Short Comings

Steelhead fishing on local rivers reached a snail's pace due to the cold weather. Many fishermen believe the fish don't bite during a period when the Northeasterlies blow. The real problem is that it's much too cold to fight the freezing guides and biting wind.

The brave ones have managed to catch fish. The Bogachiel continues to be the local top producer in numbers of fish caught. The steelies run in the 4 to 7 pound class with an occasional larger fish.

Bob Joutsen landed an 18-1/2 pound buck while fishing with Clarence Fuhs a week ago.

Reports of larger fish are slow in coming in.

The population of Forks must have increased by 100 people during the holidays when the college students and other members of the younger set spent the holidays with families.

It's always nice to have these people home and we hope they have a safe journey back.

Forks Broadcasting Company held its spirited holiday party for employees at the Vagabond Saturday. The men were given a gift of cologne and the women received a compact travel kit.

The menu featured fillet mignon, lobster, baked potato, salad and crab cocktails.

LETTER

Dear Editor Forum, also Parents and Grandparents: As we all know, there is presently a great to-do on the matter of special levies and taxes for schools. So let me tell some sides of the matter that I, at least, have seldom seen property discussed, and I have been around a long time and raised a large family, and even for a time taught school and acted as a member of a school board afterwards. So then -even as not all children have the same kind of hair, nor the same physique, nor wear the same size shoes at any given age, neither do they acquire the same mental maturity. Even in the same family there is this difference, so why then do we assume that all our kids should go to school in the first grade at the age of 6 years? Apparently our school people still condone this nonsense.

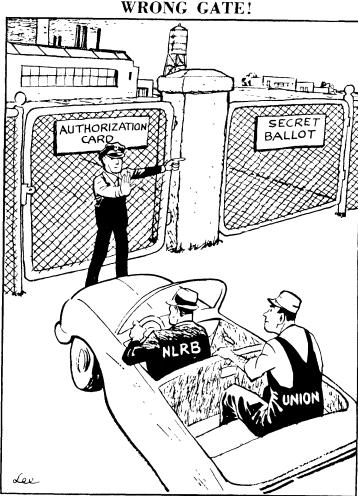

There were these two boys I knew very well. The older was barely five pounds ahead of his younger brother all thru their childhood though there was more than a two year's difference in age. Yet in his early teens, the elder, in only one year, took a spurt of growth that placed him a good six inches taller and 60 pounds heavier than his kid brother. Though they both grew to nearly equal adult size, the younger did not get there until 18 years old.

Mental development may follow this same erratic pattern. It is of utmost importance that in school we consider a child's capacities all the time and place no heavy reliance on his chronological age. In the lower grades, a child's time is worth nothing money-wise. The who can graduate from college two years earlier than the average may be said to have nearly a $10,000 advantage over his slower schoolmates.

For hundreds of years children netic method, but during the later generations, somebody thought up this word method in which the child is taught to dis-employees. regard the alphabetical components of the words he reads and recognize the word as a whole.

WHAT'S HAPPENING TO RIGHTS?

The basic American right of secret-ballot elections-which Congress applied to labor-management relations when it passed the Taft-Hartley Act 20 years ago-is frequently undermined by decisions of the National Labor Relations Board. In place of the ballot box, which the law requires to certify a union as the collective-bargaining agent for employees, the NLRB has been sanctioning authorization cards signed by an employee which either request an election or designate a union as his representative.

An example of this practice is a recent case involving misrepresentation—and in which Long Island duckling played a significant role. Briefly, a garment union demanded that it be recognized by a dress manufacturer, claiming that it had authorization cards signed by 27 of the firm's 49 employees. The company refused recognition because it felt that the card majority had been obtained improperly. But the NLRB ruled that the employer years he has to spend in college did not have a reasonable basis for doubting the are working years, so the student union majority and ordered it to bargain.

