxicating liquors, A. M. Konopaski of Beaver and Wm. Kemper of Clallam. It had been whispered that there were such things doing down that way for some time, and upon investigation due evidence was secured and the goods confiscated and the violators of the law apprehended. At a hearing in the first case before Justice Fields, Mr. Konopaski waived examination and he was bound over to the Superior Court and had a hearing at once. The defendant plead guilty and asked the lieniency of the Court, and was fined $50 and costs of action, which was paid. It was also ordered that all goods seized be destroyed under the direction of the Sheriff. In the case of Wm. Kemper heard Monday, Justice Fields assumed jurisdiction and upon the defendant pleading guilty he was given a like fine and the goods taken ordered destroyed as above.

TO LET.

Do You Think For Yourself?

Or, do you open your mouth like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you?

If you are an intelligent thinking woman, in need of relief from weakness, nervousness, pain and suffering, then it means much to you that there is one tried and true honest medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION, sold by druggists for the cure of woman's ills.

The makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of weak, nervous, run-down, over-worked, debilitated, pain-racked women, knowing this medicine to be made up of ingredients, every one of which has the strongest possible indorsement of the leading and standard authorities of the several schools of practice, are perfectly willing, and in fact, are only too glad to print, as they do, the formula, or list of ingredients, of which it is composed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper.

The formula of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will bear the most critical examination of medical experts, for it contains no alcohol, narcotics, harmful, or habit-forming drugs, and no agent enters into it that is not highly recommended by the most advanced and leading medical teachers and authorities of their several schools of practice. These authorities recommend the ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of exactly the same ailments for which this world-famed medicine is advised.

No other medicine for woman's ills has any such professional endorsement as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has received, in the unqualified recommendation of each of its several ingredients by scores of leading medical men of all the schools of practice. Is such an endorsement not worthy of your consideration?

A booklet of ingredients, with numerous authorative profesional endorsements by the leading medical authorities of this country, will be mailed free to any one sending name and address with request for same. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

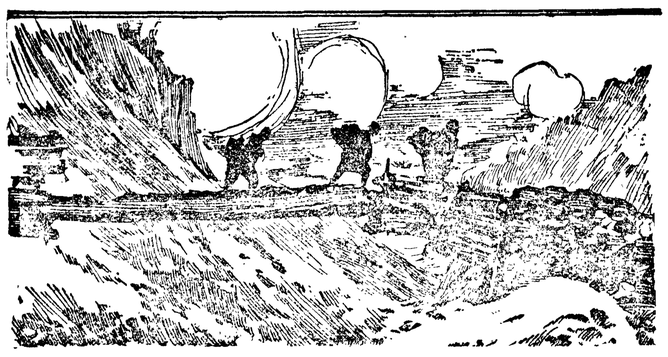
A Record Journey Through Asian Wilds

English Journalist Crosses the "Roof of the World" and Penetrates the Most Obscure and Inhospitable Region on the Globe



Time was when Africa was called the Dark Continent, partly because so little was known of its vast interior, and the maps furnished by the cartographers took so much for granted, when they did not absolutely misrepresent the country. But the Dark Continent now is fairly well explored, and parts of its interior are as well charted as many places nearer home. But Asia, even now, centuries after Marco Polo traversed it, seems to contain much that is new, because it is so little known. That part of the continent which lies along the Himalaya and on its crest, has been so little traveled by moderns that until the British entered Tibet by force recently the country practically was an unsealed book to the outside world.

An adventurous Englishman, David Fraser, who represented the London Times in Manchuria during the Russo-Japanese war, has just finished one of the most remarkable journeys ever undertaken in Asia, and has brought back some most alluring photographs and an entertaining tale of his experiences.

Fraught with Excitement.

Even in the remote East, where civilization still is of the most primitive pattern, it is not impossible to take a journey without having any thrilling tales of danger to tell. The people in the interior of Asia are as a rule pacific, and the traveler who does not make himself offensive to the natives generally arrives at his journey's end without serious difficulty. To imagine there are no natural dangers is, of course, erroneous. There are; for to climb some of the highest mountains in the Himalaya range is itself an an experience fraught with excitement, and, at times, of positive danger. Mr. Fraser, indeed, nearly lost his life in attempting to return by way of India, through a pass blocked with snow. The regions in which he traveled are generally held to be the wildest and most inhospitable in the Eurasian Continent, but the traveler, who had as companion a British officer, succeeded in making his remarkable trip without any serious mishap.

After the close of the war Mr. Fraser decided to make a survey of the interior of Asia, in the little known regions of Chinese Turkestan, Tibet, China, India, Russian Turkestan and Persia. Of these, perhaps, Chinese Turkestan is the least known to the outer world, although Persia, beyond the chief cities, is almost an unknown quantity to the average person, even if the latter affects to be experienced. Tibet has been entered by several travelers during the last decade, notably by Sven Hedin. The Tibetan war, if the conflict may be so dignified, brought that hidden country to the front, and many of its peculiarities have become familiar, although Mr. Fraser found there was still something to learn there. Russian Turkestan has been visited, along the line of the Russian railway advance, and, consequently, is not altogether an unknown country.

In the course of his wanderings through this high region, where for months at a time the traveler was at an altitude of a mile or more, Mr. Fraser crossed the Himalaya three times, and also made journeys across the Karakorum, Kuen Len, and the Alai, the names of some of which are unfamiliar to most readers. He used some of the most remarkable modes of conveyance. Through Chinese Turkestan he had to rely on camels; in Tibet the homely but entirely efficient yak was used, and in parts of his tour he made use of a donkey caravan. In addition to these means of transportation he also covered 800 miles on foot.

