Re: "Old Books into Ornaments" workshop

On Saturday December 3rd, from 11am to 1pm, the Sequim Branch Library will host "Old Books into Ornaments," a creative hands-on workshop where you can learn to repurpose discarded library books into holiday ornaments, gift wrapping paper, and bows. You can even make an e-reader cover from a used hardback book binding! This hands-on workshop will bring on the festive mood and take care of holiday to-dos with new ideas for hand-made eco-gifts.

The workshop will be led by Lauren Dahlgren, Sequim Branch Library Manager and craft person extraordinaire. She will be assisted by equally creative and holiday-loving library staffer Ambur Taft. Materials will be provided by the Friends of Sequim Library. Bring yourself, your holiday cheer, and your willingness to try something new.

This event is suitable for ages 11-105.

Handcrafted gifts always have special significance. As you make your gift list, remember the library has lots of books and magazines filled with craft ideas of all kinds. Your library customer service team will be happy to help you find what you need.

Pre-registration for this program is encouraged to ensure enough supplies for all attendees. For more information about this and other upcoming Library programs go to www.nols.org, and click on "Events" or contact the Library at Sequim@nols.org or 360.683.1161.
