Trading Stamps Used For Fund Raising Have you been trying to come up with an idea to help your favorite charity?
Charitable fund raising, no matter how worthy the cause, charitable fund raising, no matter now worthy the cause, has encountered increasing difficulty even in this time of general prosperity due to inflation and to the many spending demands. Most families spend for necessities and either save for luxuries or buy them through finance plans. But even though charitable donations are tax deductible, they are rarely provided for in the family budget. for in the family budget. Curtis Carlson, president of the Trading Stamp Institute of America, calls attention to an Frading Flamp Problem important new trend in the world of charitable organizations.

"Trading stamp plans and premiums," observes Mr. Carlson, "have become an effective and painless method whereby charitable organizations car for worthy causes."

Mr. Carlson points out that redemption centers where stamps are exchanged for gifts or premiums now include a vast variety of quality merchandise rivaling well-stocked department stores, and such unusual items are book club colections.

The Cerebral Palsy Auxiliary of Minmi Florida, enlisted the ment stores, and such unusual items as book club selections, Broadway theatre tickets, and trips to Europe are being offered by certain trading stamp companies. The Trading Stamp Institute president points out that there are several methods ing stamp collecting project currently popular with fund for the New York Lighthouse Organization members and station wagon. Organization members and their families may exchange stamps for merchandise which is then donated directly to hospitals or other public and private institutions. They may award the merchandise at fundraising parties or social functions as prizes. They may exchange stamps for cash.