Some of the ground covered by Mr. Fraser has been traversed by one or two other travelers during the last few years, but the part of Tibet in which he wandered may be said to have been never trod by Europeans. He was much impressed by the hill country of Sikkim, a small State north of India, which nestles at the foot of the Himalayas like a pass through the great mountains. At one side lies Nepal and on the other is Bhotan. Beyond lies the weird and mysterious country of Tibet.

One of the World's Marvels.

The Sihk country, he relates, "is probably one of the most marvelous regions in the world, presenting, as it does, in close proximity the rich luxuriance of tropical vegetation and the wintry solitudes of everlasting snow. Marching along the slopes of one of its exquisite valleys at a height of 3,500 feet above sea level we came to one point where we were able to look over a precipice that sank straight down for 2,000 feet to the bed of the Teesta River itself, here no more than 1,500 feet above the sea.

"On the opposite side of the valley was a deep rift in the tree-clad hills, and looking up this gorge the eye surmounted ridge after ridge in quick succession, until it finally rested on the top of Kinchinjunga, 28,150 feet, the third highest mountain in the world. No more than thirty miles separated the Teesta from the top of its lordly neighbor, and in the clear air it was almost impossible to believe the distance was so great."

The panorama spread before the traveler at this point did not fail to make a conquest of Mr. Fraser. "It looked," he said, "as if the very foot of Kinchinjunga was set in a tiny thread of silver that gleamed far below us, and that his mighty flanks rose sheer until they ended in the twin white peaks, 26,650 feet above. The dark hillside and rushing waterfall, of serrated ridges and gloomy gorges, of blue glacier and lofty snow fields afforded by this scene is surely one of the wonders of the world."

Peak Five Miles High.

Heights of mountains in the Himalaya region, where they are the greatest in the world, are difficult to comprehend by those who have never been so fortunate as to climb, or attempt to climb, these immense elevations. But a fair idea of the height of Kinchinjunga may be had by the simple statement that, could the mountain be laid on its side, and its base placed at Delaware avenue, its summit would be found to be at 60th street, or within a few hundred feet of five miles.

The traveler found another marvelous country in the regions stretching north from Simla, where official India spends the summers, 1,000 miles west of Sikkim. "From the summer capital of India," he says, "the foothills of the great backbone of mountain lie tumbled in inextricable confusion and scored at intervals by the sources of the famous rivers that give its name to the Punjab. The first encountered is the Sutlej, rising in the distant mountains of Tibet and racing through dark gorges until it debouches in the plains 300 miles below the point where we crossed. Over the Jaolewri Pass, 10,200 feet, we cross into the lovely valley of Kulu, which lies about 4,000 feet above the sea. Then over the Rotang Pass, 13,500 feet, into Lahoul, a country bare and desolate beyond belief, and at no point lower than 10,000 feet. Crossing the Shingô Pass, 16,600 feet, we are in the most rugged of all Himalayan countries, Zanskar, where we cross four passes of over 16,000 feet above sea level before descending into the valley of the Indus and reaching the ancient and curious town of Leh, 11,500 feet."

Travel Through Cloudland.

Here it seems that the voyagers have hardly made a beginning, for immediately north of Leh lies the Khardung Pass, 17,800 feet, quickly followed by a drop to 10,000 feet, and then another rise to the Saser Pass, 18,000 feet.

"Between these two," says Mr. Fraser, "we engage a large caravan of ponies to carry the baggage, for in fourteen days' travel there will be no habitations, no food for man or beast, nor even fuel by the way. Everything must be carried except water, of which, alas, there is too much in this summer season, when the hot sun daily attacks the eternal snows that flank the route. From the top of the Saser we drop into the valley of the Shyok River, 15,100 feet, where great glaciers poke their snouts across the valleys and choke up the passes. Through a long, deep gorge we slowly and laboriously climb to the Depsang plain, a great stretch of smooth gravel beds, 17,000 feet above the sea, and over which we take a day to travel.

"Beyond Depsang we rise to the lofty Karakorum Pass, 18,550 feet, and in three days later cross the Suget Pass, 17,600 feet, after which we drop down to 11,000 feet, and once more encounter human beings and some vegetation."

From Camels to Yaks.

Arrived at Kurgah, the travelers were on Chinese territory, and the ponies were exchanged for camels, for horse transport is useless in the bed of the rushing Karakash River, which had to be forded many times during the four days they followed its course. The Sanju Pass, 16,600 feet, had to be surmounted, and this necessitated a change of the baggage from camels to yaks, for only the latter patient beast can climb its steep and dangerous ascents.

Chinese Turkestan, says the traveler, is a desert indeed, but his route lay through a succession of the most delightful and refreshing oases, where "milk, cream and honey, vegetables and the finest fruit in the world, are obtainable almost for the asking."

At a height of only 4,000 feet, according to Mr. Fraser, travel is easy and pleasant compared with the toil and hardship of the mountainous regions passed. The travelers rested at Kashgar, and then plunged into the mountains once more, crossing the Alai range by the Terek Pass, 12,600 feet, and then finding themselves in Russian territory. There were still 200 miles of caravan traveling before the travelers reached the Transcaspian railroad at Ahdijan, whence they were sped to Askabad, a town on the Persian border.