A U.S. Court of Appeals subsequently blew the whistle on the use of the cards and reversed the Board's decision. The Court noted that while the cards were printed in English, they were signed by some employees of Polish background who couldn't were taught to read by the pho- even read English. Gun Control Act Sportsmen and hunters concerned over the effect of the new Federal Gun Control Law on possession and sales of firearms were given an explanation of the law's implications today by Elroy Travis, Alcohol, and Tax Representative of the Internal Revenue Service.

Purchasing or owning an ordinary gun used for hunting, target shooting or other lawful purpose will not subject weapons fanciers to any unreasonable restirctions, Mr. Travis said.

"The Gun Control Act of 1968 prohibits certain persons from buying and possessing weapons and ammunition, and limits the sale thereof," Mr. Travis said. He summarized the prohibitions on possession of firearms to include felons. dishonorably discharged veterans, aliens illegally in the U.S., mental incompetents, and former citizens who renounced citizenship.

Mr. Travis pointed out other exclusions that apply to persons under 18 who cannot purchase any firearms or ammunition. "Persons over 18 but under 21 may purchase rifles and shotguns for legitimate purposes, but are prohibited from purchasing pistols or revolvers, " Mr. Travis added.

The new law places restrictions on out of state sales. Individuals may purchase rifles or shotguns in a state contiguous to his state of residence after a 7 day waiting period. The purchaser's state of residence must enact enabling legislation if a contiguous state sale is to be made lawfully.

The new Act has no impact on existing local ordinances, according to Mr. Travis. He stated that the Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division of the Internal Revenue Service is charged with administering Federal firearms laws.

Dealers in guns and ammunition have new responsibilities in weapons transactions, Mr. Travis indicated. He urged prospective purchasers of firearms to cooperate fully with gun and ammunition dealers whose businesses are affected by new licensing provisions which began December 16, 1968.

Local Alcohol and Tobacco Tax offices can provide information and answer questions for interested sportsmen. Federally licensed gun dealers are also being provided with detailed explanations of applicable laws.

Comment: The sportsmen and hunter is not the one that feels the true effect of the new Gun Control Act. The dealers that are involved in the sale of firearms and ammunitions are the ones that are expected to have full knowledge of the new

"Introduced in 1966.....Improved in 1969"

A new season begins for the Forks Spartans when they open league play against the Port Townsend Redskins Friday evening in the Key city.

FORKS FORUM JANUARY 2, 1968, PAGE 11

Everything up to now looks good on the season record but the chips are on the line now that the league campaign is about to get underway.

The Spartans, under coach Roy Mohondro, have rolled to six consecutive victories after an impressive jamboree showing. They have defeated Quilcene 66-56. Wishkah 73-36, Clallam Bay 58-51, Chimacum by 57-35 and 55-45 scores and annihilated Quinault 87-25. Challam Bay has been the only opponent capable of putting up much of a struggle against the Spartans thus far.

At this time it is difficult to determine, just how good the Spartans really are. Fridays game with the Redskins will be the Spartans toughest test and a good season indicator. The Redskins have been beaten this season and beaten badly, but all the opponents have been "A" and "AA" schools. Port Townsend has faired well in its home surroundings and a good close contest at Blevin Gymnasium will place the Spartans as a top league contender.

The Olympic "A" League is composed of Forks, Sequim, Port Townsend, Vashon, North Mason and Lakeside. The league winner has a direct entry to the state A tourney in Tacoma in March. The second place team plays St. Edwards of Scattle for the second state tourney entry.

The Clallam Bay Bruins get back into basketball action Friday when they travel to Neah Bay to encounter a fast improving Red Devil team.

The Bruins have their hearts set on the league title which would give them a trip to the "B" tourney in Spokane in

The Bruin attack is paced by Don and Dan Wilson, Ken Sternbeck and Brent Youlden. Coach Harold Van Riper is still trying to find the fifth man to give the Bruins the added strength to go all the way.

