Protect Your Children Against Measles, Says The AMA

CHICAGO-Now is the time to have your children im munized against measles if the have not already received this protection, says the American Medical Association. Many parents are surprised to learn how dangerous this common childhood disease really is An estimated 250 America children died from measles in 1966. More than 150 suffered measles encephalitis, sometime called sleeping sickness, or brain fever. Encephalitis frequently leaves children with permanen disabilities, including mental retardation, deafness, and blindness

Future tragedies can be prevented, because safe and effective measles vaccines are now avail able. In the past four years, thes vaccines have helped cut th measles death rate in half. It's possible that measles could be eradicated in the near future if more parents protected their children with immunization The AMA recommends that every infant be vaccinated when been vaccinated and who have not had measles, should be immunized now. It is especially important infection. sles immunization. These young- recommendations.