Meshed, the famous city of pilgrimages, was reached after crossing mountain passes of the comparatively low level of 7,000 feet.

Caught in a Blizzard.

While crossing a Persian pass at an elevation of 10,000 feet the explorers were caught in a blizzard, but they escaped without even a frostbite, and continued to the tomb of Omar at Naishapur. Finally the route took them to Baku, where the adventurous part of the journey ended. In the course of the tour across unknown Asia they traveled about 2,500 miles on various primitive modes of transport and about 800 on foot, to say nothing of the countless miles covered by railroad and by carriages.

How Dolls Are Made.

Many big things are needed to make a small doll. She has her beginning in a great trough, where workmen knead up into a dingy paste old cardboard, even old gloves, old rags and gum tragacanth. They are great brawny fellows, these men, naked to the waist, wearing leathern aprons. In an adjoining room the paste is poured into molds for the busts, the arms, the legs of dolls innumerable. There is a special machine for stamping out the hands. I should not like to confess how long I stood in front of it, fascinated by the steady stream of queer little hands that fell ceaselessly from the iron monster. It was awful, uncanny, hypnotizing. Indeed, the whole sight was grim and monstrous. The low factory rooms were misty with steam and lit by strange, red glowing fires. Always the great steel machines pulsed and changed, and through the mist sweaty giants of men went to and fro with heaps of little greenish arms and legs until you began to think that some new Herod had killed all the little people in the world.—Everybody's.

Napoleon Trusted His Omens.

Napoleon always had an unlimited trust in his presentiments. When the news came to him that one of the Nile river boats, the name of which was L'Italie, had been wrecked and the crew put to death he gave up all hope of ever completing his conquest of Italy by annexation. Napoleon believed that the stars exercised an occult influence over human destinies. When General Rapp, at one time his aid-de-camp, returned from the siege of Dantsic he found the emperor gazing with concentrated attention at the heavens. "Look there!" shouted the emperor. "It is my star! The fiery red one, almost as large as the moon! It is before you now, and, ah, how brilliant! It has never abandoned me for a single instant. I see it on all great occasions. It commands me to go forward; it is my sign of good fortune and where it leads I will follow."

How to Enjoy Whist.

"How can one learn to enjoy the game of whist?"—Aspirant.

Get yourself roped into a game as partner to some one who helped Hoyle write his book. The other two players must also be experts. Start in pleasantly to enliven the game with a few well-chosen anecdotes, now and then making the wrong play. After your partner has slapped your ears and sworn at you and put the black curse on you and all your ancestry and called you a fool a few times you will awake to the real joy of the gentle and intellectual game. We have tried this several times, but not at frequent intervals, and we can guarantee its efficacy. —Chicago News.

On Guard.

"Yes, I sleep in the garage now and the chauffeur sleeps in the house."

"What's that for?"

"The chauffeur is troubled with insomnia and the midnight rides he took in my car in order to pass away the time were altogether too extensive."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Extras.

"That summer resort proprietor is a sharp one, isn't he?"

"I should say so. I fell off the dock and he charged me for an extra bath." —Cleveland Leader.

How a woman with a mean husband regrets that she didn't, as a girl, show greater appreciation of her father.

At Grandpa's.

I'd rather be to grandpa's house
Than any place I know;
For grandpa says I am his boy
And grandma loves me so.
When I get down to grandpa's house
You bet I'll make things hum;
There won't be no one then to say,
"Now, sonny, stop that drum."

I'll go barefooted in the grass
And do just as I please;
I'll paddle in mud puddles and
I'll climb the biggest trees;
I'll slide down on the banisters;
I'll shin up every door;
I won't be scolded when I track
Up grandma's kitchen floor.

When I get down to grandpa's house
I'll be a boy again.
Folks ain't afraid of freckles there,
Nor bother 'bout the rain.
I'll ride the horses bareback and
I'll walk on ev'ry fence;
No one'll scold me when I tear
My pants—gee, that's immense!

I'd rather be to grandpa's house
Because I have such fun,
And I'll be awful sorry when
Vacation time is done.
I like to be at grandpa's house
And be a boy once more,
Where I don't get no scolding when
I track up grandma's floor.

Letter Scale.

A good scale for weighing letters may be made by any one without expense. Get the handle of a worn-out broom and cut off about fifteen inches of it. Pour water into a wide-mouthed jar until it is nearly full, and having attached a weight to one end of the stick and tacked a square of cardboard to the other, the latter to serve as a platform, plunge the stick into the water, as shown in the cut.

The weight should be heavy enough to keep about three-fourths of the stick under water. Having done all this, get a half-ounce, an ounce and a two-ounce weight (you may borrow them from your druggist), and placing them, one at a time, upon the platform of your scale carefully mark on the stick the water level in each case.

This scale is somewhat crude, but it is good enough for all practical purposes.

The Right Kind of a Boy.

The other morning we were in the midst of a three days' rain. The fire smoked, the dining room was chilly, and, when we assembled for breakfast, father looked rather grim, and mother tired; for the baby had been restless all night. Polly was plainly inclined to fretfulness, and Bridget undeniably cross, when Jack came in with the breakfast rolls from the baker's. He had taken off his coat and boots in the hall, and he came in rosy and smiling.

"Here's the paper, sir," said he to his father, with such a cheerful tone that his father's brow relaxed, and he said, "Ah, Jack, thank you," quite pleasantly.

His mother looked up at him smiling, and he just touched her cheek gently as he passed.

