Subject: Felt Board Workshops in Port Angeles and Forks

Learn how to create a fun and educational felt board for a child in your life this winter at the North Olympic Library System (NOLS)! Felt Board Workshops will take place at 6:30pm on Wednesday, November 30 at the Port Angeles Main Library, and again at 6:30pm on Thursday, December 8 at the Forks Branch Library. Participants will take home a simple felt board they have made, some patterns, and ideas about how to use the board to tell stories or work with a child. This program is geared towards adults; limited seats are available and registration is required. All materials will be provided. To register online, visit www.nols.org or send an email to Youth@nols.org.

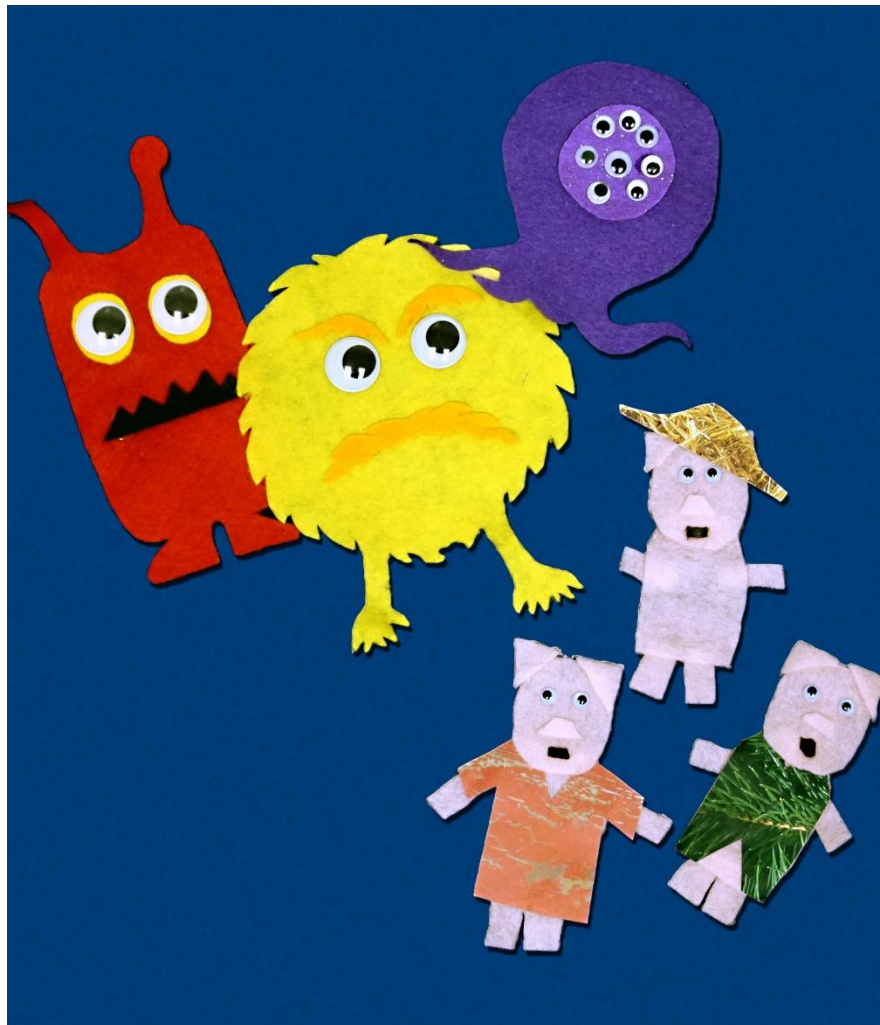

“Felt or flannel boards are a fun and simple way to encourage storytelling and play for children,” youth services librarian Jennifer Knight said. “Flannel board sets don’t need to be elaborate—you can have zero crafting skills and put together a board. A child’s ability to tell stories is a key early literacy skill. Flannel boards are an easy and inexpensive way to support this. Plus, they’re super-fun to make.”