Neah Bay is led by its spark plug Glen Halttunen and the Bruins will be out to bottle him up.

January 10 the Bruins open their title efforts against the Quilcene Rangers in the first league game.

BOLDNESS - SPIRIT : STEELHEADER

There is no doubt in my mind that the boldest of them all is the Northwest Steelheader. A fisherman from Kent tries his luck in the upper SoI Duck with a rather cool temperature of 12 degrees surrounding, his well-clothed but shivering body. If the cold itself is not emough to send one home shivering, Old Man Winter has left lhis mark by lacing the waters edge with ice telling the Steellheader that his impression is correct. by Lonnie Archibald

License Tab Sales Begin Today

Motor vehicle license tabs for 1969 will go on sale Thursday, January 2, at the office of Alice C. Thorne, County Auditor, in the Clallam County Courthouse, and at the following licensing agencies located in the county for the convenience of the public:

Sequim: Patricia Cox at Johnny's Auto Sales.

Forks: Arthur Anderson at West End Wrecking & Salvage. Clallam Bay, Sekiu: Bertha Rice at Rice's Resort, Sekiu.

Vehicle owners can anticipate receiving in the mail during the week between Christmas and New Year's the "Notice to Renew" forms printed on a data processing card sent out by the Department of Motor Vehicles from Olympia. The 1969 license tabs should be purchased during the month of January as the 1968 tabs become invalid for use after January 31. The auditor's office reports that the heaviest counter rush is experienced during the first and last weeks of the month, and those purchasing tabs at the courthouse may avoid the waiting in line if the licenses are obtained at other times.

Many car owners find it more convenient to complete the transaction through the mail by sending the complete "notice to renew" form to the auditor's office in the Courthouse with their check or money order payable to the Clallam County Auditor for the amount shown on the form as the total of fees and tax. Mail renewals should be postmarked no later than January 25th in order that the tabs may be sent to the vehicle owner by the January 31

Tabs will be issued to all vehicles this year. If vehicles licensed in another state and are now going to be licensed in the State of Washington, it is necessary that the owner bring in the out of state license plates before Washington plates can be issued. This also applies to replacement plates.

The 1969 passenger car tabs nave a new color combination this year -- a yellow-gold imprint of the State of Washington on a blue background with a blue "69" on the state map outline. Truck tabs will be green with a gray-white tab and a green "69". Each passenger vehicle must pay a basic license fee of $8.60 olus an additional two percent excise tax on the vehicle's market value according to a manual issued by the State Department of Revenue listing all vehicles by make, year and model. The excise tax ranges from a minimum of $2 on older cars to many hundreds of dollars on luxury cars

DEAR JANE FINANCIAL

Every year my husband makes a grand New Year's resolution and one week later he promptly breaks it. The problem is that he makes such a to-do with the children over this resolution, and you should see their faces as he breaks the promise he made at New Years in just one week. If he does the same thing again this year, how would you suggest I handle it? Just sign me ...

Nothing New at New Years

Dear Nothing New:

One of the very basic jobs that parents have in teaching their families behavior is honesty. An individual should never make a promise to himself that he has no intention of keeping. and especially to others. How can we expect our little ones to express honesty when the adults in their lives use a little bit of dishonesty here and there. Advise your husband to make no promises this year.

DEAR JANE:

We are having a little dispute in our family. We live in an area where there are several related families in the same general area. No one family can do anything without the rest of the family knowing the various plans. My husband and I feel that if we are having a party, we are not obligated to invite our relatives to these occasions. The rest of the family feel very stong about this and feel that if one couple of the family is having a social gathering, they should invite the immediate family as a matter of course. We are having a New Years party. Are we obligated to invite the family?

