The North Olympic Library System (NOLS) invites people living on the Olympic Peninsula to submit artwork inspired by agriculture and food for the “Farm to Table” Art in the Library exhibition that will be displayed in the Port Angeles Main Library, 2210 S. Peabody St. Online applications at nols.org/farm-art will be accepted through Monday, May 4.

Adults, teens and children of all artistic experience levels are encouraged to enter. Creative work in any format and medium will be considered, from veggie-inspired finger painting to sculpture, video, poetry and more. The exhibition is part of the all-ages 2026 “Plant a Seed, Read” Summer Reading Program.

The exhibition opens with a reception on Friday, June 12, at the Port Angeles Main Library and remains on view through Saturday, Aug. 15. Selected artists may choose to list their artwork for sale; the Library does not charge or take a commission.

For more information, visit nols.org/farm-art, call 360-417-8500, or email art@nols.org. This program is generously supported by Port Angeles Friends of the Library.

Enter art by May 4 to be featured in this summer's "Farm to Table" Art in the Library exhibition at the Port Angeles Main Library.