"Top of the morning to you, Pollywog," he said to his little sister, and delivered the rolls to Bridget, with a "Here you are, Bridget. Aren't you sorry you didn't go yourself this beautiful day?"

He gave the fire a poke and opened the damper. The smoke ceased, and presently the coals began to glow; and five minutes after Jack came in we gathered around the table, and were eating our oatmeal as cheerily as possible. This seems very simple in the telling, and Jack never knew he had done anything at all; but he had, in fact, changed the whole moral atmosphere of the room, and had started a gloomy day pleasantly for five people.

Currant Cake.

The heading of this paragraph will be sure to attract the attention of the boys and girls, for of course they all like currant cake. By this is meant the cake that has little black specks all through it, which look, for all the world, like dead flies, if you will pardon the expression. Everybody calls it currant cake, but the little black specks, you will probably be surprised to hear, are not currants at all, but a kind of raisin, made from little grapes that grow in the island Zante and in other Greek islands. The way they came to be called currants is rather strange. In olden times they were called "corinths," because they grew in great profusion near Corinth, and either from that fact, or from the name "currants," as they were sometimes called, came our word currant. So "currant cake" is really "raisin cake," but it's good, no matter what you call it.

Not an Easy Task.

A new military prison chaplain was recently appointed in a certain town in Scotland. He was a man who greatly magnified his office. And entering one of the cells on the first round of inspection, he, with much pomposity, thus addressed the prisoner who occupied it:

"Well, sir, do you know who I am?"

"No, nor I dinna care," was the nonchalant reply.

"Weel, I'm your new chaplain."

"Oh, ye are? Well, I hae heard o' ye before.

"And what did you hear?" returned the chaplain, his curiosity getting the better of his dignity.

"Well, I heard that the last twa kirks ye wore in ye preached them baith empty, but I'll be hanged if ye find it such an easy matter to do the same wi' this one."

The Telegraph Plant.

There is a queer shrub growing in India, whose tri-foliate leaves move in a way much like railway telegraph signals. The two side leaves rise and fall alternately for a time, and then are still, soon starting into motion again. The leaves are most active in the early morning. Sometimes many of them are in motion at once; at other times, only a few of them are; which shows that their action does not depend on the wind.

PROSPERITY IN EGYPT.

Building Operations in Progress in Many Parts of Cairo.

The charming residential town of Cairo of ten years ago I found disfigured by huge blocks of buildings five stories high; enormous hotels built and building; where was then park is now studded with villas; tramways everywhere, even out to Cheops pyramid; motors careering along, followed by clouds of dust and heralded by the deafening sounds of horn or hoot, says a writer in Blackwood's Magazine. All the constructions are higgledy-piggledy, without line or order. Huge ungainly blocks alongside of unpretentious residences; buildings being torn down or foundations being laid. The conversations overheard were mostly of the price of plots of land, or the rise or fall of shares or of companies floated or being floated, or of people who had become millionaires or expected to become such.

One realized at once that one was among a community intoxicated with success, in the feverish excitement of speculation. The luxurious hotel, opened only some seven years before, was, while I was staying in it, sold to a company for £450,000. Its proprietor (the seller), reputed to be a millionaire, is laying the foundations for a still grander hotel, on a site which was once a prince's palace.

Two well-authenticated transactions will give a fair conception of the enormous rise in the value of property in the best part of Cairo. A small villa erected some twelve years ago, at a cost of about £3,000 found a purchaser recently at £32,000. A property purchased for £17,000 eight years ago was being treated for while I was in Cairo at £150,000. In fact, it is no exaggeration to say that property in what was the residential part of Cairo has increased in value during the last five or six years eightfold to tenfold. The price of land there may be said to vary from £46 to £82 per square meter (3.1 yards), equal to the value of land in the crowded parts of the city of London.

In Alexandria a nearly similar appreciation in the value of town lands has taken place. Lands toward Gabari, which a few years ago were only of a nominal and prospective value, have recently changed hands at fabulous rates. The site of the Victoria College, bought about ten years ago for £1,300, was sold at the beginning of this year for £100,000.

Questions About Birds.

There is still a great deal unknown about the birds migrating. Why do they leave when there is still food enough for all and pleasant weather? What tells them, or how do they know, winter is coming—a season of cold and famine? What birds mingle and what journey by themselves? And how do they know their course?—St. Nicholas.

PETTUS' IMPOSING DIGNITY.

The Alabaman Handled the Senate as a Schoolmaster His School.

Senator Pettus was always a champion of the dignity of the senate, says a writer in Munsey's When the chamber was in disorder—that is, when conversation among the senators had reached a point that interrupted business—the mere suggestion on the part of the presiding officer that the junior senator from Alabama should be called to the chair was sufficient to bring order. When he presided he handled the senate as a schoolmaster conducts his school.

It is to be said that this regard for legislative dignity is much more characteristic of the southern members than of those from the North and West. The Southerner seems to feel that the high traditions of the senate are worth preserving. Looking upon a seat in it as a great honor, they strive so to act as to indicate that the honor was merited. I wish I could say the same for all their colleagues from other sections; but they seem, too often, to regard the senate as more or less of a private asset, which can be utilized for personal advantage.

It has been said in recent years of Morgan and Pettus that they almost constituted a third party in the senate. At the same time, they were far from acting as a unit on every issue that came before them. Two old-time Democrats as they were, residents of the same town, and friends for sixty years, they were by no means identical in their political opinions. It must be remembered that in the South the antagonism between individual Democrats is sometimes as great as that in the North between the Democrat and the Republican. When Mr. Pettus said of Senator Morgan, "I have been his associate and adversary over sixty years," he said something which would be almost inexplicable to the average Northern man; but it is the polite expression of a positive fact. The two senators differed so often that a flippant newspaper article not long ago suggested that their one bond of union was a common fondness for chewing tobacco.

