Cal nipped Washington 24-20 last year in Seattle, and took a 16-12 victory the year before in Berkeley. Much of California's offensive attack so far this season has been attributed to the fine quarterbacking of Barry Bronk. Bronk, a 6foot-2 junior from La Mesa, started the last seven games of the 1966 season, and threw for 965 yards and seven touchdowns, including two outstanding performances against Washington and UCLA. Another Bear that the Huskies will have to contain is end Wayne Stewart, currently the leading receiver in the Pacific-8 football race. Stewart, only a junior at 6 feet 7 and 200 pounds, played safety on defense last year as well as split end on offense. Coach Jim Owens' Huskies must end the Golden Bear jinx if they

Can you really get a tree

Sure. And what comes out is even more amazing. Ask any of our employees...one's probably your next door neighbor.

He'll tell you Rayonier is a researchminded company determined to coax the most out of its trees.

A number of years ago we played a leading role in developing the new field of silvichemicals...useful chemical products made from the left-overs in pulp making.

We started with an oil well drilling mud additive made from tree bark.

Rayonier Incorporated

Northwest operations at

and Shelton, Washington

Hoquiam, Port Angeles, Seattle

More recently, we developed Rayplex, a plant food that helps farmers raise larger, healthier crops.

Next came Raymix, a concrete additive that increases the strength of roads and bridges.

Along with Raymix, the construction industry is now using Terranier, a soil stabilizer for building dams, tunnels, highways and skyscrapers.

Next time your favorite recreation takes you to one of our local tree farms, remember these trees also play an important part in the foods you eat, the roads you travel and the bridges you cross.