Rebelling Relations

It is good to feel the desire of enlarging your circle of acquaintances. People who spend their entire lives around a small set circle of acquaintances, whether it be family or friends, will experience a very limited life. If a couple were to always invite their family to all of their social gatherings, then they would never be in the position to broaden their scope of new friendships. In each person's experience there are so many wonderful people to meet and enjoy, that it is a shame to limit yourself to only those with whom you are already acquainted. In addition, a couple cannot afford to entertain all of the family and friends each and every time they entertain. Share yourself with your family, but do not limit your friendship to a few close relatives. You are free to invite anyone you wish to your party.

Every New Year's day I am faced with the same problem. Football games all day long! My husband gets up in the morning early on New Year's day, about 6:30 a.m. to be exact, and click, on goes the TV. Even if it is snow, he sits therewide-eyed waiting for the football games to start so he won't miss a single moment of the commentary. There is the Orange Bowl, the Rose Bowl, the Purple Bowl, the Salad Bowl and I don't know what all else, all day long. The children can't make any noise or Dad has a canary. What do you suggest a wife can do to get her football-crazy husband to participate in a family project? TV Widow

This is Dad's one day of the year. His big moment. He works hard all year round and if the football games are that special to him, then see to it that he has this one day for himself. Plan a family project for the day before New Year's or an appropriate time for you. On New Year's day, plan something special for yourself and the children. I might suggest something for you. Perhaps you could plan a stay at a motel or hotel in a nearby town. Take your entire family. Eat out and get a change of scenery. Pick an establishment with a good TV. Let Dad spend the day with the TV and you and the children go sight seeing, visiting or to a movie. That way Mom gets away from the meal routine for a day and a half, children get to go on a trip and Dadishappy with the football games.

Q. My husband has recently taken out a loss-of-income health insurance policy, even though he has a safe job (he's an accountant) and is in perfect health. How can this policy benefit us? A. Your husband was probably wise to take out such a policy. Even people who work at a desk are not immune to mishaus. Besides, occupational accidents aren't the only thing covered in a loss-of-income policy. Many accidents also happen in the home or other places and there are also on and off the job sick-

This type of policy assures you that you will help maintain your family's standard of living if your husband becomes ill or ured and is disabled. Loss-of-income insurance provides weekly or monthly cash payments when the insured person is disabled. Of course, the funds can be used any way you In 1967, more than 57 million people were covered by loss-of-income protection, and received more than $1 billion in benefit

Q. I was employed by a company for many years where my family and [were covered under a group health insurance plan. When we had medical expenses, I paid 20 per cent of the cost and my company paid the remainder. Now that I've gone into business for myself I've decided we need an individual family policy. Comparing the costs of the two for basically the same coverage, I've discovered the individual policy is more expensive. Can you expľain why?

A. Under a group plan the same coverage is set up for everyone in that particular group. It is centrally administered for the entire group and is therefore less expensive than the individual policies which are tailor-made to the requirements of the family, and administered on an in-

Under April 1968 Secretary regulation, to be superseded by the new law effective January 1, the volume exempt from domestic processing was 290 million board feet from sales sold on the National Forests of western Oregon and western Washington. The previous regulation did not require domestic processing of National Forest timber sold from most of the National Forests of eastern Oregon and eastern Washington.

All new contracts on all Forests in Oregon and Washington will now require domestic processing of logs sold. This will insure no export of logs from federal lands in eastern Oregon and eastern Washington (and other federal lands in the West not assigned amounts that could be exported). Under the new law, the Secretaries may take steps to prevent substitution of federal timber for non-federal timber that a company might export. The Secretaries are giving this provision further study before formulating regulations.

Also awaiting decision is what to do about two "minor" species in Oregon, Washington, and northern California --Port-Orford-cedar and Alaska yellow cedar. These species were the subject of a recent hearing in Portland to determine what amounts if any of surplus to domestic needs, and therefore could be exported in addition to the 350 million limit contained in the Morse

Meditation

"THAT IMPRESSIONABLE AGE" by J. William Hawk

Several years ago I was told, "Spend your time and energy with youth; they can still be influenced. We older people are already set in our ways." I will never know precisely what this person meant, but I will always remember this advice with a bit of sadness.