But of neither man has it ever been said that he was anything but absolutely honest and high minded. Against neither has it been charged that he represented anything in the senate except the people of his state and the people of the United States. Their strongest political adversaries in the senate regarded Morgan and Pettus with sincere respect and warm personal affection—a fitting tribute to statesmen of so admirable a type.

LAPPS ARE ON THE DECREASE.

And With Them the Reindeer Is Growing Constantly Scarcer.

The Lapps are decreasing in number, says the Philadelphia Record. The most sanguine estimate of the numbers of the entire race in Norway, Sweden and Russia does not place them above 54,000. By some the number is placed far lower on the strength of trustworthy data. In Norbotten the number of Lapps is 3,000, of whom 2,500 are nomad Lapps, and 500 families have abandoned their wandering habits, have built habitations here and there, and have endeavored, with more or less success, to imitate the life of the Swedish settler.

That the race must die out eventually is certain, and its diminution may be very speedy, though its complete extinction may be still far off, since there is no race that can possibly take its place on the reindeer fjaell. Yet even here we come upon a factor which has, perhaps, hardly been reckoned with. We mean the decrease of the herds of tame reindeer.

This has been going on in the last quarter of a century with striking rapidity. In one district alone in the last twelve years, the reindeer have diminished from an estimated 30,000 to an estimated 7,000. This decrease is explained variously. The commonest and most plausible explanation, which carries the authority of men well qualified to judge, is that the demand for reindeer flesh, which has been brought nearer to the Lapp by the opening of the Bohemian railway, has tempted them to part with the deer at a rate too rapid for their production.

The herd of reindeer, which are taken off the high fjaell down to their winter quarters, are now within four or five days of Stockholm, and there is a good demand for reindeer flesh. It is said that the Lapp, who is no more able to resist strong drink than any other half-civilized man, is plied freely with brandy, and in that state will part with his reindeer for a trifling sum, or even for a fresh bottle of spirits or two. And he goes back to his fjaell stripped of half his herd, and with nothing to show for it.

But there is another cause also alleged, and that by equally good authorities. It is said that Swedish state education is having upon the Lapp the effect which not uncommonly follows the early stages of learning. Every autumn Swedes and Lapps alike send down their children to the nearest national school, where they remain for the winter months, the Lapps in most cases having "seminaries" to themselves. And it is declared that in the case of both races alike, after a few years of this training the youngest generation, when it comes to the age of choosing its way of life, shows an unwillingness to return to the hard outdoor life of the homes in the interior.

TROLLEY WAGON.

New Method of Electric Transportation Soon to Be Seen.

Americans seem rather slow in recognizing the many advantages of the trolley systems of cities and towns. In the majority of the foreign countries, both city and suburban, trolley roads have been utilized for many years for transporting freight, etc. A Pennsylvania man, seeing the possibilities of trolley transportation, has designed a vehicle which is splendidly adapted for the purpose. As shown in the illustration, the preferable form is along the lines of the ordinary wagon used by the express companies. Electrical means are attached to the wagon, so that power can be obtained from the overhead trolley wires and transmitted to the driving wheels. Especially in the larger cities, where the main streets are strung with overhead wires, this vehicle could be used to advantage. It need not interfere with the running of the cars, as the vehicle could be readily run on to the side of the street to permit the passing of the car. The right to use the power could be leased by the company. In fact, overhead wires could be strung on streets not used by the trolley companies. In this way the driver of the vehicle could reach a point close to his destination, the goods being transported the small distance remaining by hand trucks.

RATTLERS AND BEAR AT PICNIC.

Boys Start War of Annihilation Among Snakes—Capture Cub.

Boys at a picnic at Greeley, Pa., recently had rare fun, says the New York World. Much of it was due to the fact that there has not been such a drought in Pike County for fifteen years. The Delaware looks like a lost river, the beds of the smaller streams are dry.

The picnic was held at Rattlesnake creek, in which so little water remains that it does not hide the bowlders on its bed. Every boy had a putty blower, made from a straight piece of alder, from which the pith had been punched, leaving a caliber big enough for a bird shot.

Soon the boys discovered a colony of rattlesnakes preparing to cross the creek toward them. Every Pike County boy who is not a nature faker knows that a rattlesnake hates to wet its rattles. The boys hid in the bushes and waited. Twelve rattlesnakes were in the approaching bunch. The biggest started ahead to reconnoiter, the others waited on the bank.

The scout snake made his tortuous way from bowlder to bowlder, and finally his rattles, dry, reached the picnic grounds. He rattled a wireless "all right" to the eleven, which crossed in Indian file. The boys turned their putty blowers on the snakes and fired fast and accurate broadsides.

Maddened by the hail of shot the snakes turned on one another, and soon every one lay dead, killed by the venom of each other. The twelve snakes' combined length was sixty-five feet.

But this was not all the fun. At luncheon the tempting odor of honey on the sandwiches attracted a very small cub bear from his home in a neighboring wood to the picnic ground. The boys fed it on bread and honey and took home a real but docile teddy bear.

A Cheerful Hint.

Among the presents lately showered upon a Maryland bride was one that was the gift of an elderly lady of the neighborhood with whom both bride and groom were prime favorites.

