Event Rescheduled: The North Olympic Library System (NOLS) and Humanities Washington have announced that the free talk, "Resisting Erasure through Storytelling," with author Putsata Reang, has been rescheduled to Saturday, Dec. 6, from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Forks Branch Library, 171 S. Forks Ave. The event was originally set for Nov. 15.

At eight years old, Reang didn't understand why her skin was brown when that of her classmates was white. Hoping to change this, she put an eraser to her arm and rubbed. A decade later, as she struggled to reckon with the dawning realization that she is gay, she held a razor to her wrist. Recalling how her mother had once saved her as an infant when their family fled war in her native Cambodia, Reang ultimately could not end her own life.

External forces such as anti-LGBTQ+ legislation, and internal forces, such as shame and discrimination, put an increasing number of Americans like Reang at risk for erasure. The presentation will discuss the dangers of dwelling on differences and encourage the audience to share their personal stories as an antidote to erasure.

Information about the event can be found at NOLS.org/HW.

About the Presenter

Putsata Reang (she/her) is an author and journalist whose debut memoir, “Ma and Me,” was awarded the 2023 Pacific Northwest Booksellers Association prize for nonfiction and was recognized as a finalist for the 2023 Lambda Literary Award.
