Re: Saturday Science at the Library

Calling all junior scientists! Beginning Saturday, October 1 at 2:00 pm, the North Olympic Library System's Port Angeles Library will offer a monthly Saturday Science program for kids 7-12 years of age. Community science buffs will demonstrate interactive science activities and share first-hand knowledge of how they use science in their daily lives..

"Saturday Science at the Library is a great opportunity for kids to get hands-on knowledge of how people use science in their work and to highlight the library's science resources" says Library Branch Manager Lisa Musgrove. "In a community like Port Angeles, where the natural world plays such a big role in everyone's life, science programming for kids is critical." The programs will be held on the first Saturday of each month and will include a variety of community speakers, including naturalists, science teachers, and inventors. Local science buffs interested in helping should contact Patti Swingle at PSwingle@nols.org or 360-417-8502 for more information.

This program is free of charge and no registration is needed. For information on this and other programs for youth, contact the Port Angeles Main Library at (360) 417-8502, or check on the website at www.nols.org or email youth@nols.org. The Port Angeles Main Library is located at 2210 South Peabody Street in Port Angeles. This program is generously sponsored by the Port Angeles Friends of the Library.