Some years ago, according to the Woman's Home Companion, the dear old soul accumulated a supply of cardboard mottoes, which she worked and had framed, and on which she never failed to draw with the greatest freedom as occasion arose.

In cheerful reds and blues, suspended by a cord of the same colors over the table on which the other presents were grouped, hung the motto:

"Fight on; fight ever."

Father of a Large Family.

"What are you working up now?" asked the inquisitive reader.

"Well," replied the special magazine writer, "I'm trying to get a line on an unknown hero who deserves something handsome at President Roosevelt's hands."

"Who is he?"

"The husband of the Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe."

Oh! the Horrid Thing!

"Mrs. Van Astorbilt called upon me this morning," said Mrs. Woodby, proudly.

"Yes?" replied Mrs. Chellus, with affected indifference. "I heard she was interesting herself in charitable work, but I thought it was among the very poor."—Philadelphia Press.

WHAT IS PE-RU-NA?

Is it a Catarrh Remedy, or a Tonic, or is it Both?

Some people call Peruna a great tonic. Others refer to Peruna as a great catarrh remedy.

Which of these people are right? Is it more proper to call Peruna a catarrh remedy than to call it a tonic?

Our reply is, that Peruna is both a tonic and a catarrh remedy. Indeed, there can be no effectual catarrh remedy that is not also a tonic.

In order to thoroughly relieve any case of catarrh, a remedy must not only have a specific action on the mucous membranes affected by the catarrh, but it must have a general tonic action on the nervous system.

Catarrh, even in persons who are otherwise strong, is a weakened condition of some mucous membrane. There must be something to strengthen the circulation, to give tone to the arteries, and to raise the vital forces.

Perhaps no vegetable remedy in the world has attracted so much attention from medical writers as HYDRASTIS CANADENSIS. The wonderful efficacy of this herb has been recognized many years, and is growing in its hold upon the medical profession. When joined with CUBEBS and COPAIBA a trio of medical agents is formed in Peruna which constitutes a specific remedy for catarrh that in the present state of medical progress cannot be improved upon. This action, reinforced by such renowned tonics as COLLINSONIA CANADENSIS, CORYDALIS FORMOSA and CEDRON SEED, ought to make this compound an ideal remedy for catarrh in all its stages and locations in the body.

From a theoretical standpoint, therefore, Peruna is beyond criticism. The use of Peruna, confirms this opinion. Numberless testimonials from every quarter of the earth furnish ample evidence that this judgment is not over enthusiastic. When practical experience confirms a well-grounded theory the result is a truth that cannot be shaken.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

canal and rapidly converted into an inland sea, will gradually dry up. Inasmuch as there are practically no outlets for this vast body of water, the sink must naturally evaporate to dryness. According to one opinion the Salton Sea will dry up in about eight years.

The growing importance of the metal tantalum, owing to its employment in the preparation of filaments for incandescent lamps, gives interest to the recent discoveries of minerals containing tantalum in Wetsern Australia. As long ago as 1894 tantalum was found at Bimberg, combined with niobium and antimony. Later it was discovered near the same place in combination with iron. Quite recently a combination of 70 per cent tantalum and 30 per cent manganese has been found at Wodgina. It occurs in blocks weighing as much as 30 pounds.

The German War Department has taken much pains to select a color for uniforms to be used in active service which will prove as inconspicuous as possible in the field. As a means of concealing operations in battle, in these days of long-range guns, an "invisible" uniform for infantry ranks with smokeless powder. The German experiments have demonstrated that the color which comes nearest to making soldiers invisible in an ordinary landscape is gray-green. Simple gray, on the contrary, makes a very conspicuous uniform amid the same surroundings. Additional tests are to be made to determine the best color for winter wear, and especially amid snow-covered landscapes.

The delicate measurements demanded by modern scientific processes and machines have led to the invention of many instruments of precision that surprise the uninitiated by their capabilities, which are often based on extremely simple principles. Among these is a little apparatus recently put upon the market in France for determining the thickness, or, one might say, lack of thickness, of extremely thin plates, wires and threads. The inventor likens its action to that of a lever in which a ray of light takes the place of the beam. Essentially the apparatus consists of two carefully ground plates in contact with one another, the upper one being attached to a movable arm. When an object is placed between the edges of the plates the upper plate is displaced a little in level, and the effect of this displacement is magnified by a reflected ray of light which falls upon a graduated scale. Thus the most delicate measurements of thickness are easily and quickly made.

Where Rubies Are Found.

In Mogok they see everything in a ruby light, men, women and children. Every visitor must want to buy, they think. However hungry or thirsty the traveler may be on arrival, the first thing he hears spoken of is rubies.

All Mogok seems to be fishing with bamboo hoisters, says W. G. Fitzgerald in the Technical World. And they are fishing—for rubies, in the precious "pyon," that rivals in richness the famous "blue ground" of Kimberley.

But no industry is more uncertain than winning fine rubies in Burmah. One tunnel was supposed by the local engineers to contain $15,000,000 worth, yet it seemed to fizzle out suddenly. The monopoly abandoned it, after spending much time and money, and then came along a few gentle, almond-eyed Shans and made an immense fortune out of the derelict mine.

A very few fine rubies enormously outvalue a great quantity of rough pale stones. But when all is said ruby mining is slow and disappointing work and rarely averages more than $15,000 for each acre treated. It is shrewdly suspected by the white men in Mogok that the richest mines of all are at this moment growing scratch crops of poor grain belonging to fanatical natives, who literally place "above rubies," as the Bible has it, the land and manners of their forefathers.