It is true that the early years of our lives are the years when we are the most easily influenced. This is why they are called our "formative years." We are shaped and affected while we are very young. So it is important to establish the attitudes and values which we believe are most precious when persons are six months to 15 years of age. The book of Proverbs says, " Frain up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old I c will not depart from it." No doubt, the values which Christians want to establish are honesty, diligence, patience, understanding, respect, obedience, love, gratefulness, trust and a multitude of others. Neither a just and free society nor a worshipping Christian community can survive without them.

Today, however, it seems more important than anything else to teach flexibility. One of the dominant words in the contemporary vocabulary is "change." We receive poems, songs, sermons and news casts about how the times are changing. In addition we are warned that the changes we have seen and experienced are but a foretaste of what is to come. The person who is not trained to live comfortably with change is going to feel most out of place. So during that impressionable age we must not make impressions that are so indelible that they cannot be revised and reoriented for the future. We must teach the young how to evaluate matters on their own, rather than quickly giving impressions about whether things are intrinsically "good" or "bad." By doing so we can guard against the pathos of the person quoted above who felt the world was leaving her behind because she was unable to change.

One last warning about impressions. Impressions are frequently in error. We struggle hard to overcome those first impressions of people we meet, for they are made without knowing the person. Be impressed only when you know someone well enough to know that he preaches what he practices and practices what he preaches. This is why the impression of Jesus Christ cannot be forgotten or overcome.

You have to be so careful what you say to children when they're at that impressionable age Our neighbor has a little daughter. And, being something of a skeptic, he's been careful not to let her be exposed to religious teaching, at least not in any direct way.

But the other night she asked, "Who is God?" And, since he wants to see her grow up with the highest ideals, he hesitated a moment before he answered her question.

Then he said God made the world." (And he wondered why he hadn't said "God is nobody — there isn't any god." i Her wondering eyes and pursed lips tugged at his heart. "Gosh, Daddy," she mused, "He's somebody

Whether you're a child or an adult, that pretty well sums it up. Either God is nobody-or He Is Sometain sufficient traction improver for several applications on each driving tire. Offering drivers the convenience of push-button tire chains, the compound is a coating on the tire tread, improving traction on ice or snow. It is not harmful to tires or the car finish. Drivers stuck on ice or snow should follow four steps

on the exposed tread of each driving tire. About five seconds of spraying time for each tire is adequate.

Second, spin the tires slowly to spread the AC Liquid Tire Chain around the tread and permit it to mix with the water present in snow or ice. Water is required to start the chemical reaction which forms the sticky given limited usage during the 1967-68 winter season, following development of the compound by Dow Chemical Company. A survey among those drivers who used the traction improver indicates almost universal success.

The compound is effective at temperatures as low as 20 degrees below zero, F. In addition to its intended usage of freeing stuck motorists, it also has been used successfully on snow blowers and small snow plows, bicycle tires, snowmobiles and even the bottom of boots and rubbers. A push-button application system available as an option on most 1969 Chevrolet models permits a motoriist to apply the traction improving compound to the auto's rear tires without leaving the driver's seat.

The system includes a control button mounted on the instrument panel and vacuum-powered applicators located in the car trunk over each rear tire. The applicators each contain a four-ounce can. The cans may be replaced when empty but only AC Liquid Tire Chain cans are suitable for replacement use in this push-buttom ap-

LIQUID TIRE CHAINS - Mountain roads and deep snow provide the perfect setting for this lovely model to demonstrate the effectiveness of traction improving compound being distributed by AC Spark Plug Division of General Motors. Called AC Liquid Tire Chain, the compound is simply sprayed on the rear tires, providing up to three times normal traction to help free a motorist stuck on ice or in deep snow. It is available from service stations, auto dealers and other retail outlets handling AC products.
