Re: Saturday Science at the Library

On Saturday December 10 at 2pm, the North Olympic Library System's Port Angeles Library will offer the next in its series of monthly Saturday Science program for kids ages 7 to 12. Volunteers from Dungeness River Audubon Center will be on hand to discuss seasonal changes in the environment and citizen science opportunities.

"Saturday Science at the Library is a great opportunity for kids to get hands-on knowledge of how people use science in their work and to highlight the library's science resources," says Library Branch Manager Lisa Musgrove.

This program is free of charge and no registration is needed. For information on this and other programs for youth, contact the Port Angeles Main Library at (360) 417-8502, check the website at www.nols.org or email youth@nols.org. The Port Angeles Main Library is located at 2210 South Peabody Street in Port Angeles. This program is generously sponsored by the Port Angeles Friends of the Library.