A Way Out.

The girl said, albeit regretfully, that she could not marry him, that she was wedded to her art.

"No other reason?" he asked.

"None."

"Well," he responded, "I've said I'd dare anything for you, and I'm willing to run the risk of bigamy."

After reflection she was, too.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Her Favorite.

Margaret and her little playmate Elizabeth chanced to be overheard as they were walking home from school. "What's your very favoritest color?" Elizabeth was asking. Margaret looked thoughtfully for a moment, and then said, enthusiastically: "Plaid!"

CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON

NO LIMIT TO ITS POWERS FOR EVIL

Contagious Blood Poison has brought more suffering, misery and humiliation into the world than all other diseases combined; there is hardly any limit to its powers for evil. It is the blackest and vilest of all disorders, wrecking the lives of those unfortunate enough to contract it and often being transmitted to innocent offspring, a blighting legacy of suffering and shame. So highly contagious is the trouble that innocent persons may contract it by using the same table ware, toilet articles or clothing of one in whose blood the treacherous virus has taken root. Not only is it a powerful poison but a very deceptive one. Only those who have learned by bitter experience know by the little sore or ulcer, which usually makes its appearance first, of the suffering which is to follow. It comes in the form of ulcerated mouth and throat, unsightly copper colored spots, swollen glands in the groin, falling hair, offensive sores and ulcers on the body, and in severe cases the finger nails drop off, the bones become diseased, the nervous system is shattered and the sufferer becomes an object of pity to his fellow man. Especially is the treacherous nature of Contagious Blood Poison, shown when the infected person endeavors to combat the poison with mercury and potash. These minerals will drive away all outward symptoms of the troubles for a while, and the victim is deceived into the belief that he is cured. When, however, the treatment is left off he finds that the poison has only been driven deeper into the blood and the disease reappears, and usually in worse form because these strong minerals have not only failed to remove the virus from the blood but have weakened the entire system because of their destructive action. S. S. S. is she only real and certain cure for Contagious Blood Poison. It is made of a combination of healing blood-purifying roots, herbs and barks, the best in Nature's great laboratory of forest and field. We offer a reward of $1.000 for proof that S. S. S. contains a particle of mineral in any form. S. S. S. goes down to the very bottom of the trouble and by cleansing the blood of every particle of the virus and adding rich, healthful qualities to this vital fluid, forever cures this powerful disorder. So thoroughly does S. S. S. cleanse the circulation that no signs of the disease are ever seen again, and offspring is protected.

"THE CITY OF OPPORTUNITY"

Port Angeles, which is not inaptly called "The City of Opportunity," is situated on the south side of the Strait of Juan de Fuca, the broad channel which leads from the Pacific to the entrance of Puget Sound. The city lies about eighty miles west of Seattle and eighteen miles south of Victoria, the capital of British Columbia. On a clear day the buildings on either shore are plainly visible across the Strait.

The harbor of Port Angeles is unique in its way, being formed by a semi-circular spit of sand about two and a half miles long. The bay thus enclosed has an anchorage area of twelve square miles, and being of uniform depth, without rock or shoal, is without a peer on the northern coast. While the wind drives the surf with tremendous force on the outer shore, within the bay the water is smooth as a mill pond. The entrance is wide and a ship may enter with its eyes shut, so to speak, on the darkest night and in the most tempestuous weather and remain in perfect security. Full rigged ships often sail into Angeles Bay. Pilots are not required between this point and the ocean, the big steamships calling here to take on pilots for their trip upsound and leaving them here again on their return.

Port Angeles Bay has been for years the northern practicing ground of the Pacific fleet, the battleships, cruisers and destroyers assembling here from points all along the coast for big gun practice, cruising up and down the harbor and firing at targets, floating, or stationed on the spit.

The population of the town is about three thousand. There are seven churches and five school houses. Every line of business is well represented and all merchants are doing a splendid business. New dwellings are springing up in every part of the city and substantial improvements are being made on every hand.

On the shores of the bay are a creamery, a salmon cannery, brewery, lumber mill, fish products company and cold storage, and a plant fertilizer factory. There are many fine sites available for manufacturing purposes, and at the head of the bay is the finest location for a big lumber mill in the state, there being a natural lake or lagoon of fresh water, which is several acres in extent.

The largest saw and shingle mill in the county is located just back of the town, while in the surrounding country are a dozen shingle mills, having a combined output of 320,000 bunches per day. Just west of the city is a logging company employing 200 men, and keeping three locomotives and two tugs busy thruout the year. Wages paid in these industries range from $2.75 to $6 per day, the common rate for laborers in this section being 25 cents an hour.

The Angeles brewery has a capacity of of 75 barrels every 12 hours. Its product is sold in all the cities of the Sound.

A quarry, of blue-gray sandstone, two miles back of the waterfront, is equipped with the latest stone sawing mill and immense derricks. The stone, which is pronounced by tests of government officials to be the densest and hardest of all building stones on the sound, has been used in business blocks and county buildings in both western and eastern Washington and at the government fortifications.

There are vast beds of semi-hard coal of the best possible quality for steaming, outcroppings of which are found in many parts of the county, even within the city of Port Angeles. The first mine to be opened up has contracted its output for five years at a profit per ton greater than the retail price of soft coal in the east.

