We sure had us some weather yesterday! At Ozette I mean. The wind was a-whistling, the rain was a-torrenting, and white caps were marching in steady rows across the lake. The sun glistened and sparkled on the frost covered world and the ocean appeared as smooth as a lake.

Wes Chilson was a Monday morning coffee guest. The watchestarters were busy with their duties while the rest of the crew watched Bowl games on TV. We had the Rose Bowl game on our radio and the "Super" Chief kept busy hopping from TV to radio to keep posted. Joe Greco prepared baked ham for the holiday dinner.

We sure had us some weather yesterday! At Ozette I mean. The wind was a-whistling, the rain was a-torrenting, and white caps were marching in steady rows across the lake. The road between here and Hoko was under water of course. That is a regular occurrence when it rains good and hard here. Sometimes as much as half a mile will be under from a few inches to a couple of feet. I don't like to see that happen on a Friday because it makes me apprehensive about the chances of my old pick-up getting through without drowning out— and I am afraid it might be a long hitch-hike from here to there in the deark.