Within seven miles of Angeles, on either side of the mountain back of the city, ledges of ore have been opened which assay $25 and upwards, copper and gold. It is expected that companies will soon be financed and operations commenced.

While Clallam county, of which Port Angeles is the capital, has some of the finest farms in the state, which are sold, on those rare occasions when any are on the market, at from $100 to $250 per acre, including stock and machinery, it is upon the small rancher and dairyman that the county mostly depends. With butter selling from thirty to forty cents per pound, cattle grazing the year 'round, an enormous yield of roots, which are dug as wanted during the winter, and hay land that yields three or four tons and upwards per acre, the dairying industry is bound to be of ever increasing importance. Surplus hay brings from $10 to $25 per ton, the latter being the present price. Other products of the ranch bring equally good prices, eggs, for instance, selling at from 20c to 60c the dozen, according to the season.

Fruits of all kinds are raised in the greatest profusion and of an enormous size. Apple trees yield from one barrel upwards, commencing to bear the next year after setting out in orchards. Cherries, pears, peaches, prunes, egg plums—finer fruit cannot be had.

The mountains abound in large and small game, there being countless numbers of deer, bear and elk. All lakes and streams are filled with trout, of many varieties. In lakes Crescent and Sutherland, just west of Angeles, trout famed the world over for their size and gameness are the common thing. These localities have become places of resort for lovers of sport from all parts of the continent.

Port Angeles also has a water power of inestimable value. The Elwha river, a mighty mountain stream which has its source back in the heart of the Olympics, flows thru a deep narrow canyon, about seven miles from town, at which point fifty thousand horse power can easily be made available. There are other similar points in this river as well as on the other mountain streams no further from town, that can be harnessed for the development of electric energy for manufacturing and lighting. Everywhere thruout the West, from Minneapolis to Spokane, we find cities built or building alongside the water powers.

But the greatest present asset of Clallam county is to be found in its wealth of timber. Over one-eighth, or 25,742,000,000 feet, of all the timber of the state is in Clallam county alone. Another eighth is found in Jefferson county, the major portion of which, by reason of the mountains, must be handled thru Clallam county. To the man who knows, these figures tell an eloquent story—one that needs neither interpretation nor elaboration. The actual cash, as well as the potential value of this vast area of standing timber runs into stupendous figures. A conservative value to be put upon the timber wealth of the peninsula as it now stands is $100,000,000, and it is growing in value, for the world's supply of timber is steadily diminishing. It will take an army of men, hundreds of saw and shingle mills, many paper and pulp mills, three or four transcontinental railroads and great lines of ships, working incessantly for a long period of years to log off, manufacture and transport to our own and foreign markets the enormous timber wealth of these two counties; and while this is being done, one of the most prosperous cities in the west will grow up at Port Angeles.

Why is Port Angeles—the City of Angels, as it was named by those who first visited it and gazed upon its natural beauties, now called the City of Opportunity? Because its geographical situation is unrivalled for foreign commerce; because of its immense water power; because of its vast area of timber and coal; because of its mining resources; because of its fertile soil and great adaptability as a fruit and nut growing district; because of its romantic and picturesque location at the foot of cloud piercing mountains and amid the fertile valleys on one hand and a calm and tranquil seascape on the other.

With the imminence of active railway construction which will connect us with the markets of the world, the future of this beautiful city is assured. The Northern Pacific has completed its surveys from Cettralia on its present line to and thru the city; and the Union Pacific and Milwaukee have surveyed around the peninsula to Port Angeles from the west, their surveyors now being engaged in the final locations just west of the city. Rights of way by purchase have been acquired along the lines; rails have been laid to temporarily hold passes; and condemnation suits for other lands are now under way. These roads have acquired thru the purchase of their land companies during the past year, millions of dollars worth of standing timber, so that their future freight is assured.

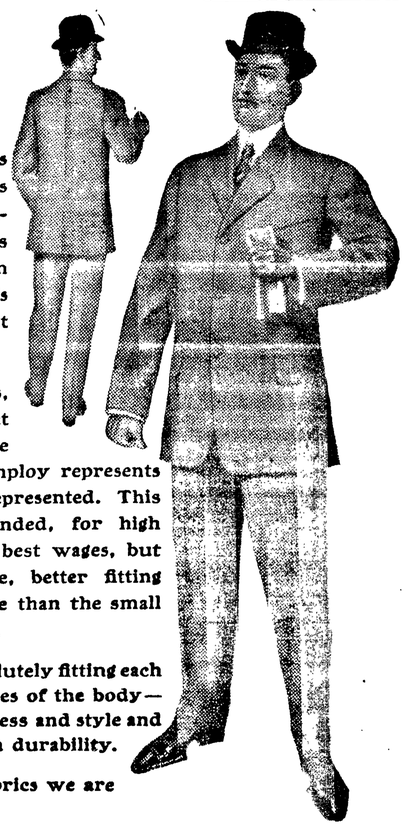
Who's your Tailor?
TRADE MARK REGISTERED 1906



THE MAKING of clothes to measure involves many intricate operations, each of these operations must be performed by an expert, otherwise the suit is irretrievably ruined and not fit to wear.

Our Chicago Clothes Makers, Ed. V. Price & Co., select their operatives with care and every man in their employ represents the best in the professions represented. This means more money expended, for high grade tailors command the best wages, but it also means better made, better fitting clothes for you at less price than the small tailor can or will give you.

They have facilities for absolutely fitting each suit over the lines and curves of the body—suits that carry distinctiveness and style and are their own insurance on durability.
